FROM: Members of the Independent Review Board
RE: Trusteeship Recommendation regarding Local 107
DATE: February 25, 2010

I. RECOMMENDATION

The Independent Review Board ("IRB") recommends to the IBT General President that Local 107 be placed in Trusteeship pursuant to Article VI, Section 5(a) of the IBT Constitution. It appears that the Local is not being operated for the interests of members. Despite prior warning to the Local's officers of the problem, the Local officers and their agents appear to have continued a practice of influencing work assignments in the movie and trade show industries to favor family and friends over other members.<sup>1</sup>

On October 21, 2009, the IBT's General Counsel advised that the Local was considering surrendering jurisdiction over the movie industry. On January 21, 2010, the Local's counsel met with the IRB's Chief Investigator to discuss the investigation. On January 25, 2010, Local 107 principal officer William Hamilton ("Hamilton") sent a letter to IBT General President James Hoffa stating that the Local's Executive Board had voted to cede its jurisdiction over the movie and entertainment industry to another Local. (Ex. 246)<sup>2</sup> Hamilton asked the General President's permission to pursue the matter with the Director of the IBT's Motion Picture and Theatrical Trade Division. (Ex. 246)

II. SUMMARY

In 1996, based upon an IRB recommendation, the IBT placed Local 107 in Trusteeship. In December 2000, shortly after the Local was released from the IRB-recommended Trusteeship, the IRB issued a report to both the IBT and the then and current Local 107 principal officer, Hamilton, summarizing deficiencies in the Local's work referral practices in the movie and trade show industries. The IRB's 2000 report stated that ". . . individuals who had ties to Local 107 officials joined the Local and, despite the absence of seniority, were sent to lucrative positions in the movie industry while there were unemployed Local 107 members seeking work." (Ex. 1 at 5) Subsequent to the IRB's report, in May 2001, the Local created written work referral rules for the movie and trade show industries.

<sup>2</sup> There was no mention of Local 107 surrendering jurisdiction over the trade show industry to another Local. (Ex. 246)

Subsequent investigation has established that these rules were not followed despite representations to the members, the National Labor Relations Board ("NLRB") and the IRB that they governed work assignments.

The pattern of nepotism and favoritism that existed at Local 107 before 2000, when the IRB issued the report described above, continued after the IRB's 2000 report. Relatives and friends of the Local's officers and the trade show steward and the Teamster movie captains continued to work in the movie and trade show industries while there were unemployed Local 107 members with better qualifications and experience, who did not work. The unenforced written rules appear to have been camouflage to conceal the continuation of the past practice.

The 2001 movie referral rules provided that the Local would supply employers with the entire "A" referral list of fifteen individuals with "the highest combination of years of experience in this industry and number of productions", and the corresponding resumes. (Ex. 2 at 2) The employers would select drivers from this list. (Ex. 2 at 2-3) Pursuant to these rules, once the "A" list was exhausted, the Local would provide employers with the entire "B" list, which included all other individuals "in industry experience order", and their resumes for the employers to select additional drivers. (Ex. 2 at 3)

Sometime before March 2008, the written referral rules were amended to provide that there would be only one movie referral list. Employers would receive this list, along with resumes, and the employer would select drivers.<sup>3</sup> According to these rules, placement on this single referral list was "based on the highest combination of: Driving Experience, CDL [commercial driver's license] qualifications, Industry experience, Specialty equipment." (Ex. 5 at 2) In the Local's October 2, 2008 response to an IRB document request, the Local was unable to provide any documents regarding how individuals were placed on the movie referral list. (Exs. 6 and 107) Moreover, although according to the written rules, driving and industry experience were factors determining an individual's placement on the single referral list, for the list of names included below the ten names on the "Movie A List", the referral document stated: "the below list is not [sic] seniority order." (Ex. 113)

<sup>3</sup> When shown these undated rules during their 2009 IRB sworn examinations, neither Anthony Frasco, then the business agent for the movie and trade show industries, nor Hamilton were able to state when they were created. (Ex. 3 at 51-52; Ex. 4 at 31-33) These rules were provided to the IRB's Chief Investigator's office during the March 2008 books and records examination.

In any event, as discussed below, instead of providing the referral lists and resumes to the employers for selection by employers as the 2001 and subsequent rules both provided, the Local's business agent and Teamster movie captains, whose appointment the Local influenced and whose positions the Local negotiated the terms for in the collective bargaining agreements, decided who worked on movie productions, absent a specific request for an individual from an employer.

Symptomatic of the ties between work assignments and being in favor with Local officers, between at least 2000 and 2004, members who received discretionary work assignments in the movie industry through the Local, worked unpaid at principal officer Hamilton's home, including helping him move. In 2000, Hamilton, who at that time was involved in determining who worked on movie productions, assigned at least three individuals, who performed personal work for Hamilton, to work on the movie Unbreakable.

It appears that, even after the Local wrote the 2001 work referral rules and after a September 2003 settlement agreement with the NLRB which required the Local to post a notice stating "we will not fail to follow our established rules in the operation of our referrals for the film and video industry" (Ex. 178), the rules remained unenforced.

The Local officers despite these representations to the members, the NLRB and the IRB that the written rules were being followed took no action to ensure they were. Member complaints put them on notice that the rules were ignored.

Nepotism and favoritism continued to influence the Local's work referrals in the movie and trade show industries. For example, as detailed below, while there were out of work Local 107 members, the brother-in-law of Anthony Frasco ("Frasco"), then both the Local's Vice President and business agent for the movie and trade show industries, was referred to work, even though he was not a member of the Local. Then trade show steward Michael Conway's ("M. Conway") relatives, including one who joined the Local shortly after being released from prison, were referred to movie and trade show work while there were unemployed Local 107 members not receiving work. In June 2009, the Local paid $38,750 to settle a complaint Local 107 member Frank Gizzi ("Gizzi") filed in November 2007 with the NLRB which alleged that the Local failed to refer him to movie work.

As discussed below, individuals with close ties to the Local's officers and stewards were referred to trade show industry work in violation of the requirement in the Local's written referral rules that an individual must be current in his dues to be referred to work. For example, a nephew of M. Conway, then the trade show steward, received numerous work referrals in the trade show industry while he was suspended from the Local for non-payment of dues.

In approximately October 2008, while the IRB's investigation was ongoing, the Local allegedly surrendered to employers complete control over hiring members for jobs in the movie industry. According to Local officers, as of October 2008 the Local's role was limited to sending a summary of approximately 200 resumes in alphabetical order to production companies for the companies to choose drivers. No benefit to the Local's members in the Local surrendering control of the movie work referrals was apparent. As discussed below, the Local also allegedly surrendered control of work referrals in the trade show industry.

As a practical matter, it appears this was a strategy to insulate nepotism and favoritism in work referrals from review, much as the unenforced written rules were. Many production companies would not have any basis to know which workers to select. The evidence supports the conclusion that nepotism and favoritism continued to influence work assignments on movie productions after October 2008. For example, as detailed below, there were approximately 161 individuals with resumes submitted to the Local available for work in approximately July 2009. (Exs. 153, 188, 268)<sup>4</sup> Yet, beginning in approximately July 2009, the principal officer's sister and the Vice President's brother-in-law, who had less experience and qualifications than most not selected, both worked for several months on a SONY movie production. (Exs. 70, 188, 268) In addition, apparently after Frasco recommended him to the Local 107 movie captain for the SONY movie, one of the Local's part-time Trustees, who had been laid off from his position at a freight company and had no prior movie experience, worked on the movie. Pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement for the SONY movie, the minimum weekly rate was $2,500. There were other Local 107 members available to work on the SONY project. For example, Vincent Dodd ("Dodd"), who had been laid off from DHL before Hamilton's sister and who had a Class B commercial driver's license ("CDL"), which Hamilton's sister and Frasco's brother-in-law did not have, did not receive work on the SONY project.<sup>5</sup>

<sup>4</sup> As of July 2009, 208 individuals had submitted resumes to the Local seeking work. (Ex. 188) Approximately 47 of these individuals worked on the movie The Last Airbender (Ex. 153), leaving approximately 161 individuals available to work. (Exs. 188, 153 and 268)

<sup>5</sup> According to the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation, a Class A commercial driver's license is required to "operate any combination of vehicles with a gross combination weight rating of 26,001 pounds or more, provided the gross vehicle weight rating of the vehicle or vehicles being towed is in excess of 10,000 pounds." (Ex.

Indeed, during the investigation, a document appears to have been created to falsely explain Hamilton's sister's work assignment. As detailed below, this document was given to the IRB in the investigation. It was an email from a person working on the SONY production requesting the principal officer's sister, Donna Hamilton ("D. Hamilton"), to work on the project. The document was dated one month after D. Hamilton had begun work and was also after the IRB made a document request to the Local for all employer requests for individuals to work. In response to the IRB's document request, the Local produced written requests for six other individuals, including a long-time close friend of the co-captain on the movie, but did not produce any employer request for D. Hamilton. All of these requests were dated before the member began work. D. Hamilton was laid off from a customer service position at DHL and did not have a commercial driver's license or any experience working as a driver. The apparently manufactured request was produced to the IRB at the conclusion of D. Hamilton's sworn examination in September 2009. It was dated over a month after she began work.

243) A Class B commercial driver's license is required to "operate any single vehicle with a gross vehicle weight rating of 26,001 pounds or more or any such vehicle towing a vehicle having a gross vehicle weight rating of not more than 10,000 pounds." (Ex. 243)

Although claiming that only the employers selected the members to work, the Local's officers admitted in certain circumstances, such as on some commercials, the business agent or movie captain continued to control who worked. For example, before the Secretary Treasurer's brother began to work on the lucrative SONY project in July 2009, either Secretary-Treasurer Shawn Dougherty ("S. Dougherty") or Frasco assigned S. Dougherty's brother to work on two short commercials after the brother, Kevin Dougherty ("K. Dougherty"), was laid off from a freight company.

The Local influenced who were captains and the captains in turn influenced the selection of members for work. The terms of employment for the captains were defined in the collective bargaining agreements the Local negotiated with the production companies. In September 2009, in response to an inquiry, the Local's Secretary-Treasurer informed a production company that Local 107 member Frank Conway ("F. Conway") was the only captain available to work on a project. The company made no request for any specific individual to be captain. After that, three of the four additional members who worked on that project included F. Conway's two sons and a former Local 107 officer.

III. INVESTIGATIVE FINDINGS

A. Background of Local 107

Local 107 is located in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. As of December 7, 2009, it had approximately 2,429 members who were employed in various industries including freight companies and the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 7)<sup>6</sup> According to a December 7, 2009 Local 107 employer roster, the combined movie and trade show industries were the tenth largest employer of Local 107 members. (Ex. 7)<sup>7</sup>

Local 107 has had a history of ties to the Philadelphia La Cosa Nostra ("LCN"). On June 17, 1966, Local 107 business agent John Gorey and bookkeeper Rita Janda were murdered inside the Local's offices. (Ex. 248 at 1) Local 107 member Gregory Carchidi, who at the time was employed at the Local as a janitor and later was the trade show steward from approximately 1979 to 1996, was tried and acquitted of the homicides. (Ex. 248 at 2-3; Ex. 251 at 14-

<sup>6</sup> In January 2009, Teamster Local 470 merged into Local 107. (Ex. 9) Former Local 470 officer Anthony Volpe, who retired in August 2009, is the cousin of former Local 107 trade show steward Michael Conway. (Ex. 10 at 6-7; Ex. 102 at 7; Ex. 75)

<sup>7</sup> According to the December 7, 2009 Local 107 employer roster obtained from the IBT, 49 members were employed in the convention center and movie and commercial industries. (Ex. 7) It is likely that there were more members employed in those industries who were categorized as casuals on the employer roster. The employers who employed more Local 107 members than the combined movie, commercial and trade show industries were the following: DHL, 142 members; YRC, 132 members; Sears Roebuck, 126 members; US Food Service, 115 members; Penn Jersey, 93 members; New Penn, 92 members; UPS, 71 members; Wilmar, 59 members and Arkansas Best, 57 members. (Ex. 7)

15)<sup>8</sup> In 1968, Local 107 member Robert DeGeorge was murdered outside Local 107's offices. (Ex. 254)

Michael Facchiano ("Facchiano") was the Local 107 Vice President and a business agent until his retirement in 1989. (Ex. 252 at 5) According to news reports, in February 1981, Facchiano was seriously wounded when he was shot multiple times in the Local 107 parking lot. (Ex. 247)<sup>9</sup> On October 19, 1982, Facchiano and Joseph Cimino ("Cimino"), then the principal officer of Local 107, were observed at The Saloon, a restaurant in Philadelphia, with Salvatore Merlino, Lawrence Merlino and Philip Leonetti who have been publicly identified as members of the Philadelphia LCN Family. (Ex. 253; Ex. 258 at 63-64)

In 1991, the Independent Administrator permanently barred Cimino, then the President and principal officer of Local 107, from the IBT based upon Cimino's knowing association with Nicodamo Scarfo ("Scarfo"), the then boss of the Philadelphia LCN. (Ex. 8) According to Philip Leonetti, a protected witness and the former underboss of the Philadelphia LCN, while Local 107 President, Cimino used his union position to arrange employment for organized crime members and associates referred to him. (Ex. 8 at 6-7) The Independent Administrator found that Cimino met with Scarfo and other members of organized crime at The Saloon. (Ex. 8 at 7) During one of these meetings at The Saloon, Scarfo told Cimino, "I'm the union, I run Local 107." (Ex. 8 at 7)<sup>10</sup>

<sup>8</sup> Carchidi was removed as the trade show steward after the imposition of the 1996 IRB-recommended Trusteeship over Local 107. (Ex. 251 at 22; Ex. 34) Carchidi's co-defendants included Anthony DiPasquale and then Local 107 officer John Sullivan. (Ex. 248 at 1-3) DiPasquale was acquitted. (Ex. 248 at 3) News articles between 1998 and 2000 reported that DiPasquale had ties to the Philadelphia LCN. (Ex. 263) Sullivan's conviction was overturned on appeal. (Ex. 254)

<sup>9</sup> According to news reports, earlier in February 1981, Facchiano had found an explosive device under his car. (Exs. 247 and 254)

On October 25, 1991, Thomas Ryan ("Ryan") replaced Cimino as the Local's principal officer. (Ex. 11) Based upon IRB-recommended charges, on August 20, 1996, Ryan was suspended from the IBT for five years for breaching his fiduciary duties and embezzling Local 107 funds. (Exs. 12-13) In February 1999, based upon additional IRB-recommended charges, Ryan was permanently barred from the IBT for violating the terms of his suspension. (Exs. 14-15)

More recently, on December 29, 2008, the IRB recommended that Local 107 chief DHL steward Peter Innaurato ("Innaurato") be charged with knowingly associating with Joseph Massimino ("Massimino"), a member and Underboss of the Philadelphia LCN. (Ex. 16) Innaurato <sup>10</sup> On October 16, 1991, District Court Judge David N. Edelstein affirmed the Independent Administrator's decision. United States v. IBT, 777 F.Supp. 1130 (S.D.N.Y. 1991). On May 27, 1992, the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit affirmed the District Court's decision regarding Cimino. United States v. IBT, 964 F.2d 1308 (2d Cir. 1992).

had joined the Local in approximately May 1990 after being introduced to Cimino. (Ex. 17 at 5, 7-10; Ex. 239) In approximately 2000, Hamilton, the Local's principal officer, appointed Innaurato chief steward for DHL. (Ex. 17 at 13-14) Hamilton and Innaurato were friends and socialized outside work. (Ex. 17 at 31, 32-34, 36-40) For example, Innaurato testified that he had been to Hamilton's home approximately two dozen times, including for the holidays. (Ex. 17 at 33-34)

The evidence of Innaurato's purposeful association with LCN Underboss Massimino included their exchange of letters while Massimino was incarcerated. (Exs. 18-19)<sup>11</sup> In

<sup>11</sup> In a letter dated September 11, 2006 to Innaurato, Massimino wrote,

Tell Kelly I send my best and Billy to [sic]. Well buddy be cool and take care. When you get a chance drop me a line. If you need me I'm right here. Thanks buddy.

(Ex. 18) In response, in a letter dated September 30, 2006, Innaurato wrote to Massimino,

Like I said, tell me if I can do anything for you. I'll wait to hear from you and the idea that I'm your friend will keep me strong. My mom's feeling better, by the way. Thanks for always asking about her. Kelly & Billy & Johnny Garb told me to send you their best.

(Ex. 19) Innaurato testified that the "Kelly" referenced in the two letters was Local 107 member Joseph Kelly. (Ex. 17 at 41-43, 56) Kelly, who worked in the trade show and movie industry, joined the Local in April 1991 shortly after his January 1991 release from prison after serving a sentence for a federal drug trafficking conviction. (Ex. 20 at 4-7; Ex. 23) Massimino was one of Kelly's codefendants in that drug case. (Ex. 20 at 14) Kelly claimed that he did not meet Massimino until after Kelly was released from prison in approximately 1991. (Ex. 21 at 30-31)

order to resolve the IRB-recommended charge, on April 9, 2009, Innaurato entered into an Agreement pursuant to which he permanently resigned from all IBT positions, including IBT membership. (Ex. 22)

On June 22, 2009, the IRB recommended that Michael Conway, then the Local 107 chief steward for the Pennsylvania Convention Center ("PCC") and a movie captain, be charged with knowingly associating with Ryan, who had been permanently barred from the IBT. (Ex. 31) Between February 2002 and October 2008, there were at least 46 telephone contacts between M. Conway and Ryan. (Ex. 31 at 2) On December 10, 2009, after a hearing, the IBT General President suspended M. Conway from all IBT positions including IBT membership and any steward or union

Innaurato claimed that the "Billy" referred to in the letters was Local 107 member William Gervasi who worked at DHL. (Ex. 17 at 41, 43) Gervasi, whom Innaurato had introduced to Massimino approximately seven years prior to Gervasi's October 2008 sworn examination, denied sending regards to Massimino through Innaurato. (Ex. 24 at 9-10) Local 107 principal officer William Hamilton denied knowing Massimino. (Ex. 3 at 90)

Innaurato claimed that, although he mentioned "Johnny Garb" in his letter to Massimino, he did not know "Johnny Garb." (Ex. 17 at 42) Innaurato claimed that "Johnny Garb" saw Innaurato one day on the street and asked him to send regards to Massimino. (Ex. 17 at 42) It appears that the "Johnny Garb" referred to in Innaurato's letter was John Garbarino. (Ex. 25 at 58-59) In 2004, John Garbarino was arrested for illegal gambling with, among others, Antonio Capetillo. (Ex. 25 at 8-9) As discussed below, shortly after serving a sixty day sentence for illegal gambling, Capetillo joined Local 107. (Ex. 25 at 5-7) Capetillo worked in the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 25 at 6, 15, 18-34) As discussed below, after joining the Local, Capetillo did not pay dues for almost two years even though he received work assignments in the trade show industry. (Exs. 26-28) It appears that Garbarino worked at the Pennsylvania Convention Center in October and November 2006. (Ex. 29) representative positions for ten years. (Ex. 240) The matter is pending. In approximately September 2009, M. Conway's brother, Frank Conway, who also worked as a movie captain, was elected by the six members on the PCC seniority list to replace M. Conway as the PCC steward. (Ex. 32 at 103-104)

B. 1996 Trusteeship

On August 9, 1996, based upon an IRB recommendation, the IBT placed Local 107 in Trusteeship. (Exs. 33 and 34) The IBT's Trusteeship notice stated that the grounds for the Trusteeship included, among other things, that the net assets of the Local had decreased drastically between 1991 and 1995; despite the Local's poor financial condition, since at least 1991, the Local's officers, employees and Trustees had received sizeable bonuses; the Local officers made significant expenditures of Local funds for their personal benefit and for inadequately documented entertainment expenses. In addition, the Trusteeship notice stated that the Local failed to have even rudimentary financial controls, that officers and members of the Local had continuing contacts with organized crime elements and that some of the expenditures of Local funds benefited such persons. (Ex. 34) At the time the Trusteeship was imposed, current Local 107 principal officer William Hamilton was the Local's Recording Secretary and a business agent and Frasco, who retired in November 2009 from his positions as the Local's Vice President and business agent for the movie and trade show industries, was a Trustee on the Local's Executive Board. (Ex. 35)

The Local was released from Trusteeship on October 31, 2000. (Ex. 36)

C. Local 107 Officers

1. President William Hamilton

Hamilton joined Local 107 in 1967. (Ex. 37) He was a shop steward for twenty years at McLean Trucking. (Ex. 66 at 4) In 1990, Hamilton was elected a Trustee on the Local's Executive Board and became a business agent. (Ex. 66 at 5-6)

