

The Human Legacy: Destruction vs. Conservation

Faces of Conservation

Presented by Judy Semroc

Judy Semroc is a conservation specialist with the Cleveland Museum of Natural History. Semroc presents the Faces of Conservation, which features creatures affected by human activity. With macro photography, she captures the “faces” of these species and their important roles in the environment. Semroc will expand on these organisms which are vital to their ecosystems as well as practices that can be implemented to protect them.
