THE NEED FOR ENGAGEMENT & ADVOCACY

Developing a midstream natural gas infrastructure is increasingly complex and fraught with misunderstanding. As companies develop midstream components such as pipelines, compressor stations, and other related facilities necessary to bring this vital natural resource to market other stakeholders like home owners and municipalities struggle with new concepts and worry about the unknown. That is why companies must be well prepared to engage stakeholders and operate in an open and transparent manner with communities while still maintaining their own business interests. Successfully developing natural gas assets in collaboration with communities, local governments, and regulators is an essential part of building the infrastructure and the Pennsylvania Midstream Association is committed to helping it's members realize the full potential of building a midstream network throughout Pennsylvania.

OUR MISSION

The Pennsylvania Midstream Association works in collaboration with communities and regulators in Pennsylvania and beyond to help promote a stable environment for economic activity associated with the distribution of natural gas, and to help build a favorable climate in which to construct the necessary infrastructure that supports the growing demand for this natural resource. The Pennsylvania Midstream Association imparts best practices for stakeholder engagement and public participation to our members, and honors well-established principles for building long-term relationships with communities to produce favorable outcomes for our members.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Our primary members are the owners, operators, and developers of midstream assets throughout the state of Pennsylvania. Our association is also proud to welcome members such as construction professionals, land agents, right of way professionals, engineers, pipeline manufacturers, and other providers of professional services to the midstream sector. Together, we are focused on ensuring that Pennsylvania's energy infrastructure is built safely and responsibly along with adequate public participation and stakeholder engagement.

BECOMING A MEMBER

PAMA membership is open to all Pennsylvania midstream sector service providers including natural gas pipeline companies and companies that provide midstream goods and services. Membership is at the corporate level. Annual dues are based on members' commitment levels as either a Founding Member, a Directing Member, or a Stakeholder Member.

PAMA STRUCTURE

A small staff and simple organizational structure that leverages subcontracted services for periodic activities such as event planning, enable PAMA to devote maximum resources to its mission. Founding Members are given a seat on PAMA's Board of Directors to serve two year terms. The Board Chairman is elected by the membership from among the seated Board Members and serves a one-year term. PAMA's committees focus expressly on specific midstream issues allowing the Association to exact qualified and repeated positive results.
