Dear friends of the National Consumers League,

We are honored to present you with this year’s Annual Report, which tells the story of the National Consumers League—our programs, this year’s milestones, the people whose lives are touched by our work, and information about our financial health. We are grateful for your interest in NCL and for your vital support, which enables us to make a real difference.

NCL has been fighting for consumers and workers since 1899, and your investment today allows us to carry out the mission our founders established so many years ago. While much has changed in the marketplace since then, many of the issues faced by Americans at our founding remain problems today: fair and honest food labeling, access to quality information and services, safety in the workplace, and predatory financial practices.

Because of your generosity, we are able to continue to pursue a fair marketplace and safe workplace. Today, we celebrate the victories we’ve achieved and take on the challenges that lie ahead as we work to improve the lives of consumers and workers.

We hope you enjoy this report.

2017 NCL ANNUAL REPORT | 3
A STRONGER GENERATION AHEAD

PROBLEM
The marketplace is getting increasingly complicated for each new generation.

SOLUTION
LifeSmarts is a free educational program that gives young people the 21st Century skills they need to become informed adults. We’re changing lives by empowering the next generation of consumers with real-world knowledge to navigate through life.
LifeSmarts. Learn it. Live it.
LifeSmarts is NCL’s youth education and scholarship program. It gives teens the chance to compete online and in-person for prizes, and it gives educators valuable teaching resources. LifeSmarts pushes students to use critical thinking skills, introduces them to new experiences, and allows them to forge new friendships with students from across the country. LifeSmarts also improves the quality of life of students who participate, instilling confidence and leadership skills that last a lifetime and have a ripple effect on their communities.

We thank our national partners, FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) and FCCLA (Family, Career and Community Leaders of America). LifeSmarts also partners with agencies and organizations to run state programs, including attorneys general, Jump$tart Coalitions, Councils on Economic Education, Better Business Bureaus, Extension Agencies, 4-H leaders, and others.

Alyssa Simoes
Crosby High School
Waterbury, Connecticut

"LifeSmarts has changed my life for the better in many ways. When I go to college next year, I expect to be well ahead of the curve. What I learned through LifeSmarts is that all of this knowledge is not just for my own personal gain. Working and learning as a team has taught us more than just skills for the competition—it’s about our future. It’s about becoming the next generation of informed consumers. It’s about giving back to our communities and making our world a better place. Before LifeSmarts, I had never been on a plane or traveled to another state without my parents. I now look forward to studying abroad in college, and this is largely due to the confidence I’ve built traveling with LifeSmarts."

HEALTH POLICY
DEFENDING ACCESS, CARE, QUALITY

PROBLEM
Americans are spending billions on healthcare. They need safe medicines that work—that they can also afford—and help making good choices for their families.

SOLUTION
NCL advocates for safe and effective medicines, affordable care, and patient-centered delivery. We operate Script Your Future, a groundbreaking public awareness campaign on medication adherence, which helps consumers live longer, healthier lives.
Defending access to affordable care.
NCL continues to be actively engaged in the nationwide effort to protect the Affordable Care Act, Medicare, and Medicaid through statements, letters, and social media channels. In November 2016, NCL hosted a conference on the election’s impact on the future of healthcare, exploring ways to improve access for underserved and minority populations.

Script Your Future Medication Adherence Team Challenge.
In 2017, NCL’s Medication Adherence Team Challenge returned for its sixth year, challenging inter-professional teams of students from universities across the country to engage in awareness-raising activities in their communities. Each year, NCL awards the student teams—including future pharmacists, nurses, and doctors—for their ability to successfully implement creative outreach activities for local residents using Script Your Future tools and resources.

Championing generics.
In 2017, NCL’s Sally Greenberg (above) was honored by the Association for Accessible Medicines (previously the Generic Pharmaceutical Association) with its inaugural “Champions of Access” award for our work advocating for programs and policies that keep medicines within reach, improving lives and strengthening our economy.

Jennifer’s elderly uncle was diagnosed with Alzheimer’s, and dementia was rapidly setting in. She discovered he had stopped taking medications, refilling prescriptions, and taking care of himself generally. Through friends, she learned about the Script Your Future program at the local pharmacy school at Touro University and reached out for help. She was connected with Ashley, a pharmacy student who went above and beyond to assist in providing care for Uncle Joe.

"Ashley used her experience in medication management to help me make informed decisions on how best to help Uncle Joe. Through her guidance, I switched his pharmacy to a closer one nearby, and she worked with to help me obtain dosage packaging—a time saver that also provided peace of mind."

Visit ScriptYourFuture.org for more.

SCRIPT YOUR FUTURE'S IMPACT
Since 2011, pharmacy schools in 39 STATES have participated in the Team Challenge
NCL has distributed more than 1 million campaign wallet cards in six languages: English, Spanish, Chinese, Vietnamese, Hmong, and Russian.

CREATING A SAFER MARKETPLACE

PROBLEM
Americans face increasingly complicated financial pitfalls and unscrupulous actors. Regularly occurring data breaches help fraudsters craft ever-more sophisticated tactics to entice victims. The ease of communicating and purchasing online has made transactions more convenient and—at times—riskier.

SOLUTION
NCL’s work in fraud, privacy, and telecommunications aims to ensure consumers can navigate the marketplace safely, securely, and with confidence.

