

Dear Candidate,

On day one in office, the climate crisis will be awaiting you. What you do in the short time we have left to act will mean the difference for our children and future generations.

Solving this crisis is the most important mission of our generation and you've barely made a peep about it during this campaign. If you want to run our cities, states or our country, you must begin making climate change a priority TODAY.

For the rest of the campaign, every speech you give, every appearance on TV and every debate I want you to say "climate change is a major challenge and here is how we will fix it!"

We have the technology, the workforce and the will -- but people won't know that unless the candidates talk about it during the campaigns.

We're counting on you. Make it your mission today!

Sincerely, the following undersigned Oregonians:
