

METRO IAF NOVEMBER LEADERSHIP TRAINING via ZOOM

Please Register by Monday, November 9th, 2020

In this moment of pandemic illness and loss of life, political paralysis and lack of leadership, economic upheaval, and long-standing racial injustice, how can ordinary people operating as talented leaders make meaningful change to better our communities, our cities, our states, and our country for their families? Participants will be invited to explore the universals of broad-based organizing, refined over the Industrial Areas Foundation's 80-year history, as essential practices to address the critical issues of our day: containing the pandemic, criminal justice reform, wealth inequality, affordable housing, living wage jobs and the right to organize, immigrant rights, environmental racism and climate change, among many others.

The training will be a mix of lecture, reading/small group discussion, and role plays.

Attend the DAY TRAINING of your choice (select below) & both EVENING TRAININGS

DAY TRAINING (Pick ONE):

Friday, November 13th

Saturday, November 14th

Day Training: 10:00am-8:30pm EST / 9:00am-7:30pm CST with 2-hour break between sessions (see schedule below).

EVENING TRAINING (attend BOTH):

Tuesday, November 17th

Both Evening Session will be at:

Tuesday, November 24th

7:30-9:00pm EST / 6:30-8:00pm CST

Key questions to be addressed in the training are:

- Why is power always the first issue in organizing? Why must we understand power in all its dimensions and know how to organize and exercise it consistent with our values to make change?
- Why is organization and why are mediating institutions critical to building long-term power to make large-scale change?
- Why must leaders engage in effective action to develop ourselves as public leaders, to build the power of our organizations, and to secure the public respect and change we demand and fight for and for which we negotiate?
- Why are relational meetings and house meetings the most important actions for a leader in our democracy?