Since the Local was released from Trusteeship on October 31, 2000, Hamilton has been Local 107's principal officer. (Exs. 36; Ex. 3 at 5; Ex. 38 at 4) In April 2008, Hamilton was appointed to replace Frank Gillen ("Gillen") as an International Vice President after Gillen was suspended for five years from office for testifying falsely during his IRB sworn examination when he denied having contact with former Local 107 principal officer Ryan who had been permanently barred from the IBT. (Exs. 41 and 42)

Hamilton has been the President of Joint Council 53 since August 2007. (Ex. 43; Ex. 3 at 6) Effective January 1, 2010, Hamilton became the principal officer of the Pennsylvania Conference of Teamsters where he had been Vice President since approximately 2009. (Ex. 3 at 6; Ex. 149)

In 2008, Hamilton was paid $102,662 from Local 107, $61,813 from the IBT, $30,300 from the Pennsylvania Conference and $19,200 from the Joint Council. (Exs. 45-48) His total salary from those entities was $213,975 in 2008. (Exs. 45-48)<sup>12</sup>

Hamilton's son, Kevin Hamilton, is a Local 107 member employed at the Kimmel Center where he holds the only full-time position and is the steward. (Ex. 3 at 88-89; Ex. 201)<sup>13</sup> Hamilton's sister, Local 107 member Donna Hamilton, received lucrative work on the SONY production in July 2009, after being laid off from DHL. (Ex. 50 at 10)<sup>14</sup>

2. Secretary-Treasurer Shawn Dougherty

<sup>12</sup> Since January 2001, Hamilton has been a Trustee of the Philadelphia Teamsters Health and Welfare and Pension Funds. (Ex. 49)

<sup>14</sup> Between approximately 1997 and 2004, Hamilton's son, William, worked in the movie and trade show industry. (Ex. 56 at 15; Ex. 276) For example, in November 2001, Hamilton's two sons, William and Kevin, and his father, William, worked on the movie Signs. (Ex. 276) In addition, Hamilton's son, William, worked as a movie captain. (Ex. 4 at 13-14) Hamilton's son, William, died in May 2004. (Ex. 57; Ex. 50 at 8) After he retired from the Local, Hamilton's father worked on some movie productions. (Ex. 3 at 21, 88; Ex. 276) He died in March 2009. (Ex. 50 at 18)

Shawn Dougherty joined Local 107 in approximately January 1984. (Ex. 51) He worked for various Local 107 employers including Airborne Express, where he was a steward, and Ameriport Rail Yard. (Ex. 52 at 5-7) In June 2005, he was appointed a Trustee on the Local's Executive Board. (Ex. 53) After an election, Dougherty took office as Secretary-Treasurer in January 2006. (Ex. 54) In 2008, Local 107 paid Dougherty $95,429. (Ex. 45)

Since approximately August 2009, S. Dougherty has been the business agent for the movie industry replacing Frasco. (Ex. 55 at 13) As discussed below, S. Dougherty's brother, Local 107 member Kevin Dougherty, worked on movie and commercial productions after being laid off from U.S.F. Holland ("Holland") in April 2009. (Ex. 58 at 7-8, 11-14) For example, after being laid off from Holland, in May and June 2009, K. Dougherty, who had no movie experience, worked on a television show, a short movie and two commercials before working for several months on the lucrative SONY movie beginning on approximately July 6, 2009. (Ex. 58 at 11, 15-16, 21-22) K. Dougherty acknowledged that either his brother or Frasco sent him to work on the commercials. (Ex. 58 at 15-16, 21)

3. Vice President Walter "Dan" Bosak

Walter "Dan" Bosak ("Bosak") joined Local 107 in April 1967. (Ex. 59) He was a Trustee on the Local's Executive Board from 1993 until the Local was placed in Trusteeship in 1996. (Exs. 35, 60-62; Ex. 63 at 7-8, 13-14) In 2000, then IBT Trustee Gillen appointed Bosak a business agent. (Ex. 40) In 2008, Local 107 paid Bosak $94,750. (Ex. 45) After Frasco's retirement effective November 30, 2009, Bosak became the Local's Vice President. (Exs. 79 and 204)

Bosak's brothers, John and George Bosak, worked in the movie industry. (Ex. 63 at 5; Ex. 64 at 4-7; Ex. 237) The Local's former Trustee and dispatcher, John Dooley ("Dooley"), is Bosak's nephew. (Ex. 63 at 15; Ex. 67 at 7; Ex. 68) In addition, Local 107 member William McCleery ("McCleery"), who joined the Local in September 1997, is Bosak's nephew. (Ex. 69 at 8) As discussed below, McCleery was the co-captain on the 2009 SONY movie. (Ex. 70)

4. Recording Secretary Ed Slater

Ed Slater ("Slater") joined the Local in March 1986 and was employed at Mac Steel. (Ex. 71) He was elected a Trustee in 2000. (Ex. 40)<sup>15</sup> After Frasco's retirement in November 2009, Slater became the Local's Recording Secretary and a business agent. (Exs. 79 and 204) As discussed below, Slater's brother-in-law, Thomas Maglio

("Maglio"), who was not a Local 107 member, worked on movie productions in Local 107's jurisdiction. (Ex. 72 at 7-9; Ex. 73)

5. Trustees

The Local's three Trustees were not full-time employees of the Local. (Ex. 45) Trustee Ted Mastrogiovanni joined the Local in 1974. (Ex. 74) According to his dues records, he was employed at Sears. (Ex. 74) He was elected a Trustee in 2000. (Ex. 40)

Trustee Michael Nugent ("Nugent") joined the Local in approximately August 1987. (Ex. 76) From approximately 1987 to 2004, Nugent worked for Red Star Express. (Ex. 77 at 4-5; Ex. 78) From September 2004 to approximately April 2009, when the company closed, Nugent worked at Holland. (Ex. 78; Ex. 58 at 8) Nugent was the steward at Holland. (Ex. 4 at 137) As discussed below, on May 6, 2009 shortly after Holland closed in late April 2009, Nugent, who had no movie experience, began to work on the SONY movie. (Ex. 70; Ex. 58 at 23)<sup>16</sup>

Trustee Everett Shaw was a member of Local 470 before it merged into Local 107 effective January 2009. (Ex. 249) Shaw, who joined Local 470 in October 2003, was employed at

DePaul Hauling. (Ex. 249) After Frasco's retirement effective November 30, 2009, Shaw was appointed a Trustee. (Exs. 79 and 204)

6. Former Vice President Anthony Frasco

Frasco joined Local 107 in September 1968. (Ex. 79; Ex. 80 at 5) He worked at Consolidated Freight for 17 years. (Ex. 80 at 5) Prior to the 1996 Trusteeship, Frasco was a Trustee on the Executive Board. (Ex. 35; Ex. 80 at 6) In 1999, Gillen, then the IBT Trustee of Local 107, appointed Frasco a business agent. (Ex. 81) When the Local was released from Trusteeship, Frasco was elected Vice President and continued as a business agent. (Ex. 40)

Frasco was the Vice President from 2000 until his retirement on November 30, 2009. (Ex. 4 at 4-7; Ex. 79) Prior to August 2009 when he gave up responsibility for those industries, Frasco was the business agent for the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 4 at 7, 26) Sometime after August 2000, Frasco had replaced Hamilton as the business agent for the movies. (Ex. 232 at 18; Ex. 38 at 14; Ex. 3 at 7) As discussed below, Frasco's brother-in-law, Robert Kaznica ("Kaznica"), who was not a Local 107 member, worked in the movie and trade show industries after being laid off from his warehouse position where he was a

Teamster Local 929 member. (Ex. 83 at 6, 18) Kaznica also worked on the SONY movie in 2009. (Ex. 83 at 17, 23)<sup>17</sup>

D. The IRB's 2000 Report Regarding Deficiencies in Local 107 Work Referrals

In 2000, the IRB conducted the sworn examinations of approximately thirty-three Local 107 members who worked in the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 1 at 4) In addition, the two IBT-appointed Local 107 Trustees, the assistant Trustee, Hamilton, Frasco, John Morrone, III ("Morrone, III"), then the movie transportation coordinator, and M. Conway, then the PCC steward, were also examined. Local 107's counsel, Thomas Kohn ("Kohn") represented the majority of the Local 107 members whose sworn examinations were conducted in connection with the IRB's 2000 investigation including Hamilton, Frasco and M. Conway. (See e.g. Exs. 38, 56, 63, 64, 80, 96, 97, 232, 233, 241)

On December 21, 2000, the IRB issued a report both to the IBT and to Local 107 principal officer Hamilton describing the deficiencies in the work referrals in the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 1) At that time, the Local did not have any written rules governing work referrals. (Ex. 1 at 2-3) The IRB's report stated, "[t]he absence of rules and their enforcement has resulted in repeated allegations of favoritism in work assignments."

(Ex. 1 at 3) The IRB report stated that individuals with ties to Local 107's officers were referred to lucrative movie work and to work at the PCC while there were unemployed members looking for work. (Ex. 1 at 4-5)

By letter dated January 9, 2001, the then IBT General Counsel stated that the Local would implement written rules for referrals to work in the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 85) In this letter, the IBT General Counsel stated that "reliable records will be kept and will be available for inspection." (Ex. 85)

The Local ignored this commitment. Frasco, who was the Local's business agent for the movie industry for many years, testified that he was not aware of any IRB report on the deficiencies in the referrals to movie and trade show work. (Ex. 4 at 7-8, 25-26) Similarly, S. Dougherty, the Local's Secretary-Treasurer since 2006 who took over as business agent for the movie industry in August 2009, testified that he never read the IRB's 2000 report regarding deficiencies in the Local's work referral practices. (Ex. 55 at 34)<sup>18</sup> Hamilton testified that he believed that the 2001 movie referral rules came about as a result of the IRB's report. (Ex. 3 at 48)

E. 2001 Movie Referral Rules

As a result of the IRB's December 2000 report regarding the deficiencies in the Local's movie and trade show referral practices, in May 2001, the Local created written referral rules for the movie industry and for the trade show industry. (Ex. 2) Robert Baptiste, Esq. ("Baptiste") assisted the Local in formulating these rules. (Ex. 2; Ex. 67 at 11-12) Kohn, who had represented the Local in 2000 and continues to represent it, and Hamilton were copied on Baptiste's letter sending these rules to the IRB. (Ex. 2) The officers made no effort to ensure these rules were enforced. As detailed below, these rules were not implemented.

Pursuant to these written referral rules, the Local created two movie referral lists: an A list and a B list. (Ex. 2) According to the rules, the A list would consist of fifteen individuals arranged in order of industry experience based upon "the highest combination of years of experience in this industry and number of productions."

S. Dougherty was seeking work in the movie and trade show industries. (Ex. 52 at 8-14, 33-34)

(Ex. 2 at 2) In addition to other requirements, such as possessing a current driver's license, in order to be eligible for placement on the A list, individuals must "have had full-time employment in the industry with at least (3) productions or sixty (60) days verifiable experience in the movie industry with an employer under contract with Teamsters Local 107." (Ex. 2 at 2)<sup>19</sup> According to the 2001 rules, the B list would consist of "all other eligible individuals arranged in industry experience order." (Ex. 2 at 3) The minutes of the May 20, 2001 general membership meeting stated, Pres. Hamilton then discussed the new guideline for the movie, theater and trade show work list. Under the guidance of Bob Baptiste and Tom Kohn, the Local has developed new rules which will distribute the work more fairly. Pres. Hamilton said because of the past trusteeship, work was given to the friends of the Trustee and that practice is long over.

(Ex. 271)

The 2001 rules also provided that individuals on the A or B movie lists must not be "on another "A" List with Local 107." (Ex. 2 at 2) At some point, the written movie referral rules published in May 2001 were modified to allow

<sup>19</sup> The 2001 rules did not specify that individuals seeking referrals must have a commercial driver's license. However the 2001 rules required that such individuals must have a "current DOT medical certificate" which is applicable to individuals with commercial driver's licenses. (Ex. 2 at 2) The subsequent versions of the rules did not contain the DOT medical certificate requirement. (Exs. 5 and 87)

Local 107 members who were on an A list at another employer to be included on the A list for the movies. (Ex. 86 at 2; Ex. 2 at 2) As a result of this change, the individuals on the seniority list at the PCC were permitted to be included on the A list for the movie industry. When asked about this modification, Frasco, who was an officer and the business agent in charge of enforcing the rules, testified that he was not certain when or why the modification was made and that convention center workers always worked both movie and trade show work. (Ex. 4 at 27-30) Hamilton testified that he believed that this modification was made because the Local was concerned about discrimination suits. (Ex. 3 at 48-50)

According to the 2001 written referral rules,

[t]he Union will provide the employer with the entire "A" List and their resumes from which the employer will select and interview persons for possible employment. Once the "A" List is exhausted, the Union will provide the employer with the entire "B" list and their resumes.

(Ex. 2 at 3) The rules provided that, "[t]he Local Union Dispatcher shall maintain written records concerning all aspects of the operation of the referral service, including the time of referral calls." (Ex. 2 at 4) Dooley, the former Local 107 dispatcher, testified that he, Hamilton and Frasco worked with Baptiste to create the rules. (Ex.

67 at 11, 68) Hamilton was aware of the rules (Ex. 3 at 51-52), but never ensured that they were complied with. Frasco never put them into effect. In sum, they were window dressing to appear as if Local 107 was attempting to correct its referral practices while the practice of favoritism remained entrenched.

In practice, although the 2001 and subsequent referral rules provided that referral lists would be provided to employers for the employer to select drivers, the Local, either through the Local's business agents or the Teamster movie captain, actually controlled who worked on movie productions. The Local controlled who would be a movie captain. Former Local 107 dispatcher Dooley, who held that position from June 2000 to late 2002, testified that when he was the dispatcher, Hamilton, Frasco and Morrone, III, the then movie captain, selected who worked on movies. (Ex. 67 at 16-17)<sup>20</sup> During his October 2008 IRB sworn examination, Local 107 movie captain John Sullivan ("Sullivan") testified that under the referral rules, after individuals from the A list were called, Frasco gave him

<sup>20</sup> Dooley stopped being a dispatcher in late 2002. (Ex. 67 at 7, 9-10, 36; Exs. 91-92) In approximately April 2005, Dooley resigned as a Local Trustee in order to run against Hamilton in the election that fall. (Ex. 67 at 9; Ex. 93) Dooley testified that one of the reasons he decided to run against Hamilton was that family and friends of the Local's officers were being referred to work. (Ex. 67 at 30-31) Dooley lost the election.

the names of additional drivers to call. (Ex. 89 at 23, 7-9)<sup>21</sup> F. Conway, who worked as a movie captain, acknowledged that "the Union would fill the job." (Ex. 90 at 23) In October 2008, M. Conway testified that ". . . Tony [Frasco] will tell you who he wants or he'll give you a list of guys. For awhile they had their own A list, so you went off of that, again, according to qualifications. . . ." (Ex. 102 at 42) M. Conway testified that "most times" Frasco would tell him who to pick from the list. (Ex. 102 at 42) During his October 2008 IRB sworn examination, movie captain Greg Cimino ("G. Cimino") testified that in 2008 "the Hall" gave him names of individuals to work on movies including on The Wrestler, Tenure and Transformers. (Ex. 94 at 46-48, 50, 52-59)<sup>22</sup> For example, according to Cimino, the producer for Transformers did not make any requests for particular drivers. (Ex. 94 at 59) When asked

<sup>21</sup> As discussed below, although in October 2008 movie captain Sullivan referred to an "A" list (Ex. 89 at 7-9, 23), the referral rules created sometime before March 2008, provided that there was a single movie referral list, not an "A" list and a "B" list as the prior rules had provided. (Exs. 2 and 5)

<sup>22</sup> Cimino, who joined the Local in August 1983 and first worked as a movie co-captain in approximately 2003, is the son of Joseph Cimino, the Local's former principal officer who was permanently barred from the IBT in 1991 for knowing association with organized crime figures. (Ex. 8; Ex. 94 at 18; Ex. 95; Ex. 96 at 3, 8) Joseph Cimino died sometime prior to April 2000. (Ex. 97 at 41) According to G. Cimino, in 1991 he took a withdrawal card from the Local. (Ex. 96 at 4-6) In approximately August 1999, Cimino returned to active membership and began to work out of the Local's hiring hall. (Ex. 96 at 6-7; Ex. 98) He started working on the movie Unbreakable in April 2000. (Ex. 96 at 6-9)

how individuals were hired for the movies prior to the 2008 changes discussed below, principal officer Hamilton testified, ". . . I assume we just gave the captains their names and the qualifications, and that's how people were hired, I guess." (Ex. 3 at 60-61) In addition, in an October 2, 2008 letter to the IRB, the Local's attorney acknowledged that the Local had referred individuals to work before the Local allegedly surrendered that authority in approximately October 2008. (Ex. 6)<sup>23</sup>

F. Joseph Cassella's NLRB Complaint

By letter dated September 30, 2003, in response to a complaint then Local 107 member Joseph Cassella ("Cassella") filed with the NLRB, the NLRB's Regional Director described a settlement agreement pursuant to which Local 107 was required to post a notice stating, in part, "WE WILL NOT fail to follow our established rules in the operation of our referrals for the film and video industry" and "WE WILL follow our established rules, which will be based on objective criteria, and any revision of these rules, for referring individuals to film and video industry work." (Ex. 178) Despite the representations made in the

<sup>23</sup> In his October 2, 2008 letter to the Chief Investigator, the Local's attorney stated, ". . . in that the Local has decided to cease referring individuals and will merely forward resumes to employers. . ." (Ex. 6)

notice to the members, the Local officers and employees continued to ignore the rules they had created.

In his complaint to the NLRB, Cassella alleged, among other things, that the Local's "referral system has been operated to provide favoritism and lack of uniformity in referral procedures and layoff procedures." (Ex. 178) According to the NLRB Regional Director's September 30, 2003 letter to Cassella, "[a]lthough the Union has failed to follow its established referral rules, there was insufficient evidence that you personally would have been referred to film industry work if the Union had acted in a nondiscriminatory fashion." (Ex. 178)<sup>24</sup> This letter was copied to both Kohn and Hamilton. (Ex. 178)<sup>25</sup>

In this regard, the film producers that sought referrals from the Union's hiring hall during the relevant time period preferred or required that their drivers maintain an CDL-A license, a qualification that you do not have, and the Union referred employees with CDL-A licenses to those employers. Indeed the Union did not refer all of the employees on its referral lists who possessed CDL-A licenses for work on those films. Moreover, contrary to your assertion, the referral rules do not require the Union to refer employees on its lists in seniority order but only that the Union submit the seniority lists to the employers for selection of employees. The Settlement Agreement provides, inter alia, that the Union follow rules based upon objective criteria in the operation of its hiring hall.

(Ex. 178)

<sup>25</sup> It appears that after the Local agreed to post the notice, the NLRB declined to issue a complaint in the Cassella matter. (Ex. 178)

The minutes of the Executive Board meeting on August 26, 2003, the month before the NLRB Regional Director's letter described above, contained the following statement,

President Hamilton then discussed the on-going problems with the movie referral list and informed the board that a new set of rules were being illustrated in hopes that the new rules will be problem free and fair for all on the list. We are trying to avoid any more crap at the labor board. Everyone will be kept informed.

(Ex. 114) Although the Local in September 2003 was required to post a notice stating that it would not fail to follow its referral rules, as detailed below, subsequent to this, the Local continued to fail to follow its referral rules. The whole Executive Board was on notice.

G. 2001 Trade Show Industry Referral Rules

In May 2001, after the IRB's 2000 report, the Local also created written referral rules for the trade show industry. (Ex. 99) Pursuant to these rules, the Local created two referral lists for the trade show industry. (Ex. 99) The A list consisted of eight individuals "who have the highest combination of years of experience in this industry and the number of productions, events and shows." (Ex. 99 at 2) The A list was "arranged in industry experience order." (Ex. 99 at 2) The B list consisted "of all other eligible individuals arranged in industry experience order." (Ex. 99 at 3) Under the rules, [t]he Union will refer individuals to the Convention Center from the "A" List in industry experience order before all other individuals. Once the "A" List is exhausted, the Union will refer to the Convention Center individuals on the "B" list in industry experience order.

