

To Whom it May Concern:

On behalf of PJTN's trustees and board, we are excited to share our big news with you regarding our strategic focus on today's college students through our PJTN Internship program. While your leadership and institution do the hard work in educating your students, our goal is to add to your students skill-set through our hands-on internship program "Igniting the Torch for the Next Generation."

A 501(c)(3) non-profit advocacy organization, PJTN gathers Christians, Jews and all people of conscience who stand against the alarming rise of anti-Semitism, in this generation. We concentrate on media and produce award-winning documentary films and programs that are distributed and shared with a potential audience of 2.6 billion viewers. Our organization is 12 years old and it reaches the 'tree tops' (government, political and policy leaders) and the grassroots around the world through interviews and advocacy.

Our PJTN Internship is hands-on and combines learning and doing. Project-based learning at its best; our interns learn, build and understand the processes of creating and distributing media on a global platform. With our state-of-the-art technology and wide-ranging relationships (the UN, legislatures, media leaders), we provide our interns with a meaningful experience that gives them a real edge as they complete their studies and take their first professional steps.

PJTN interns should have an interest in following categories:

- Communications
- On-camera/radio
- Social media
- Research & Writing
- Education

Please direct all interested students to www.pjtn.org/internships for application information. I appreciate your time and consideration in recommending qualified students to apply to our internship program. If you have any questions, I may be reached at 615-778-0202.

Sincerely,

Hannah Rawiszer, Ph.D.
