ASSEMBLYMAN TROY SINGLETON 2014 Year in Review

We made tremendous progress in the New Jersey General Assembly last year. In 2014, I was proud to serve New Jersey's families by writing and passing critical legislation.

- Wrote the law to establish "Breakfast After the Bell" programs in schools participating in the federal school breakfast program. According to the Advocates for Children of New Jersey, more than 300,000 children across the state are missing breakfast. I joined with several lawmakers to create and pass legislation that increases student participation in the federal school breakfast program by incorporating breakfast during the first few minutes of the school day.
- Created the law that allows NJ taxpayers to make voluntary contributions for the support of local libraries on gross income tax returns.
- Revised and extended reforms of police and fire interest arbitration to balance the interests of property taxpayers while recognizing that police and firefighters deserve adequate compensation for their commitment to our families' health and safety.

As we move into 2015, I will continue to fight to improve South Jersey's quality of life. My legislative priorities include:

- Increasing STEM education opportunities for our school children
- Establishing a mortgage assistance program to reduce foreclosures
- Protecting our seniors from financial exploitation attempts
- Promoting the expansion of our state's manufacturing industry to grow jobs
- Providing more resources for property tax relief
