What is a co-op?

A co-op is a cooperative, member-owned business. The Oshkosh Food Co-op is a membership organization that connects local residents with healthy food choices.

A food co-op offers many products like any other grocery store, yet it is owned by its members who have purchased membership shares. Food Co-ops tend to source more local and organic options than traditional grocery stores. However, the Oshkosh Food Co-op also hopes to offer a variety of products and price points to serve all of the customers who enter our store. Our goal: Community-owned and community-minded.

Benefits

When you join a food co-op, you are investing in a community-owned grocery store. You'll know that you are keeping your food dollars in the community. Members may also earn a dividend, based on the financial performance of the co-op. Additional benefits may include case and bulk discounts, workshop/event discounts and a complimentary subscription to co-op publications.

Supporting the Co-op

Membership

You can purchase a non-refundable one-time membership in the co-op for $180. (You may name one other person in your household to the account.) If necessary, you can pay the membership fees over time. With your membership you receive the right to vote on official co-op matters and attend our annual meeting. See our website for complete details.

Member Loans

As a member, you may make a loan to the co-op. We'll offer interest payments to you over the course of the loan. With this investment, you can help the co-op save money on interest charges.
