Seeking your CLP's nomination in the elections for Youth National Policy Forum Representative for the South East.

Under the leadership of Jeremy Corbyn, our Party has undergone vibrant and transformative change, truly becoming a mass-membership party and the largest political party in the whole of Europe. We've seen an increase in Young Labour's membership to 100,000, with young people coming together in our party bringing radical and progressive change with them, carrying the future of our party on their shoulders out onto the doorstep, fighting for the next Labour Government.

In our amazing 2017 manifesto, and at last year's conference, we saw members being empowered to build our policies for the future, for the many. As your Youth rep on the NPF, I will fight for further empowerment of young members to build upon our manifesto, harnessing our radical socialist ideals to put our party into power. Young people are the backbone and the future of the Labour Party and utterly essential to ensuring that our policies are truly radical.

Our manifesto tackled the important issues that younger people face, such as mental health, tuition fees, unaffordable housing, and insecure jobs. As a government-in-waiting, we cannot be complacent and must always seek to build upon and improve our existing policies.

As your Youth NPF rep I will bring the issues affecting the young to the forefront and, working with Young Labour members across the South East and wider, I'll ensure that our voices are heard and our issues valued.

As Youth Officer for Mid-Sussex CLP and as a member of the South East Regional Board I've consistently fought for the interests of younger members and put democracy, transparency and socialist ideals at the forefront of all the work I've done within our party. As a member of Unite's South East Political Liaison Committee, I've fought to build upon our existing trade union links and ensure that our party works closely and collaboratively with the wider Labour movement in all areas, including policy.

I'm proud to be a member of the CLPD, Unite and Momentum and, if elected, will continue their great work in empowering young members to get involved in our party's policy making to deliver a real socialist Labour Party, working for the Many, not the Few.

Please consider nominating me as your South East Youth NPF Representative, nominations close on the 22nd June.
