To Whom It May Concern:

Attached to this document is an application for a new passport for me, two photographs, and exhibits sent/prepared by me, with assistance from an attorney. The fee for the passport has been paid at the passport office counter or may be included with this letter.

You will note that the social security number on the application has been left blank. Your notice on the back of the application states that section 6039E of the Internal Revenue code of 1986 requires a passport applicant to provide his/her name ... and social security number. Although congress did pass a provision for "the taxpayer's TIN (if any)", that provision has not yet been enacted into law by publication of enacting regulations in the Federal Register. Therefore the law does not yet apply to the general public, and a social security number is not required.

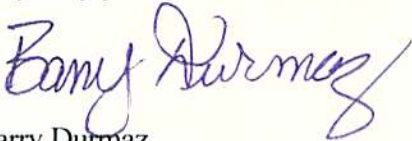

A copy of the pertinent pages from the Code of Federal Regulations Index from the Parallel Table of Authorities and Rules shows that no regulations have yet been adopted for section 6039E. Again, since section 6039E is missing from the table and therefore showing that no enacting regulations have been adopted and published in the Federal Register yet, we find your instructions misleading. If we are in error kindly send us a copy of the enacting regulation published in the Federal Register that makes section 6039E of the I.R.C. of 1986 applicable to the general public.

Please note that this application for a passport is not to be construed or taken as an application of exclusive federal United States Citizenship. This application is for a passport wherein all rights as a citizen of Oregon secured by the constitution of Oregon are maintained while the rights secured by the Constitution of the United States of America are maintained within its limited defined jurisdiction of the Constitution. As the Supreme Court of the United States of America stated in UNITED STATES v. CRUIKSHANK ET AL. (92 U.S. 542): "We have in our political system a government of the United States and a government of each of the several States. Each one of these governments is distinct from the others, and each has citizens of its own who owe it allegiance, and whose rights, within its jurisdiction, it must protect. The same person may be at the same time a citizen of the United States and a citizen of a State, but his rights of citizenship under one of these governments will be different from those he has under the other. Slaughter- House Cases, 16 Wall. 74. ... The people of the United States resident within any State are subject to two governments: one State, and the other National; but there need be no conflict between the two. The powers which one possesses, the other does not. They are established for different purposes, and have separate jurisdictions. Together they make one whole, and furnish the people of the United States with a complete government, ample for the protection of all their rights at home and abroad. True, it may sometimes happen that a person is amenable to both jurisdictions for one and the same act.”

I appreciate your attention in this matter and look forward to receiving my passport soon.

Very truly yours,

PARALLEL TABLE OF AUTHORITIES AND RULES

The following table lists rulemaking authority (except 5 U.S.C. 301) for regulations codified in the Code of Federal Regulations. Also included are statutory citations which are noted as being interpreted or applied by those regulations.

The table is divided into four segments: United States Code citations, United States Statutes at Large citations, public law citations, and Presidential document citations. Within each segment the citations are arranged in numerical order:

- For the United States Code, by title and section;
- For the United States Statutes at Large, by volume and page number;
- For public laws, by number; and
- For Presidential documents (Proclamations, Executive orders, and Reorganization plans), by document number.

Entries in the table are taken directly from the rulemaking authority citation provided by Federal agencies in their regulations. Federal agencies are responsible for keeping these citations current and accurate. Because Federal agencies sometimes present these citations in an inconsistent manner, the table cannot be considered all-inclusive.

The portion of the table listing the United States Code citations is the most comprehensive, as these citations are entered into the table whenever they are given in the authority citations provided by the agencies. United States Statutes at Large and public law citations are carried in the table only when there are no corresponding United States Code citations given.

This table is revised as of January 1, 2001.