(Ex. 99 at 3) As discussed below, the trade show referral rules explicitly provided that to be referred to work, an individual must be current in his Local 107 dues or service fees. (Ex. 99)

These trade show referral rules required the Local to maintain records of all aspects of referrals. (Ex. 99 at 4) As discussed below, the Local did not comply with this requirement. Frasco testified that records from the Health and Welfare or Pension Funds would reflect who worked in the trade show industry. (Ex. 4 at 38, 57)

As of April 30, 2008, the seniority list at the PCC consisted of six individuals. (Ex. 100) They were PCC steward Michael Conway, his brother Frank Conway, Michael Bell, John Griffith ("Griffith"), Joseph Voelker and Joseph Guglielmucci. (Ex. 100) The April 1, 2008 to March 31, 2011 Local 107 collective bargaining agreement with Elliott Lewis, which covered work at the PCC, provided "Teamster Local 107 (Union) shall be the supplier of all labor calls." (Ex. 101 at 1)

Former Local 107 dispatcher Dooley testified that after the members on the PCC seniority list were working, M. Conway, then the steward at the PCC, decided who worked. (Ex. 67 at 15) M. Conway, who was the PCC steward until approximately September 2009 when his brother replaced him, testified that he, as steward, would fill the labor calls at the PCC and other venues. (Ex. 102 at 24-25) The PCC steward was elected by the members on the PCC seniority list. (Ex. 32 at 103-104) In addition, Frasco testified that he also sent people to work in the trade show industry. (Ex. 4 at 58)<sup>26</sup>

H. The IRB's Investigation

In March 2008, after receiving members' complaints regarding the Local's referral practices, the IRB conducted a books and records examination at Local 107. (Ex. 65) Starting in August 2008, the IRB also examined thirty-five members in the movie and trade show industries, including four members who worked as movie captains.<sup>27</sup> In addition, the sworn examination of Aaron Skalka ("Skalka"), the Local 399 Transportation Coordinator for the large budget SONY

<sup>26</sup> The Customer Satisfaction Agreement between the Pennsylvania Convention Center Authority and various labor unions, including Local 107, provided that Elliott Lewis Corporation, the company that employed the workers at the PCC, and trade show contractors may call individuals by name to work. (Ex. 169 at 2-3, 5) movie production filmed in Philadelphia in 2009, was conducted. Local 107 officers Hamilton, Frasco and S. Dougherty were also examined.

In response to an August 8, 2008 IRB document request for all referral lists for the period from January 2006 to August 2008, Local 107 attorney Kohn wrote, ". . . The Local is not able to provide copies of 'all versions of all referral lists' as requested, because as the lists change, copies of the old lists are not retained." (Exs. 103 and 104)

According to Frasco, for each movie since 2004, he kept a list of who worked on the movie. (Ex. 4 at 42-43, 67-68) The Local's records did not contain information regarding when an individual started to work or how long he worked on any production. (Exs. 105-106) Frasco acknowledged that his lists were not necessarily in the order of when someone started working on the movie. (Ex. 4 at 67-69)

Regarding records reflecting who worked at the PCC and other trade show venues, Frasco testified that only records from the Health and Welfare Fund or Pension Fund, which were not Local records, would indicate the amount of work someone received in the trade show industry. (Ex. 4 at 86) The Local did not maintain any such records despite the specific requirement of its rules. (Ex. 99 at 4) Rather, in response to an IRB document request for all individuals who worked in the trade show industry between September 2005 and September 2008 (Ex. 107), the Local provided a printout from the Health and Welfare Fund which indicated only whether an individual worked in a particular month at the PCC and other trade show venues. (Ex. 108) The records the Local produced from the Health and Welfare Fund did not indicate the dates worked or the number of hours any individual worked in the trade show industry. (Ex. 108)

The Local's collective bargaining agreements in the movie and trade show industries required employer contributions to the Local 500 Severance Fund ("Severance Fund"). (Exs. 101, 109-110) Frank Vaccaro and Associates ("Vaccaro") administered the Severance Fund. (Exs. 101, 109-110) On February 20, 2009, based upon an IRB application, District Court Judge Loretta A. Preska issued a subpoena which required Vaccaro to produce records regarding Local 107 employer contributions to the Severance Fund as well as records reflecting the hours individuals worked. (Ex. 111) The subpoena also required Vaccaro to produce records from the Local 107 Vacation Fund, which was funded through payroll deductions from the pay of Local 107 members employed at the PCC and which Vaccaro administered.

I. Modified Movie Referral Rules

Sometime prior to March 2008, when the IRB's books and records examination was conducted, the Local modified the 2001 written movie referral rules. (Ex. 5) No one at the Local knew when. While they recognized the document reflecting these amended rules, neither Hamilton nor Frasco were able to state when these rules were amended. (Ex. 3 at 51-52; Ex. 4 at 31-33)<sup>28</sup> These modified rules created a single movie referral list instead of the A and B lists the 2001 rules required. (Ex. 5) According to the modified rules, [t]he individual placement [on the movie referral list] shall be based upon the highest combination of:

Driving Experience

CDL Qualifications

Industry experience

Specialty Equipment

(Ex. 5 at 2) The Local produced these written modified rules during the March 2008 IRB records examination in response to a request for the current movie referral rules. (Exs. 5 and 112) Although these rules provided for a single movie referral list (Ex. 5), during the same March 2008 records examination, in response to an IRB request for the current movie referral list, the Local produced a document entitled "Production" which contained a "Movie A List" which included ten names. (Exs. 112-113) On the same document was another list of names grouped by license which stated "the below list is not [sic] seniority order." (Exs. 112-113)

<sup>28</sup> The August 26, 2003 Executive Board minutes referenced a "new set of rules" (Ex. 114), but it was unclear whether these were the rules.

The modified rules provided that "driving experience" and "industry experience" were two of the four factors which determined an individual's placement on the referral list. (Ex. 5) On the referral document the Local produced, there was a notation below the "Movie A List" which stated, "the below list is not [sic] seniority order." (Ex. 113) That list was grouped by license. (Ex. 113)

These new rules allowed the Local to stop maintaining records of "all aspects of the operation of the referral service, including the time of referral calls" as the 2001 referral rules had required. (Exs. 2 and 5) Instead, the modified rules stated, "[t]he Local union shall maintain written records concerning all refusals, including time and date of referral calls, replies and employer." (Ex. 5 at 2) As with the original record keeping requirements, these amended record keeping rules were also not followed. (Exs.

103, 250, 269 and 270) Frasco was aware of the new rules. He could not explain the reasons for the changes in the rules. (Ex. 4 at 30-35)

In an August 8, 2008 letter, the Chief Investigator asked the Local to provide all documents reflecting how it determined where each individual was placed on the movie referral lists, "including all individual calculations determining industry experience, driving experience, CDL qualifications, specialty equipment experience." (Ex. 103) The Local did not produce any documents responsive to this request. (Exs. 6, 104 and 107)

J. August 2008 Rules

On approximately August 27, 2008, several months after the IRB began an investigation of the Local's work referrals, the Local created new written referral rules for work in the movie industry. (Ex. 87) This was the third set since 2001. The previous two sets of rules had not been followed. Under this third set of rules, the Local created a regular referral list and a casual referral list. (Ex. 87) The August 2008 rules provided that the regular referral list, "shall consist of eligible and qualified individuals who have a demonstrable record of relying on employment in the motion picture and television production industries." (Ex. 87 at 3) These rules also provided that the Local "shall maintain written records concerning all aspects of its referral service." (Ex. 87 at 5) As with the two prior sets of rules, the August 2008 rules also were not followed. The Local allegedly surrendered referral authority to employers in October 2008.

Pursuant to the August 2008 rules, the Local's Executive Board would determine how many individuals were placed on the regular referral list. (Ex. 87) Frasco testified that based upon the resumes individuals submitted to the Local, he tried to make a seniority list of approximately 30-40 individuals on it and then everyone else who had submitted a resume would be on a casual list. (Ex. 4 at 35-37, 40) As of August 27, 2008, there were 45 members on the regular referral list and 39 members on the casual referral list. (Ex. 115)<sup>29</sup> The August 2008 movie rules provided that the Local would provide the entire regular referral list to the employer and, if the employer requested additional referrals, the Local would provide the entire casual referral list. (Ex. 87 at 5) There was no requirement in the rules that the regular referral list be

<sup>29</sup> According to the minutes of the August 27, 2008 Executive Board meeting, the Executive Board approved the new referral rules. (Ex. 242) There was no mention of the Executive Board determining the number of individuals to be placed on the regular referral list. (Ex. 242) These minutes were read to the membership at the October 19, 2008 membership meeting. (Ex. 272) exhausted before the casual referral list was sent to the employer. (Ex. 87 at 5)

On September 2, 2008, Frasco sent a letter to the Local's members regarding the new referral rules. (Ex. 116)

This letter stated in pertinent part:

[f]or many years, Local 107 has attempted to assist its members, and others, by cooperating with movie and other production companies in the referral of qualified individuals to productions throughout the Philadelphia area. In an effort to improve that service, on August 27, 2008, the Local Executive Board adopted a new set of referral rules ("Rules"). . . . As you will see when you review the Rules, the old "A" and "B" system has been replaced by two new categories: regular employees and casual employees.

(Ex. 116)<sup>30</sup> As discussed above, although in his letter Frasco referred to the "old "A" and "B" system" (Ex. 116), the rules the Local had produced six months earlier to the IRB, in March 2008, which the Local described then as the current rules, did not contain an "A" list or a "B" list. (Exs. 5 and 112) Rather, those rules provided for a single referral list. (Ex. 5) This confusion over which set of rules Frasco was replacing was a further indication that the Local's written rules were not followed and were window dressing to hide the practice of nepotism and favoritism influencing work assignments.

<sup>30</sup> In his letter to the members, Frasco stated, "[i]f you believe that you have not been ranked properly, there is an appeal procedure available, which is set forth in the Rules." (Ex. 116)

By letter dated September 17, 2008, the IRB asked the Local to produce records reflecting how individuals were placed on the August 2008 movie referral lists, including "all calculations determining an individual's industry experience and all documents regarding each individual's record of relying on employment in the motion picture and television production industries." (Ex. 107) In an October 2, 2008 letter responding to this request, Local 107 attorney Kohn explained there were no such records because the referral list was "merely an initial list" and "the intent was to fine-tune it as appropriate to more accurately reflect the industry experience. . . ." (Ex. 6) In addition, Kohn wrote, ". . . in that the Local has decided to cease referring individuals and will merely forward resumes to employers, it never completed the task of finalizing a referral list or resolving protests to the proposed lists." (Ex. 6)

The August 2008 rules were only in effect for a little more than one month when, as discussed below, in October 2008 the Local unilaterally surrendered the authority to refer individuals to work in the movie industry. Frasco testified that after he put together the August 2008 lists, "all I got were complaints, and it was becoming more work, and more of a headache, so I got out of that. I said, it's not working, I just couldn't do it." (Ex. 4 at 31)<sup>31</sup>

K. Movie Captains

The Local's collective bargaining agreements specifically included movie captains in the bargaining unit. (Exs. 109, 110, 142, 184, 191, 197) For example, the May 5, 2009 collective bargaining agreement for the SONY project stated,

The Producer recognizes Teamster Local 107 as the sole collective bargaining representative of all Captains, dispatchers, cinemobile drivers, chauffeurs and helpers employed in connection with the production of motion pictures, . . . , within the jurisdiction of Joint Council 53.

(Ex. 184 at 1) The Local's collective bargaining agreements also set the salary for the captains and co-captains. (Exs. 109, 110, 142, 184, 191, 197) For example, the SONY agreement provided that in 2009, the captain was paid $3,350 per week. (Ex. 184 at 3)<sup>32</sup>

In addition, the Local's collective bargaining agreements provided that the employer was required to make

<sup>31</sup> It appears that the trade show referral rules remained the same in August 2008. However, as discussed below, it appears that the Local has begun to stop referring individuals to work in the trade show industry. (Ex. 55 at 26-38; Ex. 4 at 12-13)

<sup>32</sup> Pursuant to the contract for the SONY project, in 2009 the co-captain and specialized equipment drivers were paid $2,700 per week and drivers were paid $2,500 per week. (Ex. 184 at 3) contributions to the Health and Welfare and Pension Funds for all hours the captain worked in any one week. (Ex. 109 at 7; Ex. 184 at 7; Ex. 110 at 6-7; Ex. 142 at 7-8; Ex. 191 at 8-9; Ex. 197 at 3) Under the collective bargaining agreements, the employer benefit fund contributions for other Local 107 members could be paid at a daily or weekly flat rate. (Ex. 109 at 7; Ex. 184 at 7; Ex. 110 at 6-7; Ex. 142 at 7; Ex. 191 at 8; Ex. 197 at 8)

The collective bargaining agreement for the SONY project provided the following regarding the captain:

In connection with each motion picture, a Teamster Captain shall work under the direction of the Producer and perform in accordance with the Company's transportation requirements. The duties of the Teamster Captain shall be to organize and coordinate the transportation operation of the project and to arrange for the hire of equipment and extra equipment. Such duties shall not include driving, except for one transport of personnel at the beginning of the workday and another at the end of the workday. The Teamster captain shall be subject to and covered by the terms of this Agreement and shall be paid at the rates herein provided and on a daily basis, shall be the first to be engaged and last to be terminated. The time of such termination shall be deemed that time when the last driver leaves the location, studio or set.

A Captain shall have no authority to take strike action or any other action interrupting the Company's business, except as authorized by official action of the union. The Company recognizes these limitations upon the authority of the Captain and shall not hold the Union liable for any unauthorized acts.

(Ex. 184 at 2) Thus, if the union voted to strike, the contract recognized that as a Teamster, the captain would go on strike also.

Movie captain Sullivan testified that he handled members' grievances. (Ex. 89 at 14-15) Movie captain Cimino testified that if there was "something minor" involving a member, after speaking to Frasco, Cimino would represent the member by speaking with the producer to try to resolve the matter. (Ex. 94 at 24-26)<sup>33</sup> Cimino would not process the grievance as a management representative. Cimino testified that if the producer wanted to terminate a member and if he was not able to resolve it, he would call the union. (Ex. 94 at 18-19)

The collective bargaining agreements did not contain any specific provision for the selection of captains. (Exs. 109, 110, 142, 184, 191, 197)<sup>34</sup> The Local's movie referral list provided to the IRB in March 2008 identified Morrone, III as "transportation coordinator" and identified both Cimino and Sullivan as "Acting Captain - Coordinator". (Ex. 113) The list also stated that M. Conway and F. Conway have "also acted as Captain - Coordinator". (Ex. 113) On the

Local's August 2008 referral list, there were five individuals whose names were in bold and had the notation "Captain" next to their names. (Ex. 115) These individuals were Cimino, Sullivan, M. Conway, F. Conway and McCleery. (Ex. 115)<sup>35</sup> The alphabetical list of members and summary of resumes that the Local produced to the IRB in July 2009, highlighted the same five names as captains. (Ex. 208)

During his October 2008 sworn examination, movie captain Cimino testified that in 2008 for the movie Tenure, Frasco asked him to come to a meeting with the producer. (Ex. 94 at 47) The producer had not requested Cimino to be captain prior to this meeting. (Ex. 94 at 48) After the meeting, Cimino was hired as the captain. (Ex. 94 at 47) Cimino testified that, absent a request from the producer, if Sullivan was available, Sullivan would be the captain on a production and if Sullivan was unavailable, Cimino would be the captain. (Ex. 94 at 48-49)

During his September 2009 sworn examination, Frasco misleadingly testified that, "[t]he production company will always pick their captain. They have - I would imagine they all talk; they know who they want before they come into Philadelphia." (Ex. 4 at 14) On the SONY project,

transportation coordinator Skalka testified that he hired Cimino as the captain based upon a recommendation from Jeff Waxman who had worked with Cimino on Law Abiding Citizen. (Ex. 207 at 19-21)<sup>36</sup>

The Local limited who a production could select as captain. For example, as discussed below, for the Dr. Phil Show, in September 2009, S. Dougherty told the producer that the only available captain was F. Conway. (Ex. 55 at 29) In response, the producer sent an email to S. Dougherty which stated, "This email is to state that the Dr Phil CBS Production will work in compliance with the Teamster Captain #107 assigned to our production in Philadelphia September 15th and 16th 2009." (Ex. 193)

For another production, S. Dougherty sent an email dated September 1, 2009 to the producer stating that Local 107 members Sullivan and F. Conway were the only available captains. (Ex. 185; Ex. 55 at 47)

<sup>36</sup> On December 17, 2009, the NLRB refused to issue complaints two Local 107 members, John Morrone, IV and George Palladino, filed alleging that employers failed to hire them "at the behest of Teamsters Local 107 because [they] cooperated with" the IRB's investigation. (Ex. 245) In a December 17, 2009 letter, the NLRB Acting Regional Director stated that the Local did not have any involvement in the selection of the captain on the SONY project. (Ex. 245) In addition, the NLRB Acting Regional Director stated that on another project, S. Dougherty, the Local's business agent for the movie industry, told the producer that Sullivan and F. Conway were the available captains and indicated that the producer could hire who he wanted. (Ex. 245)

According to Local 107 counsel Kohn, the Local considered the captain to be a management position. (Ex. 273) The facts as noted above did not support this conclusion. Since the captain was part of the bargaining unit; his terms and conditions of employment and responsibilities were specifically set forth in the collective bargaining agreement; the Local determined the group from which the producers could select and the captains understood they represented members in handling grievances, the captain was not a management position.

It appears that the transportation coordinator, rather than the captain, was a management position. The position of transportation coordinator was not included in the definition of the bargaining unit in the collective bargaining agreements. (Exs. 109, 110, 142, 184, 191, 197) Nor was the salary for the transportation coordinator set forth in the collective bargaining agreements. (Exs. 109, 110, 142, 184, 191, 197)<sup>37</sup> Nor did the Local limit whom the producers could select as it did for captains. For example, Aaron Skalka, who was the transportation coordinator on the SONY project, negotiated his salary.

<sup>37</sup> For example, the collective bargaining agreement for Airbender stated that wage rates for the transportation coordinator would be "individually negotiated." (Ex. 109 at 3)

(Ex. 207 at 9)<sup>38</sup> Moreover, in 2008 on the movie Transformers, when the Local 399 transportation coordinator wanted to terminate Local 107 member Edward Coe ("Coe"), Cimino, the captain on the movie, tried to keep Coe employed. (Ex. 94 at 59-63)<sup>39</sup>

L. Nepotism and Favoritism in Movie and Trade Show Work Referrals in 2007 and 2008

1. Overview

As detailed below, it appears that, because the 2001 and subsequent written referral rules were never followed despite the officers' representations they were and their being on notice that they were not, the Local's officers and its agents permitted nepotism and favoritism from which their families and friends benefited to continue to influence who received work assignments in the movie and trade show industries as it had prior to 2000. As a result of Local personnel ignoring the Local's written referral rules, individuals who were relatives of or who had personal ties to the Local's officers and movie captains

<sup>38</sup> Skalka testified that on the SONY project, the employer referred to him as a captain, but he was doing the job that traditionally was done by a transportation coordinator. (Ex. 207 at 6-7)

<sup>39</sup> Coe, M. Conway's son-in-law, was eventually terminated. (Ex. 94 at 60)

G. Cimino testified that in 2007 on the movie Lovely Bones, where he was the captain, after speaking with Frasco, Cimino and M. Conway, the co-captain, terminated Local 107 member Cintron for lateness. (Ex. 94 at 22-23) worked on movie productions while Local 107 members, who had more experience and greater seniority with the Local, were not referred for work. Indeed, Frasco's brother-in-law Robert Kaznica, who was not a Local 107 member, was referred to work while there were unemployed Local 107 members.

