Lost and Found

Ads reprinted from the classified ad section in the Santos Times, the last bastion of utter nonsense and one-eyed views.

Lost: Moral Compass (pictured)

Somewhere between the towns of Fossil Fuel and Climate Denialism, my prized moral compass. I have fabricated representing the community on the basis that I had one of these compasses in full working order, but I lost the instructions in a pothole in the botched-up Narrabri airport tender fiasco. The compass has sentimental value only because I've lost interest in using one.

If found, please drop off to Santos Times front desk marked, Hollywood.

On the side of the useless Fossil Fuel to Climate Denialism Rd. One moral compass totally busted that can never work again. Seems former owner stuffed up the settings permanently and never understood the simple, yet vital instructions. If restored, such an ancient relic would work great as a prop for an aspiring Nat politician to take to a pre-selection interview.

Can the owner slink incognito into the Santos Times to collect your relic. Caution, management may be trying to get it to work and may not want to give it up immediately.
