

3 May 2019

Exciting news!

National Council members of United Voice and the National Union of Workers (NUW) have just endorsed the proposal to build a new union together.

The next step is to submit a formal application to the Fair Work Commission, before members have the final say in a ballot later this year.

This historic step comes after thousands of members had their say on the name of the new union. And the winner is – United Workers Union!

The new union name was based on feedback from members, and represents both unions coming together as 150,000 united workers from across the country and across industries. Check out the video on the new union name here.

We know the bigger we are, the stronger we are, and the more power we have to make real change.

That's why we're asking you to support this proposal to build a bigger, stronger union when it comes time to vote later this year.

To ensure you have your say, update your contact details to make sure you receive the latest information, including ballot papers.

Until then, keep checking your emails and anewunion.org.au for updates.

In unity,

Jo Schofield

National Secretary

United Voice