Similarly, relatives of the PCC steward, M. Conway, were among the individuals who received the most work at the PCC in 2007 and 2008. (Exs. 117-120; Ex. 102 at 7, 12, 93; Ex. 135 at 8) According to the records of the Local 107 Vacation Fund, which was funded through payroll deductions based upon the number of hours Local 107 members worked at the PCC, in November and December 2008 the Vacation Fund issued 105 checks for 2007-2008. (Exs. 119-120; Ex. 102 at 13-14)<sup>40</sup> The six Local 107 members on the PCC seniority list, including M. Conway and his brother, Frank, were included in the top fifteen payments. (Exs. 100, 119 and 120) As steward, M. Conway controlled who was referred to work at the PCC. (Ex. 102 at 5, 21) Also among the largest fifteen checks were four for M. Conway's

<sup>40</sup> The Vacation Fund, which was only for individuals employed at the PCC, was funded by $1.25 deducted from the member's pay for every hour worked. (Ex. 102 at 13-14) This amount was placed in the Vacation Fund. (Ex. 102 at 13) At the end of the year, the Vacation Fund issued checks to the members in the amount they had contributed to the Vacation Fund. (Ex. 102 at 13) The Vacation Fund year ran from November of one year to October of the next year. (Ex. 119)

relatives, who were not on the PCC seniority list. (Exs. 119-120) These were his nephews, Francis J. Conway, III and Domenic Fuscellaro ("Fuscellaro"), his cousin Mark Volpe ("Volpe") and his son-in-law Edward Coe ("Coe"). (Exs. 119-120; Ex. 102 at 7, 93; Ex. 135 at 8)<sup>41</sup> Accordingly, six of the fifteen largest checks that year were issued to M. Conway and his relatives. (Exs. 119-120)

It also appears that, in explicit violation of the Local's written referral rules for the trade show and theater industries, M. Conway's nephew Fuscellaro and another individual, Antonio Capetillo, were referred to Local 107 work in the trade show industry when they were delinquent in dues payments or had not paid a service fee to the Local. The Local's written referral rules for the theater, trade show and convention center industries provided that, "individuals must be current on all dues, fine(s), assessments and fee(s) in order to register, sign a referral form and be referred out." (Ex. 99)<sup>42</sup> Former

<sup>41</sup> In 2008, the Local 107 Vacation Fund issued 105 checks which ranged in amount from $3,742.22 paid to Michael Bell, one of the six members on the seniority list, to $5.00. (Exs. 100, 119-120) In 2008, M. Conway received $2,589.70; F. Conway received $2,916.58; Frank Conway, III received $1,260.95; Fuscellaro received $1,259.71; Mark Volpe received $1,205.35 and Coe received $941.26. (Exs. 119-120) M. Conway's nephew Francis J. Conway, III is the son of Local 107 member Frank Conway, M. Conway's brother. (Ex. 102 at 7)

dispatcher Dooley testified that it was a violation of the Local's rules for an individual who was not current in his dues payments to be referred to work. (Ex. 67 at 26-27)

With respect to trade show work, Hamilton testified that, "I'm not sure we're that stringent, but the policy is, if you work a day, you should be paying dues." (Ex. 3 at 72) According to Frasco, if a trade show employee worked three days in a month, he was obligated to pay dues or a service fee. (Ex. 4 at 53-54)<sup>43</sup>

Frasco testified that the majority of workers in the trade show industry stayed current in their dues. (Ex. 4 at 52-53) This was consistent with a review of the dues records for the 90 individuals who were on the PCC seniority list, on the August 2008 referral list or who received a Vacation Fund check in 2008. (Exs. 100, 115, 120 264-265) A review of the dues records for these 90 individuals for the period from January 2006 to January 2010, reflected that nine members were suspended for non-payment of dues at some point during that period. (Exs.

<sup>43</sup> According to Frasco, if an individual worked one day in the movie industry, he was required to pay dues or a service fee to the Local. (Ex. 4 at 51)

264-265)<sup>44</sup> Of those nine members who were suspended, only three, including Fuscellaro, a nephew of both M. Conway and F. Conway, received work in the trade show industry while they were suspended from membership. (Exs. 26-27, 108, 121-123, 264-265)<sup>45</sup>

In violation of the written referral rules and the Local's policy as Frasco and Hamilton represented it, Fuscellaro received numerous work assignments in the trade show and concert industries while he was suspended from the Local for non-payment of dues. (Exs. 121-123; Ex. 124 at 6-7) As the trade show steward, M. Conway was responsible for ensuring that the individuals he referred to work were up to date in their dues payments. (Ex. 67 at 27-29; Ex. 4 at 57)<sup>46</sup>

2. Frank Gizzi's NLRB Complaint

<sup>44</sup> Article X, Section 5(c) of the IBT Constitution provides that a member will be suspended at the end of the third month of being in arrears in dues.

<sup>45</sup> The other two members who received work in the trade show industry while they were suspended from membership were Antonio Capetillo and Edward Heyse. (Exs. 26-27, 108, 264-267) As discussed below, Capetillo received numerous work assignments while he was suspended. (Exs. 26-27, 108, 264) Heyse had one work assignment while he was suspended. (Exs. 264-267)

<sup>46</sup> When Dooley was the dispatcher, he gave delinquency lists to M. Conway in order for M. Conway to monitor who was delinquent in their dues. (Ex. 67 at 27)

Frank Gizzi joined Local 107 in 1959. (Ex. 128 at 4; Ex. 129) According to Gizzi, he has had a Class A CDL for many years. (Ex. 128 at 5-6) Gizzi retired in approximately April 2004. (Ex. 128 at 9) On or about August 3, 2007, Gizzi paid dues and returned to active Local 107 membership. (Ex. 128 at 14-15; Ex. 129)<sup>47</sup> Shortly thereafter, on approximately August 16, 2007, Gizzi was referred to work on the movie The Happening. (Ex. 128 at 14, 17, 26)<sup>48</sup> Gizzi worked on The Happening until approximately October 17, 2007. (Ex. 128 at 19, 26; Ex. 129)

At around the time that work on The Happening was ending, filming on the movie Lovely Bones was beginning. (Ex. 128 at 19) Gizzi had a drug screening test and was given an application to complete for work on Lovely Bones. (Ex. 128 at 25) He was not referred to work on that movie. (Ex. 128 at 41-42)

Of the approximately 44 Local 107 members who worked on The Happening, all but six went to work on Lovely Bones.

<sup>47</sup> Gizzi had returned to the Local for a brief period from January to March 2005 when he worked for George Young Company. (Ex. 128 at 11) He then went back on his pension. (Ex. 128 at 11)

<sup>48</sup> Gizzi testified that he reactivated his Local 107 membership in order to work on The Happening. (Ex. 128 at 16-17)

(Exs. 255-257)<sup>49</sup> It appears that four of the six Local 107 members who had worked on The Happening and did not work on Lovely Bones were unavailable to work on Lovely Bones.

(Exs. 255-257; Ex. 128 at 18-19, 44-45)<sup>50</sup> For example, Sullivan, who was the captain on The Happening, began to work as the captain on The Verdict immediately after The Happening. (Ex. 89 at 17-20)<sup>51</sup> The two remaining Local 107 members who worked on The Happening and did not work on Lovely Bones were Gizzi and Robert Wagner, a Local 107 member employed at DHL at that time. (Exs. 255-257, 261)<sup>52</sup> As noted below, individuals connected to Local insiders

<sup>49</sup> According to Vaccaro records, there were 54 individuals who worked on The Happening. (Ex. 257) Of these 54 individuals, 44 were Local 107 members. (Exs. 255-257, 259-261, 265)

The Vaccaro records showed that eight individuals, who were not Local 107 members and who worked on The Happening, did not work on Lovely Bones. (Exs. 255-257) These individuals were William Gill, Joseph Lamb, Thomas Maglio, Michael Kelly, Doug Wright, John Rowland, Donald Greenleaf and Jack Verseput. (Exs. 73, 255-257, 259) Gill had retired from Local 107 in November 2006. (Ex. 259) He did not pay dues or a service fee to Local 107 when he worked on The Happening. (Ex. 259) Similarly, Greenleaf had retired from Local 107 in February 2007. (Ex. 260) He did not pay dues or a service fee to Local 107 when he worked on The Happening. (Ex. 260)

<sup>50</sup> Local 107 captain Morrone, III got sick and stopped working on The Happening. (Ex. 89 at 17-20) In addition, according to Gizzi, one Local 107 member had failed a drug test with the production company for Lovely Bones and Local 107 member Joseph Kelly was unavailable. (Ex. 128 at 44-45)

<sup>51</sup> Sullivan worked on The Happening from July 16, 2007 to November 2007. (Ex. 89 at 17-20) After Morrone, III, the original captain on The Happening, got sick, Sullivan replaced him as the captain. (Ex. 89 at 17-20)

received work on the movie Lovely Bones while Gizzi was seeking work.

On November 8, 2007, after complaining to Frasco about not being referred to work, Gizzi filed a complaint against the Local with the NLRB alleging that Local 107 had refused to refer him to work. (Ex. 130; Ex. 128 at 18-20, 47-48) Gizzi subsequently filed two amended complaints against the Local alleging that the Local had failed to refer him to work on specific movies including Lovely Bones and The Verdict. (Exs. 88 and 131) A cursory check by Local officers, who were on notice of the past abuses, into the allegations of the complaints would have uncovered that the Local was ignoring its rules.

Individuals with ties to the Local's officers and the movie captains were referred to work while Gizzi was seeking employment through Local 107. For example, relatives of PCC steward M. Conway, who was also the co-captain on Lovely Bones, who did not have CDL licenses at the time and who had less seniority in the Local than Gizzi, worked on Lovely Bones. These individuals included M. Conway's son-in-law, Ed Coe, and his two nephews, Frank Conway, III and Michael Conway, who also were the sons of movie captain, F. Conway. (Ex. 132; Ex. 133 at 4-5, 12-13; Ex. 134 at 8, 17-18; Ex. 135 at 29-30, 35) Coe had worked on The Happening and then went to work on Lovely Bones.

(Ex. 135 at 35) In addition, as discussed below, M. Conway's cousin, Mark Volpe, who joined Local 107 in August 2007, shortly after being released from prison, worked on the movie The Verdict in December 2007 when Gizzi was fruitlessly seeking work. (Ex. 10 at 20-22; Ex. 136)

During an IRB sworn examination on August 6, 2008, Gizzi testified that, other than three four hour calls at the PCC in November and December 2007, he had not been called for work between October 2007, when he finished working on The Happening, and May 2008, when he began to work on the movie Marley and Me. (Ex. 128 at 26, 59, 68-70)<sup>53</sup> According to Gizzi, he was available to work during that period. (Ex. 128 at 34-36, 38, 44-45) His dues were paid during this period. (Ex. 129)

To settle Gizzi's NLRB complaint in June 2009, the Local paid Gizzi $38,750. (Exs. 137-138) After being put on notice by the filing of the complaint in November 2007, Local officers continued to take no steps to ensure the Local's rules were being followed.

3. Robert Kaznica

<sup>53</sup> In May 2008, Gizzi was referred to work on the movie Marley and Me. (Ex. 128 at 59) Movie captain Sullivan called Gizzi to work and Gizzi worked approximately seventeen days on that movie. (Ex. 128 at 59-61)

Robert Kaznica is the brother-in-law of Frasco, the former Local 107 Vice President and movie and trade show business agent. (Ex. 83 at 7)<sup>54</sup> Kaznica was a member of Teamster Local 929. (Ex. 84; Ex. 83 at 6-7) In approximately December 2007, Kaznica was laid off from his position as a warehouse worker at Gourmet Baking. (Ex. 83 at 6-7; Ex. 84) Kaznica did not have a CDL. (Ex. 83 at 7, 13, 25)

Shortly after Kaznica was laid off from Gourmet Baking, on January 3, 4 and 7, 2008, he worked for Atlantic Film Service in Local 107's jurisdiction. (Exs. 126-127)<sup>55</sup> Also in January 2008, Kaznica worked for the First Philadelphia Labor Service, a trade show job. (Ex. 139) Although he worked in Local 107's jurisdiction, in apparent violation of the trade show written referral rules and what Frasco stated was Local policy, Kaznica did not pay dues or a service fee to the Local for January 2008. (Ex. 84) Similarly, in March 2008, Kaznica worked 23.5 hours for Elliott Lewis at the PCC. (Exs. 126-127; Ex. 32 at 23-24; Ex. 83 at 10) Kaznica did not pay dues or a service fee to Local 107 in March 2008. (Ex. 84; Ex. 83 at 15-16)

<sup>55</sup> According to Vaccaro records, Kaznica worked 24 hours for Atlantic Film Service. (Ex. 127) Kaznica testified that he could not recall working for that company in January 2008. (Ex. 83 at 14-15)

In January and March 2008, there were longstanding unemployed Local 107 members seeking work, including Gizzi and Louis Cintron ("Cintron"). (Ex. 125 at 25; Ex. 128 at 67-69) Cintron joined the Local in May 1995 and had a Class A CDL. (Ex. 125 at 3-4, 14, 25-27) He testified that when he asked at the union hall why he was not getting work, ". . . they were pretty much just telling me there was no work. Meanwhile, you got guys that haven't been in the Union that long that were working, you got people who were friends of friends who work, and here I am sitting home, not working." (Ex. 125 at 3-4, 14, 25-27; Ex. 140)<sup>56</sup>

In May 2008, Kaznica worked at the PCC and also for the company William Parker in Local 107's jurisdiction. (Ex. 139) That month, Kaznica paid a service fee to Local 107. (Ex. 84) A note on Kaznica's dues printout stated "PERMIT/FEE FRASCO 5/1/08 APPROVED." (Ex. 84)

In approximately May 2008, Frasco appointed F. Conway to be the captain on It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia ("Always Sunny"), a television series. (Ex. 90 at 19-20; Ex. 141) Frasco's brother-in-law Kaznica was the first

<sup>56</sup> According to Vaccaro records, between January and March 2008, Cintron worked 12 hours at Regional Performing Arts for the week ending February 8, 2008. (Ex. 262) Cintron paid dues in December 2007. (Ex. 140) In March 2008, he paid dues for January 2008 and then took a withdrawal card. (Ex. 140) He deposited his withdrawal card and returned to active membership in May 2008. (Ex. 140)

Teamster hired after Conway. (Ex. 83 at 20-21; Ex. 32 at 27-28)<sup>57</sup> Kaznica had never worked on a television or movie production before. (Ex. 83 at 20) Kaznica, who did not have a CDL, was appointed the co-captain for Always Sunny. (Ex. 32 at 27-28; Ex. 83 at 7) As co-captain, he was paid more than he would have been paid as a driver. (Ex. 142)<sup>58</sup>

During his IRB sworn examination in October 2008, which was shortly after he worked on Always Sunny in June 2008, F. Conway testified that the union hall referred the drivers to work on Always Sunny in 2008. (Ex. 90 at 24)<sup>59</sup> Frasco, who was the business agent for the movies at that time, claimed that F. Conway selected Kaznica to work on Always Sunny. (Ex. 4 at 58-59)<sup>60</sup> Frasco claimed that Kaznica worked on that show because the list of workers was

<sup>57</sup> Kaznica testified that he took the position on Always Sunny because it was a short term job and he did not want a job that would last two or three months because of the long hours. (Ex. 83 at 18-19)

<sup>58</sup> The co-captain received higher pay than a regular driver. (Ex. 142) For example, in the 2009 collective bargaining agreement for Always Sunny, the co-captain received a daily rate of $540 while a driver received a daily rate of $500. (Ex. 142)

<sup>59</sup> According to F. Conway, in 2008 the producer for Always Sunny requested a couple of drivers, but those individuals were already working on other projects. (Ex. 90 at 23) F. Conway testified that many Local 107 members were working when Always Sunny was filming in 2008 and he had to use retired members and individuals who were not members working on work permits. (Ex. 90 at 23) Since the Local did not maintain referral lists and did not maintain records of when individuals worked on projects, there was no support in the Local 107 records for this claim.

exhausted. (Ex. 4 at 59) Since the Local did not maintain the referral lists or referral records, there was no support in the contemporaneous Local 107 records for this claim.

In contrast to his 2008 testimony, only a few months after Always Sunny was filmed in 2008, during his October 2009 sworn examination, F. Conway asserted that in 2008 the director of Always Sunny, Tom Lofaro, requested Kaznica to work based upon his resume. (Ex. 32 at 22-23) Given Kaznica's lack of experience and a commercial driver's license, as well as F. Conway's previous testimony, this was not credible. (Ex. 83 at 7, 13, 18, 20, 25)

In June 2008, Kaznica also worked setting up and taking down Cirque du Soleil. (Exs. 143-144; Ex. 83 at 15-16) Of the approximately 61 Local 107 members who worked on Cirque du Soliel in 2008, Kaznica had the fourth highest number of hours. (Exs. 143-144) Only three individuals, including M. Conway's cousin, Mark Volpe, and his nephew, Domenic Fuscellaro, had more hours than Kaznica. (Exs. 143-144)<sup>61</sup> In June 2008, Kaznica also worked at the Electric Factory and at the PCC in Local 107's jurisdiction. (Ex.

<sup>61</sup> According to records subpoenaed from Vaccaro and Associates, the administrator for the Local's Severance Fund, Kaznica worked 129.5 hours, Volpe worked 173.5 hours and Fuscellaro worked 137 hours on Cirque du Soleil in 2008. (Exs. 143-144) Local 107 member Joseph Guglielmucci, who was on the PCC seniority list, worked the most hours: 432.5. (Exs. 143-144)

139) In June 2008, Kaznica paid a service fee to Local 107. (Ex. 84)

Kaznica first paid dues to Local 107 on August 11, 2008 because he believed that he would be hired at Local 107 employer Mac Steel. (Ex. 83 at 10-11, 16; Ex. 84) Frasco, the business agent for Mac Steel, told Kaznica that the company was hiring. (Ex. 83 at 10; Ex. 4 at 7, 59-60) According to Kaznica, because business was slow, he was not hired at Mac Steel. (Ex. 83 at 21, 29) He took a withdrawal card from Local 107 on September 30, 2008. (Ex. 84) Kaznica testified that he was then out of work for eight to nine months. (Ex. 83 at 21-22)

Kaznica deposited his withdrawal card on June 26, 2009. (Ex. 84) Kaznica worked on a Kenny Chesney concert on June 27, 2009. (Ex. 83 at 24; Ex. 244) As detailed below, Kaznica began to work on the SONY movie project on July 8, 2009. (Ex. 70)

4. Mark Volpe

Mark Volpe is the cousin of former PCC steward M. Conway and the current PCC steward, F. Conway. (Ex. 10 at 6; Ex. 102 at 7; Ex. 90 at 5-6) Volpe was released from prison on July 9, 2007, after serving seven years and eight months for a rape conviction. (Ex. 10 at 10-11; Ex. 145) According to his dues record, on August 9, 2007, Volpe transferred into Local 107 from Local 463, where he had been a member prior to his incarceration. (Ex. 136; Ex. 10 at 5-6) Volpe was on withdrawal from Local 463. (Ex. 136) The remarks section on Volpe's dues printout stated, "casual/convention center (Conway) Hamilton ok'd 8/07." (Ex. 136; Ex. 3 at 31)<sup>62</sup> Volpe had a Class B CDL. (Ex. 10 at 9)

Even before Volpe joined Local 107, in July 2007 upon his release from prison, his cousin, then PCC steward M. Conway, referred Volpe to work at the Academy of Music within Local 107's jurisdiction. (Ex. 10 at 12-13) Volpe's first work at the PCC was in August 2007. (Exs. 147-148)

In December 2007, shortly after Gizzi filed the complaint with the NLRB alleging that the Local did not refer him to work, Volpe worked on the movie The Verdict. (Ex. 147; Ex. 10 at 20-21)<sup>63</sup> Volpe worked approximately 70

<sup>62</sup> Hamilton testified that he did not know what that notation meant and he did not recall approving Volpe joining Local 107. (Ex. 3 at 31) Subsequent to Hamilton's sworn examination, the Local submitted an affidavit from the Local's Titan operator, Jackie Hopkins, regarding the notation. (Ex. 146) According to Hopkins, in August 2007, M. Conway told her that Volpe would be working as a casual at the PCC and needed to pay dues to Local 107, but was a member of another Local. (Ex. 146) Subsequently, Volpe called Hopkins and told her that he was on withdrawal from Local 463. (Ex. 146) According to Hopkins, she told Hamilton of her conversations with M. Conway and Volpe, and Hamilton said it was fine for Volpe to start paying dues as long as he transferred from Local 463 into Local 107. (Ex. 146)

<sup>63</sup> Gizzi's February 28, 2008 amended complaint filed with the NLRB alleged that the Local failed to refer him to work on The Verdict. (Ex. 88)

hours on that movie. (Ex. 147) Volpe had only been a Local 107 member for a few months when he was referred to work on The Verdict. (Ex. 136)

According to Vacation Fund records, in 2008, of the 105 checks issued to members, which were based upon the number of hours each member worked at the PCC, Volpe's check was the 14th largest. (Exs. 119-120)<sup>64</sup> In 2007, even though Volpe only joined the Local in August 2007 and the Vacation Fund period was from November 2006 to October 2007, of the 87 checks the Vacation Fund issued, Volpe's check was the 25th largest. (Exs. 117-118)<sup>65</sup>

Volpe's work in 2008 included approximately six days work on the movie Happy Tears in May and June 2008. (Exs. 147-148) Volpe's cousin, M. Conway, was the captain on Happy Tears. (Ex. 102 at 71) M. Conway's son-in-law, Ed Coe, and his nephew, Fuscellaro, also worked on Happy Tears. (Ex. 102 at 72; Ex. 124 at 16)

5. Domenic Fuscellaro

Domenic Fuscellaro, a nephew of M. Conway and F. Conway, joined Local 107 on February 8, 2000. (Ex. 121; Ex.