10 | 2017 NCL ANNUAL REPORT
Leading the fight against fraud.
NCL operates Fraud.org, America’s go-to resource for consumers, educators, and law enforcement on fraud education and prevention. Through monthly Fraud Alerts and direct counseling, NCL provides interventions for those who suspect a loved one is being scammed and shares data with law enforcement to track trends and criminal activity. In 2017, NCL rolled out major educational efforts on tax fraud education and prevention, as well as on fraudulent coding bootcamps, a rapidly growing industry offering technical training for career-seeking consumers.

Battling the breach epidemic.
Data breaches make the news on a near-daily basis, and at a cost of $7.35 million per breach. NCL has led the fight for a national data security standard, calling on the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), Federal Trade Commission (FTC), and Congress for stronger data security and breach notification regulations. We publish The #DataInsecurity Digest, a biweekly e-newsletter offering analysis on the latest breaches and policy updates. We appear in the news media to discuss the impact of data breaches on consumers’ vulnerability to fraud.

Ask James
Veteran staffer James Perry (above) regularly counsels hundreds of consumers via phone and email exchanges like this one:

Hello James,
I received an invite to be a mystery shopper. I was sent a cashier’s check to deposit to my account and instructed to go to Western Union to wire most of the money to a person in Manila, Philippines. I get to keep a sum for my salary and to cover the wire charges. Am I being scammed?
Thanks, Kevin

Dear Kevin,
Do not wire any money. You are being scammed. You can confirm the check is fake by calling the issuing bank. Please call me at (202) 835-3323 and I can explain more about how this scam works.

FOOD POLICY
CARING FOR AMERICA’S FOOD SUPPLY

PROBLEM
The food marketplace for consumers is quickly changing, and it’s difficult to keep up with the latest claims and reports about nutrition and food safety. And America is in the midst of a food waste crisis, despite 42 million Americans living in food-insecure households.

SOLUTION
NCL helps consumers make sense of product labeling in order to make good decisions for their families and keeps companies accountable for the claims they make on food packaging. In addition, NCL’s innovative work in food waste reduction is inspiring a younger generation to become a part of the solution.
Noa Jordan
Central High School
Tuscaloosa, Alabama

Noa, who helped conduct a week-long food waste audit in her Alabama high school, was disturbed when she learned how much good, uneaten food her fellow classmates were throwing away.

“We were really shocked and disappointed. We expected less than half of the waste we found. Our school wasted 550 pounds of food in the week that we conducted the audit, or an average of 110 pounds a day. With that amount of food, we could save about 500 South City high-needs people from undernourishment in a day.”

“Creating a generation of leaders on food waste. NCL launched the Food Waste Audit Challenge, asking high school students to conduct audits in their cafeterias to investigate the problem. At the 2017 National LifeSmarts Championship, students shared their experiences (above) and helped recover food with the Food Recovery Network. NCL is helping a new generation of student leaders to understand the complexities of our food waste problem and challenging them to identify solutions in their communities.

Defending consumers’ rights to accurate labeling.
In June 2017, NCL joined with the Center for Science in the Public Interest and lawyers for Earthjustice in challenging the government’s delay in implementing a rule requiring chain restaurants, supermarkets, convenience stores, and other food retail establishments to post calorie counts for prepared food and beverages.

30 schools participated in a food waste audit in 2017. In one meal, students from across the country gathered:

465 pounds of unopened food
956 pounds of liquid waste
2,893 pounds of food waste

Noa and her partners plan to continue to work with school administrators to educate Central High School students about food waste and to conduct food wastes audits annually to raise awareness among students.

PROBLEM
An estimated 168 million children are trapped in child labor around the world—many work full-time and more than half in jobs considered dangerous or unhealthy.

SOLUTION
The CLC is a 38-member strong coalition of organizations committed to eliminating child labor globally. Due to efforts by advocates like the CLC and its members, the number of child laborers has been reduced by 78 million in the last 16 years.
Educating and agitating.
Founded in 1989, our Child Labor Coalition (CLC) strives to reduce exploitative child labor in the United States and abroad by raising awareness, advocating before legislators, and by providing a forum for other nongovernmental organizations to collaborate on ending child labor. Consumers might be surprised to learn that child labor is involved in many of the products we use in daily life: clothes, shoes, jewelry, electronic goods, toys, and food are only a few of the 134 goods that the U.S. Department of Labor has identified as being produced with forced or child labor in 70 countries. A new video (above) released by the CLC in 2016 has quickly gained 25,000+ views, helping consumers understand the prevalence of child labor in the manufacturing of goods we all enjoy. The CLC is active on social media, where it raises awareness among American consumers about the shocking scourge of modern child labor.

CLC on Capitol Hill.
The CLC hosted a standing-room-only briefing on Capitol Hill with Nobel Peace Prize Laureate Kailash Satyarthi for World Day Against Child Labour in June 2017 to raise awareness among Hill staffers (left).

Zulema
17 years old
Essay contest winner

Zulema, a high school junior who migrates with her family to follow growing cycles, talks about how disruptive farmwork is for her goal of seeking an education to break out of agriculture.

"I usually struggle when I change schools, because my classes are all very advanced by the time I arrive in the middle of the school year. I get very stressed out about my grades dropping while continuing to work on the side. Not many individuals understand my lifestyle, but I must do what is needed in order to provide for my family."

Each year, CLC member Association of Farmworker Opportunity Programs hosts an essay and art contest to gain insight into the plight of America’s most vulnerable workers.
