In 2014, progressive forces united to form the Campaign for New York Health — a statewide coalition dedicated to passing legislation guaranteeing the right to health care in New York State. Leading the charge are member organizations representing nurses, doctors, seniors, patients, and advocates who built a movement to pass the New York Health Act — our state's universal single-payer health care bill — three times in the Assembly with huge majority support. Nearly a majority of the Senate now endorses the bill. Combining the relentless attacks on health care at the federal level with a motivated base to win in New York State, now is our time to make sure that New York embraces a health care system that is universal, publicly accountable, comprehensive, and affordable. We desperately need a health care system that will reverse decades of inequality through progressive funding; end the horrors of delaying needed care due to medical costs; and relegate medical-related bankruptcy to a footnote in history books. Advocates point out that this legislation would end the tiered system of care available to people based on the type of health insurance they have, helping to reduce shameful racial disparities in access to care and health outcomes. This important reform simply cannot come soon enough.