124 at 6, 7) Fuscellaro did not have a CDL. (Ex. 124 at 12) His first work through Local 107 was when his uncle, M. Conway, referred him to work for Tri State Staging, which provides staging equipment for events. (Ex. 124 at 6; Ex. 150)<sup>66</sup>

For eight consecutive months between January 2006 and August 2006, Fuscellaro did not pay dues to Local 107. (Ex. 121) On July 25, 2006, he was suspended from the Local for non-payment of dues. (Ex. 121) Despite the requirement in the written trade show referral rules that individuals must be up to date in their dues or service fees in order to be referred to work (Ex. 99) and both Frasco and Hamilton confirming that was Local policy (Ex. 3 at 71-72; Ex. 4 at 53-54), during those eight months when he was delinquent, Fuscellaro received at least 28 work referrals in the industries where his uncle, M. Conway, was the steward. (Exs. 108 and 122-123) For example, in May 2006, Fuscellaro worked 84.5 hours for Elliott Lewis at the PCC where M. Conway was the steward. (Exs. 122-123) These hours included 29.5 overtime hours at the rate of $33.04 per hour. (Exs. 101, 122-123)

<sup>66</sup> Fuscellaro, who was approximately twenty or twenty-one when he joined the Local, testified that his work through Local 107 was his first "real job." (Ex. 124 at 7)

Subsequently, in 2007, Fuscellaro also did not pay dues but still was referred to work in industries where his uncle, the union steward, controlled work referrals. (Exs. 121-123) Fuscellaro did not pay dues for eleven consecutive months from December 2006 through October 2007. (Ex. 124 at 9-10, 13-15; Exs. 121-122) On June 20, 2007, Fuscellaro was suspended from Local 107 membership for non-payment of dues. (Ex. 121)<sup>67</sup> During this eleven month period during which Fuscellaro did not pay dues, in violation of the referral rules, Fuscellaro was referred to at least 32 jobs in the trade show and theater industries. (Exs. 108, 122-123)<sup>68</sup>

On November 27, 2007, Fuscellaro paid a $300 re-initiation fee to the Local. (Ex. 124 at 13; Ex. 121)<sup>69</sup>

<sup>67</sup> Frasco testified that at some point he called Fuscellaro about being delinquent in his dues. (Ex. 4 at 54-56) During his February 2009 IRB sworn examination, Fuscellaro denied that he had ever been suspended for non-payment of dues. (Ex. 124 at 9-10)

<sup>68</sup> For example, between September 7, 2007 and October 4, 2007, Fuscellaro worked 76.5 hours for Elliott Lewis at the PCC. (Exs. 122-123) These hours included 30.5 overtime hours at the rate of $33.04 per hour. (Exs. 101, 122-123)

<sup>69</sup> Fuscellaro's dues printout included the following statement, "Hamilton approved 300.00 re-initiation fee plus 1 month to bring current to Nov 07." (Ex. 121) In an affidavit, Local 107 Titan operator Hopkins stated that on November 27, 2007, M. Conway called her to check on Fuscellaro's dues status. Hopkins asked Hamilton for his approval to allow Fuscellaro to pay a re-initiation fee. (Ex. 146) Hopkins stated that Hamilton approved Fuscellaro's payment of the re-initiation fee and only one month's dues. (Ex. 146) He did not pay back dues. (Ex. 146 at 3)

According to Vacation Fund records, in 2008, of the 105 checks issued to members, which were based upon the number of hours each member worked at the PCC, Fuscellaro's check was the 13th largest. (Exs. 119-120) In 2007, even though Fuscellaro had only paid dues for one month during the relevant twelve month period, of the 87 checks the Vacation Fund issued, Fuscellaro's check was the 17th largest. (Exs. 117-118, 121) Based upon the Vaccaro records, it appears that Fuscellaro worked approximately 343 hours at the PCC between November 2006 and October 2007, the time period the 2007 Vacation Fund check covered. (Exs. 121-123) Of those approximately 343 hours, Fuscellaro only worked approximately 67 while his dues were paid. (Exs. 121-123) For the other 276 hours, Fuscellaro was either delinquent in his dues payments (105 hours) or suspended for non-payment of dues (171 hours). (Exs. 121-123) In 2006, of the 85 checks the Vacation Fund issued to members who worked at the PCC, Fuscellaro's check was the 17th largest. (Exs. 151-152)

Fuscellaro testified that the first movie he worked on was Happy Tears in June 2008. (Ex. 124 at 16) His uncle, M. Conway, was the captain on Happy Tears. (Ex. 124 at 7, 14; Ex. 102 at 39, 70-71) In March 2009, Fuscellaro worked on a commercial. (Ex. 156)<sup>70</sup> Also in 2009, Fuscellaro worked on the movie The Last Airbender ("Airbender"). (Ex. 153)

6. Ed Coe

Ed Coe is M. Conway's son-in-law. (Ex. 135 at 8) On October 22, 2001, Coe had been arrested for conspiracy to sell a controlled dangerous substance. (Ex. 155)<sup>71</sup> According to New Jersey Department of Corrections records, Coe was sentenced to three and one half years and was incarcerated from December 18, 2003 to July 21, 2004. (Ex. 155; Ex. 135 at 10-11) According to Coe's dues record, he paid a partial initiation fee and dues to Local 107 on September 10, 2003. (Ex. 154; Ex. 135 at 7-8) It appears that on January 6, 2004, while Coe was incarcerated, the final payment for his initiation fee, which was paid in installments, was made. (Ex. 154) On the same day, Local 107 issued Coe a withdrawal card. (Ex. 154) Thus, he would have the right to be a member when released from prison, but since he was issued a withdrawal card, he would not owe back dues.

<sup>70</sup> From the Local's records, it appears that F. Conway, Fuscellaro's uncle, was requested to work on that commercial but F. Conway was unavailable. (Ex. 156)

<sup>71</sup> Coe testified that he was arrested between ten and twelve times, mostly for juvenile offenses. (Ex. 135 at 10-11)

In July 2004, Coe was released from prison. (Ex. 135 at 11-12; Ex. 155) In October 2004, Coe deposited his withdrawal card and paid dues to Local 107. (Ex. 154) Coe did not have a CDL. (Ex. 135 at 16)

Prior to his incarceration, in 1997, Coe had done some work as a non-union casual at Tri State Staging which also employed Local 107 members. (Ex. 135 at 6-7) Coe testified that there was an agreement under which individuals who lived in Camden, New Jersey were able to work as non-union casual workers along with Local 107 members at Tri State Staging. (Ex. 135 at 5-7)

According to Vacation Fund records, in 2008, of the 106 checks issued to members, which were based upon the number of hours each member worked at the PCC, Coe's check was the 15th largest, representing approximately 750 hours. (Exs. 119-120) In 2007, of the 87 checks the Vacation Fund issued, Coe's check was the 14th largest. (Exs. 117-118) In 2006, of the 85 checks the Vacation Fund issued to members who worked at the PCC, Coe's check was the 13th largest. (Exs. 151-152)

From August 11, 2007 to October 13, 2007, Coe worked on the movie, The Happening. (Exs. 157-158) From October 26 to December 29, 2007, Coe, who did not have a CDL, worked on Lovely Bones. (Exs. 157-158; Ex. 135 at 16) His father-in-law, M. Conway, was the co-captain on that movie. (Ex. 135 at 31-32) As noted above, Gizzi, who was seeking work, did not work on Lovely Bones. (Ex. 128 at 18-19, 44-45)

Between January and March 2008, when there were out of work Local members, Coe worked in the trade show industry and at the Regional Performing Arts Center. (Exs. 157-158) He worked approximately 119 hours during those months. (Exs. 157-158) Coe also worked on Happy Tears in 2008. (Ex. 135 at 30-31) His father-in-law, M. Conway, was the captain on that movie. (Ex. 135 at 31)<sup>72</sup> Coe also worked on the movie Law Abiding Citizen ("LAC") and the SONY movie project in 2009. (Exs. 70 and 167)

7. Thomas Maglio

Maglio is the brother-in-law of Local 107 Trustee Slater. (Ex. 72 at 8-9; Ex. 4 at 70-71)<sup>73</sup> Maglio was a member of Local 14 M of the Graphic Communications Workers Union, which is part of the IBT. (Ex. 72 at 4-5) Maglio's Local 107 dues printout stated, "Casual/permit fee only (movie). Frasco Ok'd Slater's Brother-in-law." (Ex. 73)

<sup>72</sup> In 2008, Coe was terminated from work on the movie Transformers because he had an altercation with the transportation coordinator from Local 399 in Los Angeles. (Ex. 135 at 18-30)

<sup>73</sup> Maglio's wife, Karen, worked for Teamster Local 500 as a secretary. (Ex. 72 at 8, 18; Ex. 161)

Absent the Local 107 abuses, there should have been no reason to record the familial relationship with the Local Trustee. When asked about this notation, Frasco testified, "I guess I okayed him to pay a service fee." (Ex. 4 at 72) Maglio did not have a CDL. (Ex. 277)

According to Maglio, Frasco contacted him and asked him if he wanted to work on a movie. (Ex. 72 at 7-8, 13, 18) According to Maglio, the first movie he worked on was The Happening. (Ex. 72 at 7-10) He drove one of the stars on that movie. (Ex. 72 at 10-12) Maglio worked on The Happening for 41 days from August 11, 2007 to October 13, 2007. (Exs. 159-160)<sup>74</sup> Maglio paid a service fee to Local 107 for August 2007. (Ex. 73) He should have also paid a service fee for September and October. (Ex. 4 at 51; Ex. 3 at 71-72)

Maglio began to work on the movie, Transformers during the week of June 7, 2008. (Exs. 159-160) He drove a water truck on Transformers. (Ex. 72 at 13-14) Cimino, the captain on Transformers, testified that the union gave him Maglio's name. (Ex. 94 at 78) Gizzi testified that he was available also for the movie Transformers as of June 3,

<sup>74</sup> In an undated letter to the Chief Investigator's office, Frasco stated that Maglio worked for approximately one month on The Happening because there were no Local 107 drivers available. (Ex. 162) There were no records kept at the Local which would support this claim.

2008. (Ex. 128 at 59-60) In 2009, Maglio worked on Airbender. (Ex. 153)<sup>75</sup>

8. Rich Marino

Rich Marino ("Marino") joined Local 107 in July 2005. (Ex. 163) He was a friend of Local 107 member Kevin Hamilton and William Hamilton, Jr.. (Ex. 164 at 6-7, 9; Ex. 3 at 18-19)<sup>76</sup> Marino testified that he was also friendly with their father, the Local's principal officer. (Ex. 164 at 5) Since approximately 2005, Marino has had a Class B CDL. (Ex. 164 at 11)

When asked how Marino joined Local 107, Hamilton testified, Marino ". . . came around, started talking to us, a young guy, wanting to learn, and, you know, when we got busy, he got put to work." (Ex. 3 at 19) Marino's dues printout stated, "Hamilton approved permit fee/casual." (Ex. 163) Hamilton testified that he did not know what that notation meant. (Ex. 3 at 30) According to the Local's Titan operator, based upon the notation on Marino's dues record, in April 2005, Hamilton approved Marino paying a service fee to the Local. (Ex. 146)

<sup>75</sup> When asked why Maglio worked Airbender, Frasco testified that Maglio may have worked with Sam Mercer, the producer of Airbender, before. (Ex. 4 at 32, 70)

<sup>76</sup> William Hamilton, Jr. died in approximately May 2004. (Ex. 57)

Marino testified that his first work as a Local 107 member was at the PCC. (Ex. 164 at 4-5) Marino also worked on the movie, The Happening from approximately June 23, 2007 to October 27, 2007. (Exs. 165-166) He then went to work on Lovely Bones. (Exs. 165-166) Marino worked on Lovely Bones from approximately November 10, 2007 to December 29, 2007. (Exs. 165-166)

Between January and March 2008, Marino worked approximately 188 hours at the PCC, including approximately 77 overtime hours. (Exs. 165-166) Between January and March 2008, he also worked for Atlantic Film Service and at the Regional Performing Arts Center. (Ex. 165-166) As noted above, there were Local 107 members with more seniority in the Local, including Gizzi, who were available and looking for work between January and March 2008, who did not get referrals from the Local. (Ex. 128 at 67-69; Ex. 125 at 25)

In 2008 and 2009, Marino worked on the movie Airbender. (Exs. 153, 165-166) On November 20, 2008, the producer for that movie, Sam Mercer ("Mercer"), sent a letter to Hamilton requesting Marino and two other Local 107 members to work on Airbender. (Ex. 168) Mercer was a personal friend of Hamilton. (Ex. 4 at 66)

According to Vacation Fund records, in 2008, of the 105 checks issued to members, which were based upon the number of hours each member worked at the PCC, Marino's check was the 21st largest. (Exs. 119-120)<sup>77</sup> In 2006, of the 85 checks the Vacation Fund issued to members who worked at the PCC, Marino's check was the 15th largest. (Exs. 151-152)<sup>78</sup> In 2007, of the 87 checks the Vacation Fund issued, Marino's check was the 29th largest. (Exs. 117-118)<sup>79</sup> In 2007, Marino worked from June 23, 2007 to October 27, 2007 on The Happening and from November 10, 2007 to December 29, 2007 on Lovely Bones. (Exs. 165-166)

9. Antonio Capetillo

Antonio Capetillo ("Capetillo") joined Local 107 on August 25, 2005. (Ex. 26) Capetillo testified that he began to work at the PCC in March 2005, before he became a Teamster. (Ex. 25 at 16-17; Ex. 26) Local 107 member John Griffith, who was on the PCC seniority list and whose father was a friend of Hamilton and F. Conway, testified that he played basketball with Capetillo prior to Capetillo

becoming a Teamster. (Ex. 170 at 15-16; Ex. 3 at 9; Ex. 32 at 15-18)

On August 27, 2004, Capetillo was arrested for illegal gambling. (Ex. 171) As noted above, one of Capetillo's co-defendants was John Garbarino, also known as "Johnny Garb" and who was referenced in former Local 107 DHL chief steward Innaurato's September 30, 2006 letter to LCN member Massimino. (Exs. 19, 171; Ex. 25 at 9, 59)<sup>80</sup> On June 17, 2005, Capetillo was sentenced to sixty days incarceration. (Ex. 25 at 7; Ex. 171) Shortly after he was released, on August 25, 2005, Capetillo joined Local 107. (Ex. 25 at 15; Ex. 26) Capetillo did not have a CDL. (Ex. 25 at 13)

After joining Local 107, Capetillo did not pay dues for almost two years from September 2005 through July 2007. (Ex. 26) On July 25, 2006, Capetillo was suspended for non-payment of dues. (Ex. 26)<sup>81</sup> Both when Capetillo did not pay dues to the Local and after he was suspended for non-payment of dues, he received approximately 48 work assignments in the trade show industry. (Exs. 27-28, 172)

<sup>80</sup> During his October 2008 IRB sworn examination, Capetillo testified that he had known Garbarino for many years and that they saw each other daily. (Ex. 25 at 9) According to Capetillo, he purchased his home from Garbarino. (Ex. 25 at 36-37) Capetillo testified that Garbarino owned a construction company. (Ex. 25 at 56; Ex. 30)

<sup>81</sup> Capetillo claimed that he was never suspended from membership. (Ex. 25 at 17)

Frasco testified that he did not know how that happened.
(Ex. 4 at 86-87)

On July 20, 2007, Capetillo returned from suspension and paid $600 in back dues. (Ex. 26)<sup>82</sup> Shortly after that, on July 28, 2007, Capetillo began to work on the movie The Happening. (Ex. 25 at 21; Exs. 27-28) He worked on The Happening until approximately October 6, 2007. (Exs. 27-28) Capetillo then worked on Lovely Bones from approximately October 12, 2007 to December 15, 2007. (Exs. 27-28)

M. The Local Without the Members' Approval
Surrendered Official Authority to Refer
Members to Work but Its Agents Still Controlled
Work Assignments

In approximately October 2008, after the IRB's investigation of the Local's referral practices had begun, the Local abandoned its written, but not followed, referral rules. According to the minutes of the September 30, 2008 Local 107 Executive Board meeting, Frasco "discussed the ongoing problems with the film industry and the continuous cost of legal fees." (Ex. 173) According to the minutes, the Executive Board voted to "eliminate the referral service and turn all resumes over to the production companies." (Ex. 173) According to Hamilton and Frasco, under this system the Local no longer had any role in the selection of individuals to work on movie productions other than to send approximately 200 resumes in alphabetical order to the movie production companies. (Ex. 4 at 10-11; Ex. 3 at 45-46) In fact, as noted below, the Local's agents still influenced job assignments and steered work to favorites.

---

<sup>82</sup> On August 23, 2007, Capetillo again paid back dues of $600 and on October 23, 2007 he paid $250 in back dues. (Ex. 26)

In an undated letter to the Local's members, Frasco stated that,

. . . the Executive Board was faced with the decision of whether to make referrals, in any fashion, for the video industry. In view of the repeated legal challenges to that practice, and the cost of defending what the NLRB previously found to be an entirely proper referral system by the Local, we have decided to leave the staffing of movies and related venues to the production companies.

In order to facilitate these changes, the Executive Board has passed a resolution to cease the referral function of Local 107. The former A and B list [sic] have been disbanded and collective bargaining agreements are being amended to make it clear that the employers will be responsible for hiring. The Local's role will be to supply resumes to employers for their use in filling their staffing needs.

(Ex. 174)<sup>83</sup> The letter was misleading. Frasco falsely claimed in this letter on behalf of the Executive Board that the NLRB had found the Local's referral system "to be

<sup>83</sup> Although the September 2008 Executive Board meeting minutes and the letter to the Local's members referred to "legal fees" and the "costs of defending" the referral system (Exs. 173 and 174), according to Hamilton, Kohn, the Local's attorney, did not bill over his fixed retainer for handling the NLRB matters. (Exs. 137 and 175) Kohn made the same representation to the Chief Investigator. (Ex. 176)

an entirely proper referral system." (Ex. 174) Frasco acknowledged during his IRB sworn examination that the NLRB never formally approved the Local's referral system. (Ex. 4 at 21-22) Indeed, as discussed above, in a September 30, 2003 letter, the NLRB stated that the Local "had failed to follow its established referral rules" (Ex. 178), a failure that Hamilton and his fellow officers allowed to continue after posting a notice to members that the rules would be followed.<sup>84</sup>

Frasco and Hamilton testified that the Local surrendered the authority to refer members to work because there were several complaints about the Local's referral practices and because of the expense of defending complaints made to the NLRB. (Ex. 4 at 15, 30-31; Ex. 3 at 53) Hamilton testified that, we were having so many problems, even with the [NLRB], with litigation. It was going to cost the Local, if it continued that way, more money to service an industry that, certainly, doesn't support itself with dues, so I think it was a disservice to the rest of the membership that we be spending so much money on defending a policy that was doomed for failure in our area.

