STAND UP FOR EACH OTHER, CHICAGO

Suspensions can have long-term effects on students' lives. They increase the chance of dropping out and may impact college options.

SUFEO is a group of law students who help K-12 students understand their rights within the school system. We advocate on behalf of students to guide them through the suspension appeal process and facilitate communication between families and schools.

Contact us if:

- A student has been unfairly suspended
- A student feels a suspension should be taken off his/her record
- You have questions about a school's discipline policy
- You need help talking to school administration

SUFEO operates in partnership between the Loyola ChildLaw Clinic and the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights
