Authors' Roundtable and Reception
Room: Medaille Formal Lounge in Medaille Hall (Hors D’oeuvres and Beverages will be served)

This roundtable will highlight two critical topics in the study of the American polity: polarization and presidential power. We will hear from two distinguished scholars of American politics today. Each author will present for approximately 20 minutes and the remainder of the time will be used for questions from the audience. We encourage all participants to attend since the lounge also contains an area for networking.

Dr. James E. Campbell, University at Buffalo, SUNY, will present his latest work, Polarized: Making Sense of a Divided America (Princeton University Press, 2016).

The Hugh I. Carey Institute for Government Reform (Wagner College) and the Center for the Advancement of Public Integrity (Columbia Law School) are conducting a comparative study of ethics reforms in selected states, with a focus on relevant state constitutional provisions. The study encompasses a review of state constitutions to identify provisions that may serve as models for New York and other states. This project reviews the history of state constitutional change as an instrument of reform in response to crises in governance, to determine the strategic benefits of constitutional reform from both political and legal perspectives. Based on these analyses, the study will offer concrete recommendations for proposals and ideas to bolster public ethics and efficient state government.

At this session, the panelists will provide an overview of their ongoing research, providing examples and cases of government and political reform that has been achieved through amending state constitutions, the political background and setting for change, and the keys to success.
