

CAMBODIA PROGRAM DIRECTOR

Oaktree is an ambitious non-for-profit, with the mission of young people leading, demanding and creating a just world. The International Engagement Portfolio is responsible for managing Oaktree's engagement in our partner countries: Timor-Leste and Cambodia. We partner with local not-for-profits to deliver innovative development projects with a focus on education, youth empowerment, and youth participation. We also manage grants and philanthropy work, and domestic policy and advocacy.

As the Cambodia Program Director, you are responsible for Oaktree's strategy and partnerships in Cambodia. You report directly to the Head of International Engagement and sit on the International Engagement Leadership Team and Oaktree's Extended Leadership Team.

As Cambodia Program Director, a typical day might look like:

- Developing and executing Oaktree's Cambodia strategy with your team;
- Overseeing development and implementation of our youth empowerment project in Cambodia, including financial and project management with travel opportunities to conduct in-country reviews;
- Implementing international development theories and monitoring and evaluation tools;
- Scoping for potential new partnerships and projects in Cambodia;
- Producing case studies or articles on partnerships, projects or project processes;
- Managing your Cambodia team including recruiting of new team members;
- Establishing external networks with other practitioners working for social change in Cambodia;
- Working with other teams to increase Oaktree's impact.

Who we are looking for:

- You're passionate about international development work and social justice;
- Has knowledge of international development theories, and monitoring and evaluation tools;

- You're passionate about the role of young people in social change;
- You take initiative and thrive outside of your comfort zone;
- You've the ability to think of the big picture, and unafraid to challenge the status quo;
- You have excellent written and verbal communication skills;
- You have the ability to lead and build a high-performing team;
- Bonus points: you have experience studying or travelling in Cambodia;
- Bonus points: you have experience in monitoring and evaluation, financial management or people management.

We value will over skill, determination over degrees, and passion over years of experience. So go for it. Put your name forward!

What you will get out of it:

- Be given the autonomy to manage Oaktree's engagement in Cambodia;
- Have the support and training to rapidly develop a broad range of skill sets, including in people and project management, strategy and communication;
- Build extensive personal and professional networks in Australia and Internationally;
- Have a significant impact on the movement to create a more just world.

TIME COMMITMENT: 2-3 days a week | 1 year (flexible) | This is a volunteer position that may include international travel
