MPs' Resettlement Grants

The General Election of 2010 saw a massive turnover of Members of Parliament. After the expenses scandal of the previous summer, many MPs decided against standing for re-election. Others were voted out at the election. Departing MPs are receiving a one-off Resettlement Grant of 50-100 percent of their annual salary, dependent on their age and length of service. The first £30,000 of this is tax-free and is in addition to a generous parliamentary pension.

The Resettlement Grant is the equivalent of a redundancy payment, so MPs find it easier "adjusting to non-parliamentary life".<sup>1</sup> When a MP wins an election, he or she enters a contract with a term of up to five years. If they then go on to lose the election this is not the equivalent of redundancy – it is the end of their contract. This distinction is even more important now that the coalition government are arguing for fixed-term parliaments, with Labour promising the same in their manifesto. Beyond that, MPs are entitled to this payment even if they decide not to run for re-election and have therefore resigned, not been fired.

As an alternative, the Senior Salaries Review Body (SSRB) have recommended giving MPs a month's salary for every year of service up to a maximum of 9 months' pay, and only for those MPs that lose their seat.<sup>2</sup> However, the pay-offs would still be overly generous considering that a MPs' monthly pay was £5,397 in 2008-09. Other workers that come to the conclusion of a fixed-term contract are not recompensed in this way – MPs should not be either. In our submission to Sir Christopher Kelly's inquiry into MPs' pay and expenses, we recommended awarding defeated MPs one month's pay. That should be sufficient for MPs while they look for new employment.

The key findings of this research are:

- 218 departing MPs are entitled to a total of £10.4 million – an average of £47,706.
- Defeated MPs are entitled to £3,312,328 in total. Under the SSRB's recommended changes, these same MPs would have received £3,276,080 – a difference of £36,248.

Sources and Methodology

1. The Resettlement Grants were calculated using an MP's length of service and age based on the method shown in Table 1.<sup>3</sup>
2. Length of service and age were sourced using parliamentary online records, MPs' own websites or other online sources.
3. The calculations are based on a May 6th 2010 election and 2009-10 parliamentary salaries (£64,766).
4. Length of service was calculated using 'full years' from date of election to May 6th 2010.
5. A full list of MPs and their Resettlement Grants is in Table 2.
6. We are not responsible for the accuracy of information contained within the sources used. However, if mistakes have been made we are happy to accept any corrections.