(Ex. 3 at 61)

Frasco and Hamilton cited complaints made to the NLRB as one of the reasons the Local gave up the authority to

<sup>84</sup> As discussed above, after the Local agreed to post a notice stating it would not fail to abide by its referral rules, the NLRB declined to issue a complaint. (Ex. 178) refer members to work in the movie industry. (Ex. 4 at 15-18; Ex. 3 at 61) These NLRB complaints involved Joseph Cassella, Frank Gizzi and Carol Kuhn ("Kuhn"). (Ex. 4 at 15-18) Given the timing of the Cassella and Kuhn complaints to the NLRB, it does not appear that such complaints were a reason for the Local surrendering referral authority. As discussed above, the Casella complaint was settled in approximately September 2003, five years before the Local decided to abandon referral authority. (Exs. 177 and 178) The Kuhn complaint was made in 2009 after the Local had already given up referral authority. (Exs. 179-180)<sup>85</sup>

Hamilton also testified that another reason the Local decided to stop referring individuals to work in the movie industry was because several members made complaints regarding their placement on the referral lists. (Ex. 3 at 57-58) Frasco testified that the August 2008 referral list was a draft and he told members that they could appeal their placement on the list. (Ex. 4 at 33-35) Indeed, Frasco's September 2, 2008 letter to the members invited appeals regarding list placement and the August 2008 rules contained a procedure for such appeals. (Exs. 87 and 116)

<sup>85</sup> The Kuhn NLRB complaint was made on February 25, 2009 and was withdrawn at the charging party's request in April 2009. (Exs. 179-180)

In response to a request from the IRB for all complaints made regarding placement on the August 2008 movie referral lists (Ex. 107), the Local provided three letters dated in September 2008. (Exs. 6 and 182)<sup>86</sup>

In addition to giving up referral authority in the movie industry, the Local also appears to have abandoned the authority to refer members to work in the trade show industry. (Ex. 4 at 12-13) For example, in September 2009, Frasco testified that he was going to present to employers an addendum to the contract covering work at the PCC. That addendum provided that the company would select members from a list of resumes. (Ex. 4 at 12)

N. The Current Purported System for Movies

According to the Local's officers, rather than the Local referring members to work in the movie industries as the collective bargaining agreements provided, under the current system, the Local's role was limited to sending approximately 200 resume summaries in alphabetical order to the movie production companies. (Ex. 4 at 10; Ex. 55 at 24-

<sup>86</sup> On October 1, 2008, Frasco, Hamilton, Local 107 counsel Kohn and the IBT's General Counsel met with the Chief Investigator regarding Local work referrals. During this meeting, Local 107 representatives stated that they planned to stop referring members to work in the movie industry. (Ex. 183)

25; Ex. 3 at 27)<sup>87</sup> The producers were then told to select drivers. (Ex. 4 at 10; Ex. 55 at 25-26) Hamilton testified, ". . . they [the producers] would pick off of the resumes, and, I guess, confer with whoever's there from the captains, to see, you know, what their opinions are of certain people, but, ultimately, it would be the producer's choice." (Ex. 3 at 45-46)

The Local's collective bargaining agreements in effect at the time of the change were not amended. (Ex. 4 at 45-47; Exs. 109-110) The language in collective bargaining agreements entered into after October 2008 was changed. (Ex. 184)

Some of the employers had not had productions in Philadelphia before. They had no prior experience upon which to select members. In fact, allowing the system of favoritism to continue, the selection was passed to the captains, who, pursuant to the collective bargaining agreements, were Local 107 members. Moreover, the Local determined the limited group from whom the captains could be selected. When asked during his sworn examination about a document reflecting who worked on the LAC movie which was filmed in late 2008 and 2009, Frasco testified that he and

<sup>87</sup> According to Frasco and S. Dougherty, each of the movie captains had a book which contained the full resumes. (Ex. 4 at 10-11; Ex. 55 at 25) possibly Kohn, had asked Cimino, the captain on that movie, "to try to keep records on when you're calling people."

(Ex. 4 at 92) As discussed above, the Local limited who could be captain. (Ex. 55 at 29, 47; Exs. 185 and 208)

Although the Local claimed to have surrendered all authority to refer members to work, it admitted in certain circumstances, the business agent or movie captain selected drivers. For example, Frasco testified that between 25 and 30 commercials were filmed in Philadelphia each year. (Ex. 4 at 140) With respect to the commercials, Frasco testified, "[i]f it's a spur of the moment deal, I'll send somebody out there." (Ex. 4 at 140) As discussed below, K. Dougherty, the brother of Secretary-Treasurer S. Dougherty, worked at least two commercials after he was laid off from Holland in April 2009 and before he began to work on the SONY project on July 6, 2009. (Ex. 58 at 15-16, 20-21)<sup>88</sup> Either Frasco or S. Dougherty referred him to this work. (Ex. 58 at 15-16, 20-21)<sup>89</sup>

In addition, movie captain F. Conway testified that, at the employer's request, he selected drivers to work on

<sup>89</sup> Frasco also acknowledged that he selected the drivers to work on a movie project in Atlantic City in approximately June 2009. (Ex. 4 at 109-110) According to Frasco, late on a Friday, he received a call for drivers in Atlantic City from a transportation coordinator in New York. (Ex. 4 at 110)

the movie The Warrior in June 2009. (Ex. 32 at 40-42)<sup>90</sup> F. Conway testified that in connection with The Warrior, Frasco contacted him and told F. Conway that he was the only captain available and asked him if he wanted to work. (Ex. 32 at 41) According to F. Conway, on that movie, the producer asked him to "get me five good drivers that are courteous and professional. . . ." (Ex. 32 at 37-38; Ex. 186) Local 107 Secretary-Treasurer S. Dougherty's brother was one of the individuals F. Conway selected to work. (Ex. 187; Ex. 32 at 42-43) Frasco testified that he did not know how drivers were selected for The Warrior. (Ex. 4 at 107-108)

Frank Conway testified that the five drivers he selected, ". . . had just worked a job with me, and they were the only guys really available at the time because there was four features going on and everybody was working." (Ex. 32 at 43)<sup>91</sup> In contrast to this claim, as of June 2009, when The Warrior was filmed, the Local had approximately 208 resumes on file. (Ex. 188) Approximately 46 members were working on Airbender and approximately 25

<sup>90</sup> Local 107 members worked on this movie in Atlantic City for between approximately four and six days, June 24 to 30, 2009. (Ex. 32 at 32-33, 41, 46-47; Ex. 58 at 14)

<sup>91</sup> The drivers F. Conway selected had just worked Always Sunny with him in June 2009. (Ex. 32 at 42-43)

members were working on the SONY project as of June 24, 2009 when work on The Warrior began (Exs. 70, 153, 188 and 268; Ex. 32 at 32-33), leaving approximately 137 members seeking work. (Exs. 70, 153, 188, 268) For example, Local 107 member Dodd, who had a Class B CDL, had submitted a resume to the Local and was available for work in June 2009. (Ex. 189 at 7-10; Ex. 188)<sup>92</sup>

O. The Local 107 Initiated Change to the Movie Collective Bargaining Agreements

At the time the new system went into effect, the Local had signed collective bargaining agreements with two major movie productions, Law Abiding Citizen and The Last Airbender. (Exs. 109-110) The language of the LAC collective bargaining agreement, which was dated September 9, 2008, provided the following in Article 6:

(B) The parties here recognize that the conditions in this industry require frequent hiring of employees on a daily, non-continuing basis. To accommodate this need, the Union shall maintain, for the convenience of the Company and

<sup>92</sup> On March 30, 2009, Dodd was issued a withdrawal card from Local 107. (Ex. 278) During his July 30, 2009 IRB sworn examination, Dodd testified that he was available for work. (Ex. 189 at 7-10) Indeed, Dodd spoke to Frasco a few weeks prior to his July 2009 sworn examination in an effort to obtain work. (Ex. 189 at 9-10)

Other Local 107 members who had been issued withdrawal cards, including Kaznica, Frasco's brother-in-law, deposited a withdrawal card and returned to active membership upon being referred to work. (Ex. 84; Ex. 83 at 24; Ex. 244) For example, Kaznica worked on setting up and taking down a Kenny Chesney concert in June 2009. (Ex. 83 at 23-24) That concert was held on June 27, 2009. (Ex. 244) Kaznica deposited his withdrawal card the day before, on June 26, 2009. (Ex. 84)

the employees, a referral service, which shall in all respects, comply with all applicable provisions of the law.

(C) The Company agrees to hire employees required on a daily, non-continuing basis for work covered by this Agreement from the referral service. This provision is subject to the following conditions:

(1) Applicants will be referred to the Company from the referral service on a non-discriminatory basis and such referral will in no way be affected by Union membership.

(2) The Company retains the right to reject any applicant referred from the referral service.

(Ex. 110 at 6) The collective bargaining agreement for Airbender, which was dated August 18, 2008 and contained almost identical language to the LAC agreement, provided that "the Company may agree" to hire employees from the referral service. (Ex. 109 at 6)

The first collective bargaining agreement covering a major movie production entered into after the Local changed to the current resume system was the SONY project. (Ex. 184)<sup>93</sup> At the Local's initiative (Ex. 4 at 10-12), Article 9 of the Local's collective bargaining agreement for this movie, which was dated May 5, 2009, provided the following regarding work referrals:

<sup>93</sup> According to Frasco, some of the drivers hired on Airbender were hired under the new system. (Ex. 4 at 10-11) However, the collective bargaining agreement for that movie, which was not amended to reflect the new system, provided that the Local would refer members to work. (Ex. 109; Ex. 4 at 45-47)

(B) The parties here recognize that the conditions in this industry require frequent hiring of employees on a daily, non-continuing basis. To accommodate this need, the Union shall maintain, for the convenience of the Company and the employees, a list of resumes, which shall, in all respects, comply with all applicable provisions of the law.

(C) The Company may hire employees required on a daily, non-continuing basis for work covered by this Agreement subject to the following conditions:

(1) Applicants' resumes will be sent to the Company in alphabetical order by the union on a non-discriminatory basis without regard to Union membership.

(2) The Company retains the right to hire or to refuse to hire any applicant.

(3) The Company need not restrict its hiring to those individuals whose resumes the union has provided to it.

(Ex. 184 at 6) Accordingly, under this contract the Local, which, pursuant to the prior movie industry collective bargaining agreements and past practice, had controlled who was referred to work, ceded control over who worked on the movies to the production company. Moreover, unlike the prior movie collective bargaining agreement with LAC, which provided that the production company could reject referrals (Ex. 110 at 6), the new agreement did not even require the producer to hire from the resumes the Local provided. (Ex. 184)<sup>94</sup>

P. Employers Were Unable to Select Members to Work

This was not an employer-driven negotiated change in the referral system. Indeed, demonstrating the difficulty for producers, who sometimes had not worked in Philadelphia before, to select drivers, at least three employers informed the Local that they were uncertain how to select drivers after the Local relinquished referral authority. Indeed, one producer's response to the Local's business agent after he was given a summary of approximately 200 resumes and told to select drivers was, "are you kidding?" (Ex. 55 at 25-26) Moreover, in September 2009 after S. Dougherty told the producer, who did not want to select workers, that F. Conway was the only available captain, three of the four additional workers on that production

<sup>94</sup> Pursuant to the May 5, 2009 collective bargaining agreement for the SONY project, the minimum weekly rate for a driver was $2,500. (Ex. 184 at 3) In the agreement, the guaranteed weekly rate was based upon five thirteen hour work days or a 65 hour work week. (Ex. 184 at 2) According to Hamilton and Frasco, after a dispute with the production company, Hamilton signed a June 16, 2009 side letter agreeing to a fourteen hour work day and a 70 hour work week. (Ex. 3 at 66-67; Ex. 4 at 124-125; Ex. 190) The Local 107 members employed on the movie did not vote on this change. (Ex. 4 at 124-128) Although Frasco testified that there were only approximately three or four members working on the movie at the time of the change, it appears that approximately eighteen Local 107 members were hired prior to the date of the side letter. (Ex. 4 at 127-128; Ex. 70)

were F. Conway's two sons and a former Local officer. (Ex. 32 at 84-87; Ex. 55 at 27-32)

On September 10, 2009, Dan Dobson ("Dobson"), the line producer for the Dr. Phil Show, which filmed in Philadelphia for a few days, signed a contract with the Local and asked S. Dougherty to assign workers. (Ex. 191; Ex. 55 at 27, 31) S. Dougherty took notes of his conversation with Dobson regarding the selection of drivers. (Ex. 192; Ex. 55 at 58-59) Dougherty's notes stated the following:

This is the Producer's response (CBS DAN DOBSON) when I gave him notice of the "Producer's Choice" for picking the Loc 107 labor (crew) for their 2-day shoot

Dan Dobson: I appreciate that (lists/choice) but I wouldn't know what I was picking. . . Do you have a Philly Coordinator?? "Yes" "I will pick through him"

SD [Shawn Dougherty]: Yes - Frank Conway is last available 107 Captain at this time. I will have him contact you to go over the list. . .

(Ex. 192) During his sworn examination, S. Dougherty described his conversation with Dobson regarding selecting workers as follows:

. . . I said, now, I've got to send you these resumes and this call list, you know, the two resume lists. He [Dobson] said, buddy, I wouldn't know what the hell to pick from there. I said, well, you've got to and that is the system. He said, well, I'm traveling, right now, I'm packing this up tonight, we've moving down tomorrow [to Philadelphia]. I said, I'm telling you you have to. He said, you pick them. I said, I ain't picking them. So then he understands the system after I beat around - you know beat it in his head, look, you have to have a call list in your hand or resume list. Well, Christ, I'm traveling, I can't get it, do you have a Philadelphia coordinator? I said, yes, we do. He said who? I said, Frank Conway, I'll have him call you. He said okay.

(Ex. 55 at 29) On September 13, 2009, Dobson sent an email to S. Dougherty which stated:

This email is to state that the Dr Phil CBS Production will work in compliance with the Teamster Captain #107 assigned to our production in Philadelphia September 15th and 16th, 2009.

(Ex. 193) After S. Dougherty assigned F. Conway to be the captain, the four additional workers on that project included F. Conway's two sons, Francis and Michael Conway, and Mike Mitchell, a former Local 107 officer. (Ex. 55 at 30-32)<sup>95</sup>

On December 8, 2008, Mark Kamine ("Kamine"), the Associate Line Producer for the movie LAC, sent an email to Frasco which stated,

<sup>95</sup> When asked if he had any involvement in selecting the workers on the Dr. Phil Show, F. Conway testified that ". . . he [Dobson] asked me if they were related to me. I said yeah, they're my sons. He said are they working. I said no. He said put them to work. . . ." (Ex. 32 at 87)

This was not the first time that F. Conway's relatives worked when he was the captain on a project. For example, when F. Conway was the captain on a music video on March 10, 2009, the other driver was his cousin Mark Volpe. (Ex. 32 at 58-59)

I wouldn't mind talking with someone who's in charge of this new procedure because I don't quite get it and beyond the drivers I remember and am familiar with I don't really understand how this is supposed to work. Can you put me in touch with the labor board person or whoever is in charge? I would just like to clarify exactly what's going on and think that since our production is one of the productions that has to implement this procedure it's only fair that we know what the thinking behind it is.

(Ex. 194) Frasco claimed he did not respond to this email from Kamine. (Ex. 4 at 94-95)<sup>96</sup> Instead, Frasco claimed he told G. Cimino, the captain on the movie, to allow Kamine to select the drivers. (Ex. 4 at 94-95)<sup>97</sup> On January 6, 2009, Jeff Waxman, the Line Producer for LAC, sent an email to Frasco requesting eleven individuals. (Ex. 195) On January 20, 2009, Kamine sent an email to Frasco requesting 28 individuals. (Ex. 196)

On August 18, 2009, the Local signed a collective bargaining agreement with Magic Gypsy, LLC. (Ex. 197) This agreement provided that the Local would submit the resumes to the employer for the employer to select drivers. (Ex. 197 at 7) Local 107 Secretary-Treasurer S. Dougherty testified that he and movie captain Sullivan met with

<sup>96</sup> Frasco then claimed that he may have called Kamine after receiving the email, but he did not recall. (Ex. 4 at 97)

<sup>97</sup> As discussed above, the LAC collective bargaining agreement provided that the Local would refer members to the employer. (Ex. 110) Although Frasco testified that the collective bargaining agreement was amended to remove the Local's referral authority, it did not appear that was done. (Ex. 4 at 45-47; Ex. 110) representatives of Magic Gypsy, LLC, including George Engel ("Engel"), the Line Producer. (Ex. 55 at 25-26; Ex. 198) S. Dougherty gave Engel the list of resumes. (Ex. 55 at 25-26) According to S. Dougherty, Engel responded, "are you kidding?" to which Dougherty stated that was the Local's procedure for hiring drivers. (Ex. 55 at 25-26) In a letter dated August 20, 2009 to S. Dougherty, Engel wrote, "[t]his letter is to acknowledge our receipt of the Teamster Local 107 resume list. Please be advised we will be selecting our drivers through our Transportation Coordinator and Local Captain." (Ex. 198) This production never went forward in Philadelphia. (Ex. 55 at 25-26, 43, 45)

Q.    Nepotism and Favoritism Continued to Influence
Who Worked in the Movie Industry

An analysis of who worked on various productions after the Local surrendered official referral authority in approximately October 2008 demonstrated that nepotism and favoritism continued to influence who was assigned the lucrative work in the movie and video industries. For example, as detailed below, in 2009, under the new system in which the Local's officers claimed to have no control over who worked, Local 107 President Hamilton's sister, Frasco's brother-in-law, Dougherty's brother and Trustee Nugent, as well as others with connections to the officers or movie captains, worked on the SONY production for several months. Pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement for the SONY project dated May 5, 2009, the minimum weekly rate for a driver was $2,500. (Ex. 184 at 3) In addition, as discussed above, in September 2009, after S. Dougherty assigned Frank Conway to be the captain on the filming of the Dr. Phil Show, the four other individuals who worked on that project were Frank Conway's two sons, a former Local 107 officer and another Local member.

1. Out of Work Local 107 Members

According to Secretary-Treasurer S. Dougherty, since approximately the beginning of 2009, there have been approximately 600 Local 107 members out of work. (Ex. 55 at 9) During his September 2009 sworn examination, Frasco testified that there were between 300 and 400 Local 107 members who had been employed at DHL who were out of work. (Ex. 4 at 16) Hamilton testified that there were approximately 500 former DHL employees out of work. (Ex. 3 at 71)

In March 2008, in response to an IRB document request, the Local produced 92 resumes from members seeking work in the movie industry. (Ex. 199) In October 2008, the Local produced 143 resumes of Local members seeking work. (Ex. 200) As of July 2009, the Local had 208 resumes from members seeking work. (Ex. 188) As discussed below, Vincent Dodd, who was laid off from DHL in October 2008, submitted a resume to the Local seeking work. (Ex. 189 at 6-7, 9-10; Ex. 275) As of July 30, 2009, Dodd, who had a Class B CDL, had been a Local 107 member for more than ten years and had submitted a resume to the Local, had not received any work. (Ex. 189 at 5, 9-10; Ex. 188)

2. Cold Case

Local 107 members worked on the television series Cold Case in March 2009. (Ex. 32 at 58) M. Conway was the captain and F. Conway was the co-captain. (Ex. 32 at 51-52)<sup>98</sup> F. Conway testified that the producer, Tony Brown, picked the drivers for Cold Case. (Ex. 32 at 52)<sup>99</sup> Seventeen members worked on Cold Case in March 2009. (Ex. 202) Mark Volpe, the cousin of M. Conway and F. Conway, and Fuscellaro, the nephew of M. Conway and F. Conway, worked on Cold Case. (Ex. 202) In addition, F. Conway's friend, retired Local 107 member Clarence "Butch" Griffith,

<sup>98</sup> F. Conway testified that he worked on Cold Case from March 18 to March 23, 2009. (Ex. 32 at 58)

<sup>99</sup> The Local produced an undated memo from producer Tony Brown to Conway stating "after reviewing the Teamster resumes, here is our final selection for crew: . . ." (Ex. 202) The memo then listed seventeen individuals and their equipment. (Ex. 202)

also worked on Cold Case in March 2009. (Exs. 202-203; Ex. 32 at 15-16)

3. It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia

The television series Always Sunny filmed in Philadelphia in June 2009, prior to most drivers being hired to work on the SONY project. (Ex. 32 at 21; Ex. 70) Frank Conway, the captain, claimed that the producer, Tom Lofaro, selected who worked based upon the resumes. (Ex. 32 at 45-46) F. Conway testified that when Lofaro looked at the list of drivers, Lofaro asked Conway about their qualifications and asked ". . . this guy good?" (Ex. 32 at 46, 47) At least four of the eleven drivers who worked on Always Sunny had ties to the Local's officers or F. Conway. (Ex. 205) These individuals included K. Dougherty, D. Hamilton, F. Conway's cousin Mark Volpe and F. Conway's friend Clarence "Butch" Griffith. (Ex. 205)

D. Hamilton, who had no driving experience and no industry experience, worked on Always Sunny. (Ex. 50 at 14-15; Ex. 217) F. Conway claimed that "Laina" from the craft services department requested D. Hamilton to work on the show. (Ex. 32 at 65-66) This appears to be Lena Drobot ("Drobot"), the craft services person who, as discussed below, allegedly requested D. Hamilton to work on the SONY project. F. Conway asserted he saw a memo requesting D.

Hamilton. He was not given a copy of the memo. (Ex. 32 at 66-67) D. Hamilton testified that she first met Drobot after she started working on Always Sunny. (Ex. 50 at 18-19) Contrary to F. Conway's claim, it does not appear that Drobot requested D. Hamilton to work on Always Sunny.

