Budget cuts to Aus Aid a kick in the teeth for Christians

“Six consecutive cuts to Australia’s international development is a failure of moral leadership.”

Australian Aid has been slashed for the sixth time in consecutive budgets by the Coalition Government.

During last night’s budget unveiling, Treasurer Josh Frydenberg announced plans to cease $500 million of existing aid projects in South-East Asia (Bangladesh, Cambodia, Nepal, Indonesia and Pakistan) to fund an infrastructure facility for the Pacific.

The cut is a kick in the teeth for many Christian voters after years of sustained advocacy by leaders of churches and Christian organisation – as well as by lay people. They have worked across denominational lines to deliver a consistent message to all political parties: Australian Aid matters to Christians.
