ABOUT UNITY TRAINING SERVICES

Operating since 1988, Unity Training Services was the first occupational health and safety provider in Western Australia. Unity has trained over 20,000 people to be effective safety representatives in their workplaces.

The philosophy of Unity Training Services is that well trained employees contribute to increased productivity, efficiency and a safe and healthy working environment. Unity Training Services offers high quality, low price training courses that have a practical application in all workplaces. Enthusiastic and highly qualified staff members are available to assist organizations and individuals with course programme selection.

By word of mouth and through promotion and advertising, we hope that newly elected safety and health representatives will automatically make Unity Training Services their choice for training. For those who have already attended initial training courses, take advantage of our extensive programs to update and improve the skills and knowledge already acquired.

Courses include the Five Day Introductory Occupational Safety and Health Representative Training Course; (State and Commonwealth), Post Introductory/Advanced Occupational Health and Safety, NOPSEMA, Maintaining Workplace Safety, Safety Committee Training and Commonwealth courses available for managers and supervisors and managing stress in the workplace for employees. Unity Training Services are available to deliver training both on and off-site.
