

THE MAXIMUM INCOME PILOT PROJECT

"Finding a Better Way to Make the Rich Pay"

Ontario's Liberal government has spent nearly 10 years talking about poverty reduction—while cutting social assistance. Endless cycles of consultations, studies, a Commission to Review Social Assistance, and a recent proposal to pilot a Basic Income project have been used to defer real action on poverty.

For a change, let's talk about policies to improve many lives now, by redistributing the excessive wealth the Liberals have helped the 1% accumulate—a proven method of reducing poverty.

The Basic Income pilot suggests giving a tiny sample of poor people $1,320 a month ($1,820 for those with disabilities) for three years. But everyone on social assistances deserves that increase now. It will take $13 billion a year to make that happen, which the Maximum Income Project can help generate by dealing with the hoarding problem of the rich.

Join us in designing this Maximum Income Project while calling for an immediate raise to social assistance rates. We will adapt some of the tactics the Liberal government uses—including "consulting" with people with "lived experience of wealth" on how best to tax them.

See reverse for details on "consultations." →