

Humanities Majors Earn Salaries Comparable to Other Majors

Data reveal that graduates with bachelor's degrees in the humanities earn salaries comparable to a number of other majors, including business management and public policy. Salaries for humanities majors are also comparable to average earnings for all bachelor's degree holders.

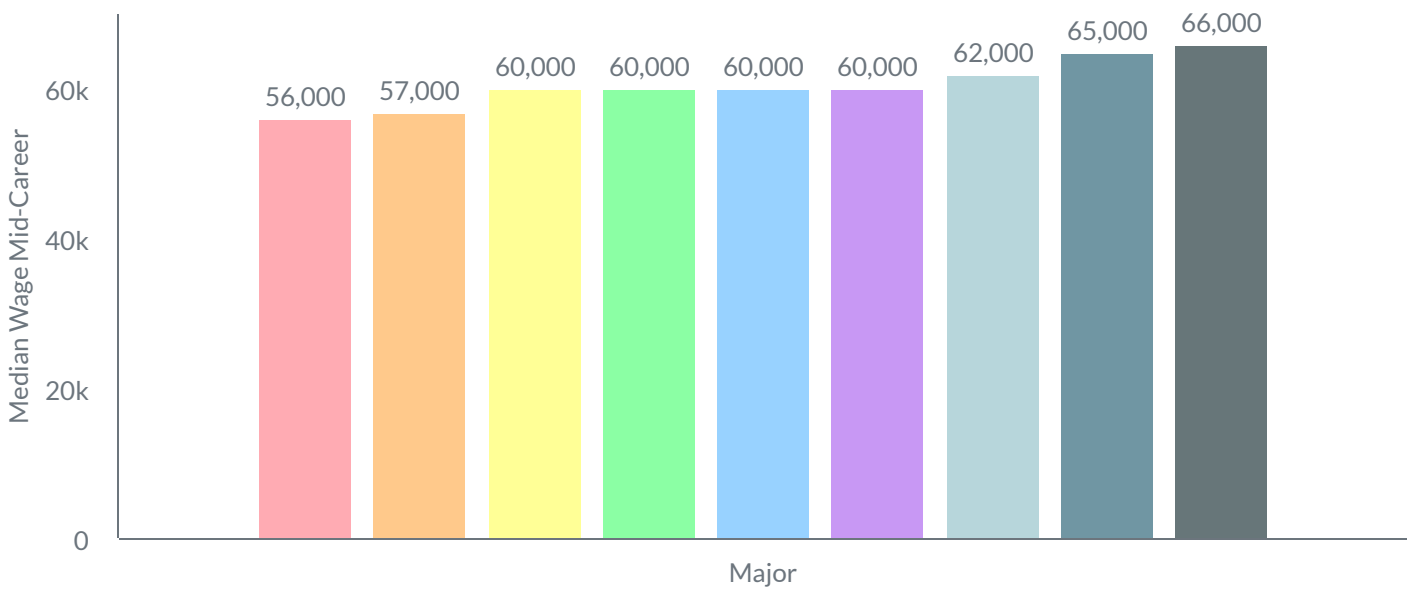

The distribution of annual wages for humanities graduates is similar to average of all bachelor's degree holders

Source: 2018 American Community Survey

Median wages for mid-career humanities bachelor's degree holders are comparable to graduates from other majors

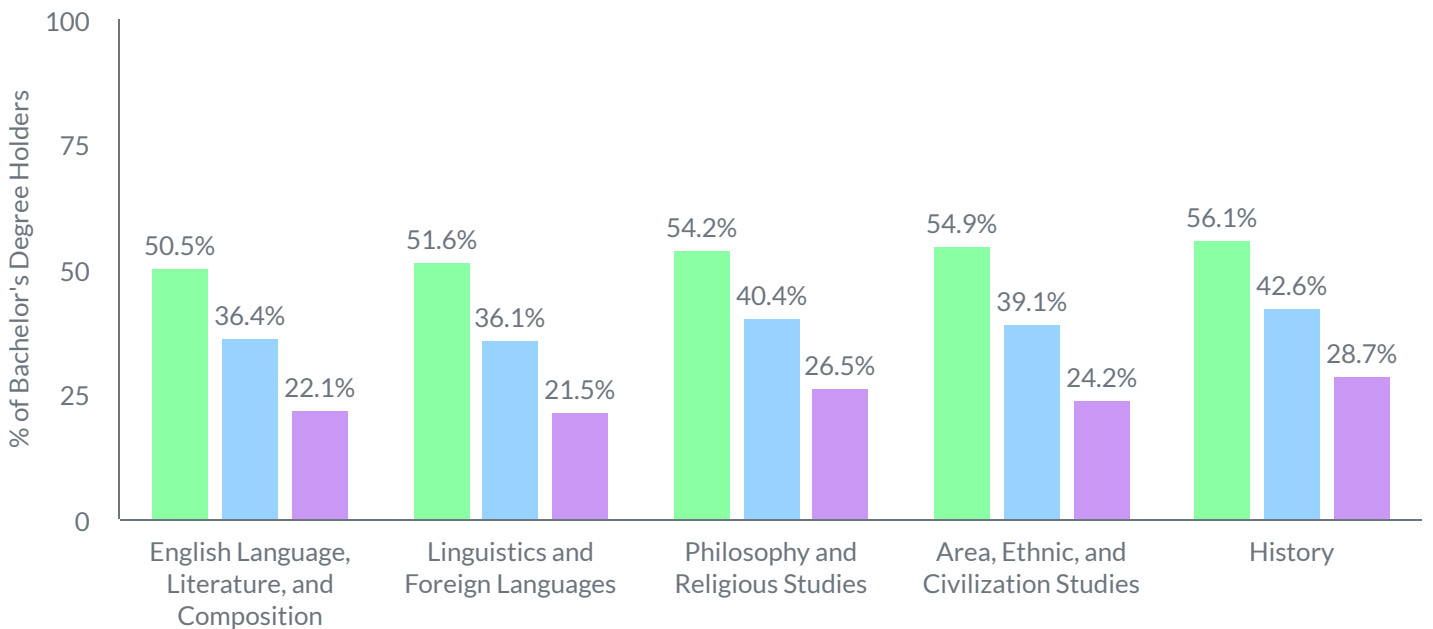

Sociology Anthropology Public Policy and Law Art History Criminal Justice Foreign Language
 Philosophy Business Management History

Source: Federal Reserve Bank of New York, 2019

Humanities degrees prepare students for lucrative careers

Above $60,000 Above $75,000 Above $100,000

Source: 2018 American Community Survey

National Humanities Alliance

www.nhalliance.org