F. Conway also claimed that D. Hamilton drove a van on Always Sunny. (Ex. 32 at 73) D. Hamilton testified that she did not drive anything. Rather, she had a stationary job that involved watching trucks and overseeing crew parking. (Ex. 50 at 14-15)

As with D. Hamilton, K. Dougherty, the brother of Secretary-Treasurer S. Dougherty, had never worked in the movie or television industry before working on Always Sunny. (Ex. 58 at 14, 23-24)<sup>100</sup>

Clarence "Butch" Griffith, who worked on Always Sunny, retired as a Local 107 member in approximately December 2005. (Ex. 32 at 16; Ex. 206) F. Conway knew him for approximately twenty years. Recently, he had socialized with Griffith at the New Jersey shore in the summer of 2009. (Ex. 32 at 15-17) In addition, Local 107 principal

<sup>100</sup> K. Dougherty testified that F. Conway contacted him to work on Always Sunny. (Ex. 58 at 17) When asked how he was selected, K. Dougherty responded, "You got me." (Ex. 58 at 17) K. Dougherty testified that he drove a camera truck on Always Sunny which required a CDL. (Ex. 58 at 17) K. Dougherty testified that he worked approximately five days on Always Sunny. (Ex. 58 at 14) officer Hamilton testified that he was "good friends" with Butch Griffith who had been a steward at DHL before his retirement. (Ex. 3 at 9-10) When asked why Griffith worked on Always Sunny, F. Conway claimed that the owner of the generator truck had requested Griffith. (Ex. 32 at 74) There was no written request for Griffith. (Ex. 32 at 75)<sup>101</sup>

4. SONY Project<sup>102</sup>

a. Overview

As noted above, pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement for the SONY Project, the minimum weekly rate for a driver without overtime was $2,500. (Ex. 184 at 3) In July 2009, at about the time when drivers were hired to work on the SONY Project, the Local had approximately 208 resumes from individuals seeking work. (Exs. 188 and 268)<sup>103</sup> It appears that in July 2009 approximately 47 of the 208 individuals with resumes on file with the Local were working on the movie, Airbender (Ex. 153), leaving approximately 161 available individuals. (Exs. 153, 188, 268, 280) Of these 161 individuals, at least 63 had a class A CDL, at least 48 had a class B CDL and at least 9 did not have any CDL. (Exs. 188, 208, 268, 280)<sup>104</sup> Accordingly, approximately 111 of the 161 available individuals had either a Class A or a Class B CDL. (Exs. 188, 208, 268)

Approximately 36 Local 107 members worked on the SONY project. (Ex. 70) The transportation coordinator was Aaron Skalka, a member of Local 399 in Los Angeles. (Ex. 207 at 5-8) The Local 107 captain was Greg Cimino and the Local 107 co-captain was William McCleery, a nephew of Local 107 officer Dan Bosak. (Ex. 69 at 8-9; Ex. 207 at 19, 21) Skalka submitted a written request for G. Cimino and McCleery to work on the movie. (Ex. 209) Skalka, who had not worked in Philadelphia before, had never previously worked with either G. Cimino or McCleery before. (Ex. 207 at 11, 19-21) He testified that the production manager for

<sup>104</sup> For some members, it was unclear from their resumes and the resume summaries what type of driver's license they had. (Exs. 188, 208, 268)

Local 107 captain Sullivan testified that he "absolutely" preferred drivers with CDLs to work on movie productions since they could drive all equipment on the movie. (Ex. 89 at 26-27) During his sworn examination, Skalka mentioned that one of the reasons he liked a particular driver on the SONY production was that the individual could drive tractor trailers and Skalka could assign him to drive anything. (Ex. 207 at 94-96) When Local 107 captain G. Cimino was asked whether he preferred CDL A drivers, he responded, "It varies. The reason being is some gentlemen who drive a tractor trailer might not be the right people to put in a van." (Ex. 94 at 29) As noted above, the September 30, 2003 letter from the NLRB in the Cassella matter, stated that the production companies at issue in that matter wanted drivers with Class A CDLs. (Ex. 178)

the movie Law Abiding Citizen, recommended G. Cimino to him. (Ex. 207 at 19-20) Skalka also testified that Jeff Waxman, a producer, recommended McCleery. (Ex. 207 at 19-21)

Frasco gave Skalka a book of resumes, told him that it was "a total producer's choice contract", and he could hire anyone out of the book. (Ex. 207 at 19) Frasco told Skalka to see what the individual's qualifications were "and you can discuss that with the captain." (Ex. 4 at 22-23) Skalka testified that he reviewed the list of workers with G. Cimino. (Ex. 207 at 20)<sup>105</sup>

Frasco also was involved in selecting drivers on the SONY project. Frasco testified that G. Cimino may have asked him, "who is really, really a good driver, of the names they've chosen - and - because I do know a lot of the freight people." (Ex. 4 at 24) Frasco also testified that co-captain McCleery asked him about an individual's qualifications if he did not know an individual. (Ex. 4 at 24) Despite there being approximately 161 out of work Local 107 members seeking employment, as discussed below, members who were relatives of the Local's officers, who did not have CDLs, worked on the SONY project including

<sup>105</sup> Frasco testified that Skalka may have gone over certain individuals with the captain and co-captain. (Ex. 4 at 25, 111)

Hamilton's sister and Frasco's brother-in-law. This lack of qualification would have been known to both Frasco and the captains.

b. Donna Hamilton

Donna Hamilton is the sister of Local 107 principal officer William Hamilton. (Ex. 50 at 8) She had no experience working as a driver in any capacity and did not have a CDL. (Ex. 50 at 9, 24)<sup>106</sup> D. Hamilton worked as a van driver on the SONY project. (Ex. 50 at 20) Although D. Hamilton claimed that the craft services person who handled food for the movie made a request for her, the Local did not provide any such request in response to an IRB document request. (Ex. 50 at 30-31; Exs. 210-211)<sup>107</sup> It appears that after the IRB's document request, an email, dated one month after D. Hamilton actually had begun work on the movie, was created and then produced to the IRB as the alleged explanation for her working. (Ex. 216)

D. Hamilton had a customer service job at DHL. (Ex. 50 at 6) She joined Local 107 in approximately March 2008 when jurisdiction over the DHL facility where she worked

<sup>106</sup> As discussed above, D. Hamilton was not a driver when she worked on Always Sunny in June 2009. (Ex. 50 at 15)

<sup>107</sup> The Local did provide written requests for six other members to work on the SONY project. (Exs. 209, 212-214)

was transferred into Local 107. (Ex. 50 at 6-8)<sup>108</sup> In January 2009, D. Hamilton was laid off from DHL. (Ex. 50 at 10-11) Her resume stated that her "Objective" was, "[t]o obtain a full time position in the customer service field." (Ex. 217)

She had never worked as a driver before. (Ex. 50 at 24) She started working as a driver on the SONY project on July 1, 2009. (Ex. 70)

On July 14, 2009, in a document request to Local 107, the Chief Investigator's office asked for ". . . all correspondence with employers in the movie, television . . . industries regarding work referrals including, but not limited to all employer requests for specific individuals. . . ." (Ex. 210) On July 20, 2009, the Local responded to that request. (Ex. 211) The Local produced written requests from transportation coordinator Skalka for six Local 107 members to work on the SONY production. It did not produce any request for D. Hamilton. (Ex. 211, 209, 212-214)<sup>109</sup> Frasco and Hamilton both testified that at the time of the Local's July 20, 2009 response to the IRB, the Local did not have any request for D. Hamilton to work on the movie. (Ex. 4 at 117-118; Ex. 3 at 20-25) In addition, during his August 20, 2009 sworn examination, Skalka testified that he did not have in his possession any letter or email requesting D. Hamilton. (Ex. 207 at 83-84) If such a request had been made, it was Skalka's practice to document it. (Ex. 207 at 71-72; Exs. 209, 211-214)<sup>110</sup>

<sup>108</sup> D. Hamilton began working at DHL in 2004 as a Local 331 member. (Ex. 50 at 6) D. Hamilton testified that her sister, Kathy Hamilton, worked at DHL. (Ex. 50 at 6-7) Local 107 principal officer Hamilton was the Local 107 business agent for DHL. (Ex. 3 at 70; Ex. 218)

During his August 20, 2009 IRB sworn examination, Skalka testified that the "craft service person" on the production, who had worked with D. Hamilton previously, had requested that D. Hamilton work on the movie. (Ex. 207 at 34)<sup>111</sup> Skalka testified that the craft services person provided a written request. (Ex. 207 at 34) Skalka did not have that request. (Ex. 207 at 68-69, 83-84; Ex. 219)<sup>112</sup>

<sup>110</sup> When asked why he had submitted some written requests to the Local, Skalka testified, ". . . I have found over the years that it's better to document those requests. Plus the fact that in Los Angeles a lot of time you're hiring those people outside of a grouping system and so it's a matter of habit to get the union's permission to hire them. And it may be that they were - at the time maybe they were on a different show or I just wanted the union to be aware that these people were being asked for outside of a decision that I made." (Ex. 207 at 71-72)

<sup>111</sup> According to D. Hamilton, the craft services department cooked and served food for the movie crew. (Ex. 50 at 19-22)

<sup>112</sup> Skalka testified that he may have forwarded to Frasco an email requesting D. Hamilton. (Ex. 207 at 68-69) The Local had no record of any such email. (Ex. 4 at 117-118; Ex. 3 at 20-25) During his sworn examination on August 20, 2009, Skalka agreed to look for and produce any email requesting D. Hamilton. (Ex. 207 at 83-84) In a September 23, 2009 telephone conversation with an investigator from the Chief

Skalka testified that he was usually just concerned with who was going to be driving talent, "Donna Hamilton being the odd exception to that and it was only because it was simple request." (Ex. 207 at 39) Skalka testified that Local 107 captain G. Cimino told him that he had spoken to Frasco about the request and Frasco had said "if you want Donna you can have her." (Ex. 207 at 69) Frasco testified that G. Cimino called and told him that D. Hamilton was going to be requested. (Ex. 4 at 115) Frasco testified that he told G. Cimino to "[g]ive them what makes them happy." (Ex. 4 at 115-117) According to Frasco, he told G. Cimino, "I want everything documented." (Ex. 4 at 118)

The craft services person who allegedly requested D. Hamilton was Lena Drobot. (Ex. 50 at 19, 25) As discussed above, previously D. Hamilton had worked on Always Sunny in June 2009 for approximately one week. (Ex. 50 at 14-15) D. Hamilton first met Drobot while working that week on Always Sunny. (Ex. 50 at 15, 19) She said she learned that Drobot had been "very close" to D. Hamilton's father. (Ex. 50 at

Investigator's office, Skalka stated that he did not have any email requesting D. Hamilton. (Ex. 219)

It appears that on August 12, 2009, after Skalka had received his IRB sworn examination notice, Cimino forwarded to Skalka a copy of the August 2, 2009 email from Lena Drobot regarding D. Hamilton which is discussed below. (Exs. 216 and 274)

18-19)<sup>113</sup> D. Hamilton testified that Drobot was upset because she did not know that William Hamilton, Sr. had died on March 3, 2009. (Ex. 50 at 18) According to D. Hamilton, Drobot told her that maybe they would work together again. (Ex. 50 at 18-19)

D. Hamilton testified that G. Cimino, the captain on the SONY project, contacted her to work on the movie. (Ex. 50 at 22) G. Cimino did not tell D. Hamilton that she had been requested to work on the movie, adding further doubt that such request was ever made. (Ex. 50 at 22-23) Equally unlikely if a request had been made, Drobot, who worked with D. Hamilton each day on the SONY project, never told her that she had requested D. Hamilton to work on the movie. (Ex. 50 at 20-21, 25-26)<sup>114</sup> According to D. Hamilton, she was only told after she received her August 6, 2009 IRB sworn examination notice that Drobot had requested her to work. (Ex. 50 at 26; Ex. 220) In another indication that the story was not credible, D. Hamilton did not remember at her testimony, approximately one month

<sup>113</sup> William Hamilton, the father of the Local's principal officer, last worked on a movie in approximately 2006. (Ex. 3 at 88) At the time he worked on movies, William Hamilton was a retired Local 107 member. (Ex. 3 at 88; Ex. 181 at 10)

<sup>114</sup> D. Hamilton drove a van for the craft services department on the movie. (Ex. 50 at 20)

later, who told her that Drobot had requested her. (Ex. 50 at 26)

At the conclusion of D. Hamilton's September 2, 2009 IRB sworn examination, her attorney, Local 107 counsel Kohn, produced an August 2, 2009 email from Drobot to G. Cimino, the Local 107 captain on the SONY production. (Ex. 50 at 30-31; Ex. 216) This August 2, 2009 email was dated both more than one month after D. Hamilton started to work on the SONY production and after the IRB's July 14, 2009 document request to the Local for all employer requests. (Exs. 210 and 216) This, of course, would have been well after Frasco claimed G. Cimino had told him D. Hamilton had been specifically requested. This email stated:

Hi Greg -

I would like to request Donna Hamilton to be my driver on the upcoming JLB film. I will be starting the week of June 29, and will need her to start Wednesday, July 1st. Please let me know as soon as possible if she is available. Thank you for your time. Looking forward to working with you and 107 again.

Lena Drobot

(Ex. 216)<sup>115</sup> The next day, August 3rd, G. Cimino forwarded the email from Drobot to Frasco stating, "Hey, she finally sent it to me, Lena is the craft service women [sic] that requested Donna. I figured you would want this. . . ."

---

<sup>115</sup> As noted above, the SONY movie was also referred to as the JLB project.

(Ex. 215)

During her direct testimony at her September 2, 2009 IRB sworn examination, D. Hamilton testified that she started working on the SONY production "about 52 days ago" at approximately the end of June. (Ex. 50 at 18) After Kohn produced the alleged request for D. Hamilton dated August 2, 2009, he asked D. Hamilton if she could have started working on the production in August and D. Hamilton responded, "It could have been. I don't know the dates." (Ex. 50 at 31-32) Consistent with D. Hamilton's initial memory, however, the records reflected that Hamilton started work on the movie on July 1, 2009. (Ex. 70) William Hamilton, the Local's principal officer, testified that he had no idea why the Drobot email was dated in August. (Ex. 3 at 25)

Immediately after D. Hamilton's sworn examination, Kohn went to call on the telephone G. Cimino, the Local 107 captain on the SONY Project.<sup>116</sup> Then Kohn stated on the record of D. Hamilton's sworn examination that,

<sup>116</sup> During the IRB's investigation, Kohn represented twenty-four Local 107 members who testified at sworn examinations, including G. Cimino, Frasco, Hamilton, M. Conway, F. Conway, S. Dougherty, D. Hamilton and K. Dougherty. (Exs. 3, 4, 10, 17, 21, 24, 25, 32, 50, 55, 58, 69, 72, 83, 89, 94, 102, 124, 133, 135, 164, 169, 170, 223)

The question arose concerning the sequence of Donna Hamilton's employment and request to employ her. According to Greg Cimino, with whom I just spoke about the subject, Lena Bodrot [sic] verbally requested in probably the second week of July that Ms. Hamilton be assigned as a driver. Greg Cimino told her that he wanted something in writing to that effect, although Ms. Hamilton could start working. As a result of that request, Ms. Bodrot [sic] sent the August 2nd e-mail. In support of that scenario, I'm going to have -- . . . marked an email from Cimino to Tony Frasco dated August 2nd, which states, hey, she finally sent it to me and goes on from there.

(Ex. 50 at 32-33; Ex. 215) As noted above, D. Hamilton began to work on the SONY Project on July 1, before the alleged conversation Kohn described between G. Cimino and Drobot in the second week of July. (Ex. 70)

Multiple factors suggest that the Drobot email request for D. Hamilton was manufactured after the fact. D. Hamilton admitted that, despite working with Drobot every day on the SONY project, she did not know that Drobot had requested her until after she received her IRB sworn examination notice. (Ex. 50 at 26)<sup>117</sup> Nor could D. Hamilton, a month later, identify who told her that Drobot had requested her. (Ex. 50 at 25-26) The Drobot request was not only dated after D. Hamilton began work but also after the IRB document request. Moreover, although transportation coordinator Skalka sent the Local written requests for six other members as was his practice, inconsistent with his practice here and in prior movies, he did not send any written request for D. Hamilton. (Ex. 207 at 68-72) This was despite that he stressed the importance of documenting requests and his practice of doing so. (Ex. 207 at 68-72)

As noted above, at the time D. Hamilton began to work on the SONY project, there were approximately 161 Local 107 members who had submitted resumes to the Local 107 seeking work and were not working. (Exs. 188, 153, 208, 268)<sup>118</sup> At least 111 of the approximately 161 unemployed members had either an A or a B commercial driver's license. (Exs. 153, 188, 208, 268, 280) D. Hamilton did not have either. (Ex. 50 at 9) In addition, these 111 individuals had experience working as drivers, which D. Hamilton also did not have. For example, Vincent Dodd, who had been a Local 107 member since May 1998 and was laid off from DHL in October 2008, testified that in October 2008 he gave his resume to Frasco to try to obtain employment. (Ex. 189 at 5-8) Indeed, a few weeks prior to his July 30, 2009 sworn examination, Dodd had spoken to Frasco in an effort to obtain work. (Ex.

<sup>118</sup> As of July 2009, 208 individuals had submitted resumes to the Local. (Ex. 188) Of these 208 individuals, approximately 47 worked on Airbender, leaving approximately 161 available individuals. (Exs. 153, 188 and 268)

189 at 9-10) Dodd, who had worked as a driver for DHL for eleven years, had a Class B commercial driver's license. (Ex. 189 at 6) Dodd did not work on the SONY production. (Ex. 189 at 10) Dodd had no relatives among the Local officers.<sup>119</sup>

c. Robert Kaznica

As discussed above, Kaznica is Frasco's brother-in-law. (Ex. 83 at 7) Kaznica, who did not have a CDL, began to work on the SONY project as a van driver in approximately the second week of July 2009. (Ex. 83 at 18, 23) Since September 30, 2008, Kaznica had been on withdrawal from Local 107. (Ex. 84) On June 26, 2009, Kaznica deposited his withdrawal card and paid dues. (Ex. 84)

Kaznica testified that someone named Chris from the production company called him about working on the SONY project. (Ex. 83 at 25) At that time, Kaznica was working on a Kenny Chesney concert, which he did for approximately six days in June 2009. (Ex. 83 at 24) According to Kaznica, Chris ". . . said there was a movie coming up, are you available to work on it. I said, well, I'm working right now. He said, well, it ain't going to be starting for about a week or so. He said are you interested. I said, yeah, I guess." (Ex. 83 at 25)

Frasco claimed his brother-in-law was selected to work from the 200 resume book. (Ex. 4 at 58) Frasco testified, "I would imagine Aaron Skalka picked him." (Ex. 4 at 58) Skalka testified that they needed someone to drive a van on the second or third day of filming and Kaznica was on the list of people that had been drug tested, so he was hired. (Ex. 207 at 62)

d. Kevin Dougherty

Kevin Dougherty is the brother of Local 107 Secretary-Treasurer Shawn Dougherty. (Ex. 58 at 10) On approximately April 20, 2009, K. Dougherty was laid off from Local 107 employer Holland where he had worked as a driver for approximately three and a half years. (Ex. 58 at 7-8)<sup>120</sup> K. Dougherty testified that approximately 68 drivers lost their jobs when Holland closed. (Ex. 58 at 8-9) K. Dougherty had a Class B CDL. (Ex. 58 at 9)

After being laid off from Holland, K. Dougherty, who had no movie experience, worked on the television series Always Sunny, at least two commercials and the movie The Warrior. (Ex. 58 at 14; Exs. 187, 221) On July 6, 2009, K.

