Ninety per cent Australian support for voluntary assisted-dying

Vote Compass is a tool developed by political scientists for exploring how personal views on a wide range of issues align with those of the candidates in the Federal election.

ABC Vote Compass data shows that support for voluntary assisted-dying has risen 15 percentage points in the last six years to 90 per cent.

"Terminally ill patients should be able to end their own lives with medical assistance."

- In 2013 it recorded 75 per cent voter support; increasing to 77 per cent in 2016.
- Support cuts across gender, religious and political party lines, with more than 70 per cent in all subgroups now in favour. Greens, One Nation, Coalition and Labor voters are united in their strong support.
- Women and men give equal support. While those with no religion were the strongest supporters, nearly 75 per cent of Catholics, Protestants and people of other religions were also in favour.
- In 2017, Victoria became the first state to legalise voluntary assisted-dying. Parliaments in Western Australia and Queensland are now considering legislation.

Vote Compass responses have been weighted by gender, age, education and place of residence to match the Australian population, creating a nationally representative sample. The sample size for this report is 450,479 respondents.

Christians Supporting Choice For Voluntary Assisted Dying

christiansforvad.org.au

We are Christians who believe that, as a demonstration of love and compassion, those with a terminal or hopeless illness should have the option of a pain-free, peaceful and dignified death with legal voluntary assisted dying / voluntary euthanasia. This is strongly supported by the majority of Australian Christians.

MBMC provides a voice for people with disability in the VE reform debate. MBMC represents the interests of people with disabilities who wish to exercise choice in all aspects of their life, including choice at the end of life, with the view that choice and control are a fundamental human right for everyone.

MBMC argues that people with disabilities know how it feels to lose personal autonomy through their ongoing fight for self-determination, independent living and disability rights.

MBMC believes that people with disabilities, who have struggled to control their own lives and bodies, must be allowed to maintain control and autonomy throughout their life, especially at its end.

Doctors for Assisted Dying Choice

drs4assisteddyingchoice.org

We are a national organisation of Australian medical practitioners, both current and retired, who are committed to having a legal choice of providing information and assistance to rational adults, who, for reasons of no realistic chance of cure or relief from intolerable symptoms, would like to gently end their lives.

Assistance may be by doctor provision of medication for the patient to consume, or by doctor-administration.

Lawyers for Death with Dignity acknowledges the need for people with profound suffering to have the legal choice for a medically assisted and dignified death.

The current law says suicide is not illegal, but assisting suicide is. People in a terminal state may have profound, unbearable suffering and be in the undignified position of being unable to end their life without assistance.

Advances in medicine have improved life expectancy, but South Australian law has not changed to reflect the often forgotten deterioration in quality of life that a longer life expectancy may bring.

Paramedics Supporting Choices in Dying is an advocacy group promoting the rights of people to make decisions regarding their end of life wishes.

To go without pain, without trauma, without breaking the law, without endangering others and without suffering. To go gently, peacefully and with dignity.

We support good palliative care, encourage the use of Advance Care Directives and advocate for law reform to legalise the choice for voluntary euthanasia and voluntary assisted dying.
