US government agents have responded with violence to migrants desperately seeking safety and protection. Ravi Ragbir, executive director of The New Sanctuary Coalition, will broadcast live from the border in San Diego on the importance of the Sanctuary Caravan campaign in the face of this attack. Sanctuary Caravan is a movement to meet, accompany, and witness as members of the Central American exodus and other asylum seekers ask the United States for safety. The movement is rooted in non-violence, shining a light of humanity in the shadows of injustice. Ragbir is in San Diego as part of an interfaith delegation from the Sanctuary Caravan.

New Sanctuary Coalition springs from New York's faith-based and social justice communities and forms a unique family of citizens and immigrants, bound by a love of humanity and mutual respect. For over a decade NSC has created community and safety through its accompaniment program, pro se clinic, popular education series, and activism. NSC believes migration is a right, and the Sanctuary Caravan is a manifestation of their core values.
