Council Mileage Allowance Payments

For the first time the TaxPayers' Alliance has collated the mileage payments made by every local authority in the UK. Motorists are one of the most overtaxed groups in the UK and face sky-high fuel bills. They can at least claim a tax free allowance from their employers if they use their car for work, but many council employees receive well in excess of this rate.

The HMRC Approved Mileage Allowance Payment (AMAP) is 40p per mile. Many council employees on Local Government Employers Association agreed terms and conditions are able to claim 25p per mile more than this at 65p per mile.<sup>1</sup> This additional payment is a taxable perk.

Sandwell Council are cutting their mileage rates as part of their efficiency savings. They estimate moving in line with the HMRC approved rates will save them at least £1 million a year.<sup>2</sup> Significant and necessary savings must be found across the board, so all local authorities should drop their payments to HMRC's recommended rate – 40p per mile since 2002 and 45p per mile from 6 April 2011 as outlined in the latest budget.

The key findings of this research are:

- £427 million was paid out in mileage allowances in 2009-10 by councils to staff, compared to £402 million in 2008-09.
- Lancashire paid out the most in mileage allowance payments in 2009-10 – a total of nearly £8.8 million.
- 80 per cent of councils paid above the HMRC approved rate of 40p per mile. The average council rate was 56.45p per mile in 2010-11. Only 80 councils paid the HMRC rate of 40p in 2010-11.
- In 2010-11 a driver claiming for 250 miles at the average council rate would be £41.13 better off than someone paid the HMRC rate.

- For 500 miles, a driver paid the average council rate would be £82.26 better off.
- For 1,000 miles, a driver paid the average council rate would be £164.52 better off.
- It is not possible to calculate the potential savings had all councils paid 40p per mile in 2009-10 because of the complicated data; rates; and thresholds. Undoubtedly it would be in the tens of millions.

Guide to tables

- Top 20 payments for mileage in 2009-10
- Full council breakdown – rates paid per mile; excess paid over HMRC rate; total payments for mileage

Background

In 2002 Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs set an Approved Mileage Allowance Payment (AMAP) rate of 40p for the first 10,000 miles and 25p thereafter - regardless of engine size or fuel type. This applies to all workers in the United Kingdom in the public and private sectors. If employers choose to pay rates above this, tax and national insurance is paid on the excess.

Many local authorities pay mileage rates that are nationally agreed by Local Government Employers (the body which represents local authorities on the National Joint Council [NJC]).<sup>3</sup> These rates were 65p in 2010-11, 25p more than the HMRC approved rate. Those who are paid less than the AMAP rate can claim relief against their earnings for the difference. Paying rates at HMRC guidelines involves no calculation of tax and national insurance, alleviating administrative costs as well as saving the actual difference between the rates.

In the Budget 2011, George Osborne announced plans to increase the AMAP rate to 45p per mile, from 6 April 2011. This reflects the increasing costs involved in running a car, including higher fuel costs and rising road taxes. The payments are not only to reimburse the costs of fuel but also a contribution to the running expenses and depreciation of the car. This is still 20p per mile lower than what the majority of councils pay their employees.

Sandwell Council estimate that moving down to HMRC approved rates will save them at least £1 million a year.<sup>4</sup> The nationally agreed NJC rates are costing councils millions more each year than they need to, when private sector and self-employed workers – and some council workers – receive the 40p agreed rate, which is set by HMRC based on evidence of the cost of motoring.

Local Government Employers are consulting over 2011-12 rates as they propose a complete overhaul of the car allowance rates system. Switching to HMRC approved rates would be an easy and affordable solution.

Sources and Methodology

- A significant number of councils could not provide figures for total mileage payments for the 2010-11 financial year and therefore this incomplete data has not been included. As our request was submitted on 01 February 2011 the 2008-09 and 2009-10 data was the most recent full year data available.
- For the sake of simplicity we have chosen mileage rates for “casual users” for the first 8,500 miles or the nearest relevant threshold used by the council. We selected casual users because it offered the best comparison with a self-employed person. Many essential users receive a lump sum in addition to their mileage rate, where casual users just claim a single rate per mile.
- We have used the rates paid for vehicles with an engine size of 1200CC (or the nearest size for which the council pays). In 2009 the Department for Transport calculated “the mean engine capacity of all cars licensed in Great Britain has remained unchanged for three years at 1,751cc. However, the mean engine capacity of new cars fell by 3.6 per cent to 1,692cc.”<sup>5</sup> We selected this engine size because 1200-1450cc is the upper band chosen by the NJC. And this is still significantly lower than the average engine size on Britain’s roads.
- Where a council only pays the bottom and middle bands of the NJC scale [451-999cc and 1000-1199cc] this has been recorded in the notes as “council do not pay extra for 1200cc”.
- The difference between the HMRC rate and the council’s rate does not include any tax and national insurance deductions.
- Where a council pays the same rate regardless of engine size this has been stated in the notes as “flat rate”.
- Where possible the full break down of the total mileage paid out has been included in the notes. Stating, Casual; Essential; Lump Sum; Lease etc if the council makes this distinction.
- Some Scottish councils pay rates based on Scottish Joint Council agreements. These figures are 53.65p per mile for the first 1,000 miles. They then recommend 43.65p per mile for miles thereafter until 8,500 miles. Where a council pays SJC rates we have shown the rate for miles between 1,001 and 8,500 (43.65p per mile). This is clearly stated in the notes.

<http://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/+http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/vehicles/licensing/vehiclelicensingstatistics2009>

- Some councils pay different mileage rates for different staff. In general this is due to the council changing its mileage rate rules, but needing to protect members of staff who were employed under a different contract. “The Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations (TUPE) preserve employees' terms and conditions when a business or undertaking, or part of one, is transferred to a new employer”<sup>6</sup> This means that some staff are paid NJC rates while others who joined the council after a certain date are paid a different rate. Where this is the case it has been marked clearly in the notes, but only when we have been given explicit information regarding TUPE.
- All information is correct as of 05/04/2011. Any corrections or clarifications received after this date have not been included.
- If councils operate more than one rate, for example NJC and HMRC rates, and it has been indicated which the majority of employees receive, this has been clearly stated in the notes.
- Some councils change their rates mid-way through the financial year, where this is the case, the rate that was in place for the majority of the 12 month period has been used and clearly stated in the notes. If a change occurred exactly 6 months into a financial year then the most recent rate was used.
- In some instances councils could only provide the total amount paid in a calendar year, not financial year. Where this was the case, it has been clearly stated in the notes.
