

Breakout Summary:

The film "Toxic: A Black Woman's Story" was shown followed by a panel discussion. In this short film, viewers were invited on a journey of perspective transformation. Viewers followed Nina in this day-in-the-life drama, and saw the world through the eyes of a successful black woman who must navigate an unjust world while trying to protect the world she has created for herself and her family. The screening was followed by a panel discussion on the intersections of racism, health equity, sustainability, and community perception.

Presenters:

- Katrice D. Cain, Racial Disparities & Health Equity Program Director, First Year Cleveland, Case Western Reserve University
- Frances Mills, Director of Community Health Initiatives, City of Cleveland Office of Minority Health
- Danielle Price, Director of Community Health Engagement, Government & Community Relations, University Hospitals

Watch a recording of this session here: Film Screening of Toxic: A Black Woman's Story and Panel Discussion | Sustainable Cleveland 2020 Virtual Summit

Information and Resources shared during breakout:

- Toxic short film website: <https://toxicshortfilm.com>
- Pregnancy and Infant Loss (PAIL): <https://www.pailconnect.org/>
- State of Ohio equity plan: <https://coronavirus.ohio.gov/static/MHSF/Executive-Response.pdf>
- <https://www.lgdoula.com>
 - <https://www.birthstoriesincolor.com>