<sup>120</sup> K. Dougherty joined Local 107 in approximately 1989. (Ex. 58 at 6) He then transferred to other Teamster locals and in approximately 2003, returned to Local 107. (Ex. 58 at 6)

Dougherty started to work on the SONY Project. (Ex. 58 at 11) K. Dougherty testified that approximately seven other drivers from Holland also worked on the SONY Project, including Michael Nugent. (Ex. 58 at 23) S. Dougherty testified that he did not know how his brother was selected. (Ex. 55 at 39-40)<sup>121</sup>

e. Michael Nugent

Frasco influenced who worked on the SONY movie. He claimed he reviewed with G. Cimino, the SONY captain, who would be the best tractor trailer drivers for center city Philadelphia. (Ex. 4 at 123) Frasco instructed Cimino that Local 107 officer Nugent was one of them. (Ex. 4 at 123-24)

Nugent became a Local 107 officer on January 1, 2009. (Ex. 279) Nugent had a Class A CDL. (Ex. 78) On approximately April 20, 2009, he was laid off from Holland where he was the shop steward. (Ex. 58 at 7-8, 23) Shortly thereafter, on approximately May 6, 2009, Nugent, who had no movie experience, began to work on the SONY project. (Ex. 70)

f. Michael Gray

Michael Gray ("Gray") joined Local 107 in April 2000. (Ex. 69 at 6; Ex. 222) Since high school, Gray has been a close friend of William McCleery, the co-captain on the SONY project. (Ex. 69 at 6) Gray testified that he and McCleery had social contact a few times every month. (Ex. 69 at 7)<sup>122</sup>

Gray began to work on the SONY Project, for which his friend McCleery was the co-captain, on approximately June 30, 2009. (Ex. 69 at 27; Ex. 70) At the time he was hired, Gray did not have a CDL. (Ex. 69 at 10-11) Skalka testified that when he asked for the names of drivers who had the background to drive high profile people, McCleery and G. Cimino gave him the names of Gray, Laura Carregal ("Carregal") and Capetillo. (Ex. 207 at 34-37) Neither Gray nor Carregal had previously driven high profile people before. (Ex. 69 at 17; Ex. 223 at 12, 18, 21) Carregal was, as discussed below, married to a Local steward.

On May 11, 2009, Skalka sent a letter to Frasco stating that he would like to meet Gray "and see if he would be the right fit for one of our principal cast members." (Ex. 212)<sup>123</sup> At that time, Gray was working on

<sup>122</sup> For example, Gray and McCleery went fishing and crabbing together. (Ex. 69 at 39) Gray also socialized with M. Conway, the former PCC steward and a movie captain. (Ex. 69 at 36-37) Gray and M. Conway and Conway's two nephews, Michael and Frank Conway, were all in the same fantasy football league. (Ex. 69 at 37-38)

<sup>123</sup> When asked why he sent a written request for Gray, Skalka testified that an actress' security people wanted to interview Gray. (Ex. 207 at 34-37) Skalka subsequently sent a written request for Capetillo to be the actress' driver. (Ex. 213)

Airbender, which work was coming to an end. (Ex. 69 at 27)<sup>124</sup> On June 5, 2009, Skalka sent a letter to Frasco asking that Gray "be made available to this production to drive James L. Brooks our director." (Ex. 213)

Under the Local's policy, a member cannot leave one movie to go to work on another movie. (Ex. 4 at 113-114) Frasco testified that absent a request, Gray could not have worked on the SONY project since he was working on Airbender. (Ex. 4 at 113-114) Gray had no time off between working on Airbender and going to work on the SONY movie. (Ex. 69 at 27)

Gray's first assignment on the SONY project was driving the director of the movie. (Ex. 69 at 27, 31) Skalka testified that after a few weeks, the director asked that another driver be assigned to drive him. (Ex. 207 at 40)<sup>125</sup> Based upon that request, Skalka assigned another driver to the director. He then assigned Gray to drive a van. (Ex. 207 at 40-41)

g. Laura Carregal

<sup>124</sup> Local 107 members stopped working on Airbender in approximately July 2009. (Ex. 224 at 17) Local 107 members worked on the SONY project until sometime in November 2009.

<sup>125</sup> According to Gray, there was no conversation between he and the director and he felt uncomfortable driving the director. Gray claimed that he asked captain G. Cimino if he could switch to another job. (Ex. 69 at 31-32)

Laura Carregal, is married to Sean Carregal, the elected Local 107 shop steward at Yellow Freight in Bensalem. (Ex. 223 at 7-8; Ex. 4 at 60) Frasco was the business agent for Yellow Freight and testified that he spoke to Sean Carregal ". . . once a day, every other day. . . ." (Ex. 4 at 60-61) Laura Carregal did not have a CDL. (Ex. 223 at 9) She began to work on the SONY Project at the end of June 2009. (Ex. 223 at 17)

The only other Local 107 work Carregal had previously was working on the movie Transformers in June 2008 for two weeks. (Ex. 223 at 7, 12) According to Carregal and Frasco, at that time, Frasco was looking for drivers to work on Transformers in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania and was unable to find drivers from the Teamster Local in that area. (Ex. 223 at 9-10; Ex. 4 at 61) Frasco contacted Sean Carregal to find drivers. (Ex. 223 at 10) Carregal arranged for his wife, his father and his eighteen year old son to work on Transformers. (Ex. 223 at 9-11, 15-16)

G. Cimino and McCleery, the captain and co-captain on the SONY Project, were also the captain and co-captain on Transformers. (Ex. 223 at 19, 24) Carregal testified that when Chris Ferrance from the production company contacted her to work on the SONY project, she called McCleery, whose cell phone number she had programmed in her cell phone from

Transformers, to ask him about the movie. (Ex. 223 at 18-19)

Carregal testified that after Transformers, she submitted a resume to the Local. (Ex. 223 at 14-15) Carregal, who was not employed, testified that she thought that her work on Transformers, "was going to just be a one time thing." (Ex. 223 at 22) She stated, "[i]t wasn't something I was going to make a career out of." (Ex. 223 at 22) As noted above, McCleery and Cimino gave Skalka Carregal's name as someone who had the background to drive a high profile person on the SONY project. (Ex. 207 at 34-37) Carregal had no such experience. (Ex. 223 at 12, 18, 21)

On May 11, 2009, Skalka sent a letter to Frasco asking that Carregal be interviewed for a position on the SONY project. (Ex. 212) When asked about Carregal, Skalka testified that he was looking for women drivers because sometimes actresses preferred a woman driver. (Ex. 207 at 35) Skalka assigned Carregal to work for the set decorating department. (Ex. 207 at 35) Skalka claimed he met Carregal before she was hired and liked her. (Ex. 207 at 35, 59-60)

Carregal, however, admitted that she did not meet Skalka before being hired, that she only spoke to someone from the production company named Chris. (Ex. 223 at 20)

McCleery was present when Carregal went to the production office to complete an application. (Ex. 223 at 20)

Carregal joined the Local shortly before her September 2, 2009 IRB sworn examination, but after she had begun working on the Sony production. (Ex. 223 at 25-26) Prior to joining the Local, she paid a service fee to the Local. (Ex. 223 at 5-6; Ex. 225) Kohn represented her at her sworn examination. (Ex. 223)

5. Kevin Dougherty's Additional Work

As discussed above, K. Dougherty, the brother of Local 107 Secretary-Treasurer S. Dougherty worked on the SONY project and Always Sunny after being laid off from Holland on April 20, 2009. (Ex. 58 at 13-14) After being laid off from Holland, K. Dougherty also worked on two commercials, The Warrior and a concert. (Ex. 58 at 13-14; Exs. 187, 221) It appears that K. Dougherty received some of that work through his brother.

For example, K. Dougherty testified that at the end of June 2009, he worked two days on a Pennsylvania Lottery commercial. (Ex. 58 at 15-16) When asked who contacted him to work on that commercial, K. Dougherty responded, "I think Tony [Frasco] did through my brother, Sean." (Ex. 58 at 15) K. Dougherty testified, "Tony was out in Chicago.

He got a call from somebody that needed a Teamster out in Primos, PA. He talked to Sean. And he called me and said do you want to work. I said absolutely." (Ex. 58 at 15-16)

K. Dougherty also worked on an Action News commercial for approximately two days after he was laid off from Holland. (Ex. 58 at 20) K. Dougherty was the only Teamster who worked on that commercial. (Ex. 58 at 20) When asked if someone from the union asked him to work that job, K. Dougherty responded, "Yeah. It would have had to come from the hall, I don't recall, It could have been Tony [Frasco]. It could have been Sean [Dougherty]. I'm not sure." (Ex. 58 at 21)

K. Dougherty testified that he also worked in the theaters after he was laid off from Holland. (Ex. 58 at 14) This work included a four hour call at the Academy of Music. (Ex. 58 at 15) He testified that Frasco contacted him for that work. (Ex. 58 at 15) In addition, after June 2009, K. Dougherty worked two days on the Kenny Chesney concert at Lincoln Financial. (Ex. 58 at 16) K. Dougherty testified that M. Conway, the trade show steward, contacted him to work on the concert. (Ex. 58 at 16) As discussed above, movie captain F. Conway selected K. Dougherty to work on The Warrior. (Ex. 58 at 16-17; Ex. 32 at 37-38, 45-

46, 94) K. Dougherty testified that he worked four days in Atlantic City on The Warrior. (Ex. 58 at 14)

R. Local 107 Members in the Movie Industry Performed Unpaid Work at Principal Officer
Hamilton's Residence

1. Hamilton's 2000 Move Using Employer Equipment

On April 29, 2000, then Local 107 principal officer-elect Hamilton moved to his current residence in Medford Lakes, New Jersey. (Ex. 3 at 8; Ex. 57) At least five Local 107 members employed in the movie industry, as well as other Local 107 members, helped Hamilton move to this residence. (Ex. 3 at 8-9)<sup>126</sup> Hamilton did not pay the members. (Ex. 226 at 24; Ex. 224 at 41; Ex. 227 at 21) At least three members testified that equipment from Haddad's, a company that supplied vehicles to movie productions, was used for Hamilton's move. (Ex. 226 at 23; Ex. 227 at 19-20; Ex. 224 at 39-43)

When asked how it came about that Local 107 members helped him move, Hamilton testified, "I asked them for some help; I needed some stuff moved." (Ex. 3 at 8-9) Hamilton testified that he asked Local 107 member John Griffith and his father, Local 107 member Butch Griffith, to help him. (Ex. 3 at 9-10) Since 1996, John Griffith has been on the seniority list at the PCC. (Ex. 170 at 12) In addition, since 1991, John Griffith has worked on a number of movie productions. (Ex. 228) Hamilton testified, that, "[t]here was a few guys that helped me move. I can't recall them all. . . ." (Ex. 3 at 14)

<sup>126</sup> The five members employed in the movie industry who moved Hamilton included: John Griffith, Mark Simms, Ed Malseed, William MacCready and John Morrone, Jr.. (Exs. 44 and 57; Ex. 226 at 22-24; Ex. 224 at 40-41; Ex. 227 at 6, 20-21) In addition, Local 107 member Clarence "Butch" Griffith, who was employed at Airborne/DHL at the time, also helped to move Hamilton. (Ex. 3 at 9) After retiring from DHL, Clarence Griffith worked in the movie and video industries. (Ex. 203) In addition to the above, then Local 107 dispatcher John Dooley also helped Hamilton move in 2000. (Ex. 67 at 97-98)

During his sworn examination testimony, Hamilton claimed that no Haddad equipment was used for the move. (Ex. 3 at 9) In a September 29, 2009 affidavit submitted after his sworn examination, Hamilton stated,

There were some Teamsters who helped us move, including John Griffith. Although I do not recall seeing Griffith, it is my understanding that he had the personal use of a Haddad truck over the weekend. According to him, the vehicle was unmarked, so even if I had seen it, which I did not, I would not have known it was owned by Haddad.

(Ex. 44)

According to Hamilton, Ed Malseed ("Malseed") could have been one of the other individuals who helped him move.

(Ex. 3 at 14) Malseed testified that then Local 107 dispatcher Dooley asked him to help Hamilton move to the Medford Lakes residence. (Ex. 224 at 40) Malseed was working on a movie at the time and used a 24 foot stake body truck from Haddad's for Hamilton's move. (Ex. 224 at 39, 41, 43)<sup>127</sup> Hamilton did not pay Malseed for helping with the move. (Ex. 224 at 41)

Dooley, who was employed at the Local as the dispatcher at the time of the move, also testified that he helped Hamilton move. (Ex. 67 at 97-98) When asked how it came about that he helped Hamilton move, Dooley responded, "Basically Billy [Hamilton] told me that I'm moving, there is going to be a bunch of people, I expect you to be there." (Ex. 67 at 98)<sup>128</sup>

<sup>127</sup> Malseed testified that at the time of Hamilton's move, he was working on a movie, either Signs or Unbreakable. (Ex. 224 at 40, 42) Local 107 members worked on the movie Unbreakable between approximately March to July 2000 and worked on the movie Signs between approximately August to November 2001. (Ex. 229) According to Hamilton's wife, they moved to the Medford Lakes residence on April 29, 2000. (Ex. 57)

<sup>128</sup> Dooley also testified that while he was the Local's dispatcher, he worked on the kitchen in Hamilton's home. (Ex. 67 at 98-100) According to Dooley, Hamilton, "told me, I want you to go over and help Gary [Moyer], you know get this work done, and this turned into a big fight between me and Billy. I said, this is ridiculous, Bill, you know it is not like you don't make an adequate living. This is insane. Just hire somebody. . . ." (Ex. 67 at 99) Dooley testified he spent approximately two weeks working on Hamilton's kitchen and the Local paid him during that period. (Ex. 67 at 100) During his sworn examination, Hamilton testified that Dooley, a former carpenter, came to his home one day to give some advice on how to lay a beam in connection with the kitchen project. (Ex. 3 at 17-18)

After Hamilton's sworn examination, Kohn provided a September 26, 2009 affidavit from former Local 107 member Gary Moyer. (Ex. 230) In the affidavit, Moyer stated "approximately seven or eight years ago, I installed a kitchen sink and countertop at the home of Bill and Debbie Hamilton." (Ex. 230) Moyer stated that he was paid approximately $5,000 for his work. (Ex. 230) According to Moyer,

I have known John Dooley for a number of years. When I was doing the job at the Hamiltons' home, he stopped by one day to give me advice on how to deal with a weight-bearing beam, but he did not assist me in any way nor did he do any work on that project.

(Ex. 230)

Local 107 member John Morrone, Jr. ("Morrone") testified that he also helped to move Hamilton to his Medford Lakes home. (Ex. 227 at 19-22)<sup>129</sup> Morrone testified that Local 107 member John Griffith contacted him to help Hamilton move. (Ex. 227 at 19) According to Morrone, Griffith ". . . said Billy wants you to get some guys to help him move and we met at a diner. We had breakfast and then we helped him move with a small stake body and haddads." (Ex. 227 at 19) Morrone testified, "I felt as though I had to help the president of the Local. . . . that's pretty much how I felt things operated. If you didn't help you didn't work. . . ." (Ex. 227 at 21) Morrone testified that he was working on a movie at the time he helped Hamilton move and they used vehicles from Haddad's for the move. (Ex. 227 at 19-20)<sup>130</sup> According to Morrone, the vehicles were clearly marked Haddad's. (Ex. 227 at 19-20) Morrone was not paid to help Hamilton move. (Ex. 227 at 21)

Local 107 member Simms testified that while he was working on the movie Unbreakable, Hamilton came to the

<sup>129</sup> When asked whether Morrone had helped him move, Hamilton responded, "I don't think so, no." (Ex. 3 at 14)

<sup>130</sup> Morrone testified that while he was not sure, he believed that he was working on the movie Signs at the time he helped Hamilton move. (Ex. 227 at 20)

worksite. (Ex. 226 at 22) Simms, who joined Local 107 with the assistance of then dispatcher Dooley, testified that Unbreakable was the first large movie production he worked. (Ex. 226 at 22; Ex. 231) Simms described his conversation with Hamilton as follows:

. . . we were working on the movie called Unbreakable and that was around 2000 and he [Hamilton] actually showed up to the set and told me, he says I'm moving on Saturday. I said oh, good luck. He said well, you'll be there. And I said what do you mean, he says, you know, you're going to help me move on Saturday. I said oh, okay, you know, and you know, I was let to know pretty quickly that if you don't help him move then you won't be there on Monday. That's the way it works.

(Ex. 226 at 22)<sup>131</sup> Simms testified that Haddad equipment from the movie, which was marked Haddad, was used to move Hamilton. (Ex. 226 at 23)

As discussed in the IRB's 2000 report (Ex. 1 at 21-22), in 2000, the movie captain John Morrone, Sr., who is now deceased, testified that, while he recommended drivers for special equipment to Hamilton, Hamilton made all decisions regarding who worked on Unbreakable. (Ex. 232 at 18, 69-71)<sup>132</sup> During his 2000 sworn examination, Hamilton testified that he kept no records of who worked on the

<sup>131</sup> Simms testified that other individuals who worked the movie told him that was how it worked. (Ex. 226 at 22)

movies. (Ex. 38 at 36-37, 43) Individuals who helped Hamilton move in April 2000 and worked on Unbreakable included Simms, Malseed and Morrone, Jr.. (Ex. 224 at 42; Ex. 226 at 22-24)<sup>133</sup>

In addition to acknowledging that Local members helped him move, Hamilton also admitted that two Local 107 members, John Doran ("Doran") and Mark Laneader ("Laneader"), helped him to paint his Medford Lakes home when he moved in. (Ex. 3 at 7-8) Both Doran and Laneader worked on movie productions. (Ex. 233 at 5-9; Ex. 67 at 100-101) Shortly after Doran helped Hamilton paint his house, Hamilton told Doran to contact John Morrone, Sr., then a Local 107 movie captain, to get work on the movie Unbreakable. (Ex. 3 at 7-8; Ex. 57; Ex. 233 at 5-6)<sup>134</sup>

2. Plumbing Work at Hamilton's Home

In addition, Local 107 members Simms and Palladino both testified that at the time they worked on the movie Annapolis, they did work on a bathroom at Hamilton's home. (Ex. 226 at 30; Ex. 234 at 18-19) They were not paid for their work. (Ex. 226 at 27; Ex. 234 at 21) Palladino

---

<sup>133</sup> Morrone, Jr. believed that he helped Hamilton move in "approximately 2002." (Ex. 227 at 19) Hamilton moved in April 2000. (Ex. 57)

testified that he and Simms gutted a bathroom at Hamilton's home. (Ex. 234 at 19-20) Palladino testified that he then returned at a later date by himself to install a new toilet and sink. (Ex. 234 at 20)

Hamilton and his wife both confirmed that Palladino did plumbing work at the Hamilton home. (Exs. 44 and 57) According to Hamilton's wife, on Saturday, December 18, 2004, Palladino and Simms came to Hamilton's home. (Ex. 57) According to Hamilton's wife, "George Palladino came to my house to seat the new toilet and replace the bath's 4 ft section of hot water baseboard heat that was not working." (Ex. 57)<sup>135</sup> In his affidavit, William Hamilton stated,

I know George Palladino, who is a member of Local 107. The only time that I am personally aware of his performing any work at the Medford Lakes house is when he tried to unclog a drain and ended up removing a garbage disposal, which is what I testified to at my deposition. As set forth in my wife's statement, there was another instance when he did some work at our home, but I was not present and therefore have no first-hand information.

(Ex. 44)

According to Hamilton's wife, she offered to pay Palladino for his work on the bathroom, but he refused.

(Ex. 57) In her affidavit, Hamilton's wife stated, "[i]t was my understanding that George [Palladino] was asked to come here to help us out as a favor by his father-in-law John Marrone, Sr. [sic] since George's prior profession was being a Plumber. [sic]." (Ex. 57)<sup>136</sup> Simms and Palladino testified that they could not recall how it came about that they worked on the bathroom at Hamilton's home. (Ex. 226 at 26-27; Ex. 234 at 19-21)

<sup>135</sup> Hamilton's wife claimed that Simms "chatted with me" and did not do any work. (Ex. 57)

Palladino, who had worked as a plumber before he joined Local 107, also testified that he did additional plumbing work at the Hamilton home including unclogging a sewer, fixing a leaking pipe and fixing another leaking pipe under a sink. (Ex. 234 at 18) Palladino was not paid for any of this work. (Ex. 234 at 21) Hamilton's wife confirmed that Palladino ". . . assisted us with minor plumbing issues. . . ." (Ex. 57)<sup>137</sup> William Hamilton testified that Palladino fixed a garbage disposal for him. (Ex. 3 at 13) When asked why he did the work at Hamilton's home, Palladino testified, "I felt obligated. . . . To keep my job." (Ex. 234 at 21-22)

<sup>136</sup> John Morrone, Sr. was a Local 107 movie captain. (Ex. 232 at 6) He died in 2008. (Ex. 236)

<sup>137</sup> William Hamilton testified that he was at a picnic at Local 107 movie captain John Morrone Sr.'s home and Morrone, Sr.'s wife told Hamilton's wife that her son in law, Palladino, could come over to fix the garbage disposal. (Ex 3 at 13)

IV. CONCLUSION

Given Local 107's history, including its repeated failure to comply with its own work referral rules despite representing it would do so, and the evidence of a pervasive pattern of awarding work under the Local's de facto control to those with connections to Local insiders, it is suggested that the IBT place the Local into Trusteeship.
