

Leah Feuerherdt

Regional Coordinator

"I love working with people to implement programs that help look after country and culture. I believe we can do great things when we collaborate."

Based in Adelaide, Leah has spent almost a decade working with remote Aboriginal communities in the north west of South Australia. An accomplished project manager and leader, Leah recognises that good communication is critical for successful outcomes. Leah has experience working with multiple stakeholders including pastoralists, volunteers, government agencies and Indigenous groups.

Leah has most recently been the Regional Manager for the Alinytjara Wilurara (AW) Natural Resource Management Board. In 2018, Leah led the tender submission for the Board to the National Landcare Program 2, resulting in $8M investment for the AW region for 2019-2023.

Leah specialises in:

engagement and negotiation with Aboriginal stakeholders for program development and operations | collaborative development and management of business and project management systems | building and maintaining relationships | cooperative planning and management of protected areas
