What is Big Steps about?

Big Steps is about valuing every child.

Everyone knows that every stage of a child's education is important, and to value every stage, a government must value every educator.

Big Steps is early childhood educators' campaign to win government-funded pay that truly reflects the value of their work.

Why does Big Steps matter to my child?

When you become a parent the phrase time flies just doesn't cut it anymore. It wasn't that long ago your child was crawling – now they're learning to ride a bike!

Your child's mind is joining the dots at an amazing pace right now, which is why these fleeting first years are so important. It's also how early childhood educators are able to unlock and shape your child's future chances and choices in life.

With your child's first day of primary school just around the corner, the Government needs to act now to value every stage of your child's education and fund professional pay for every educator.

How can I support Big Steps?

Across Australia families are standing with their children's educators in different ways - ask your child's educators how you can be involved. You can also keep up to date by signing up on the website and following Big Steps on Twitter, Facebook and Instagram
