

Call 3 1 1

The City of Toronto holds public consultations as one way to engage residents in the life of their city. We invite you to get involved.

Have your say on digital technologies & your City government

Join the conversation on how Toronto should use and regulate digital technologies

Provide your feedback by attending the first phase of public consultation sessions:

- December 7, 2019 -- McGregor Park Community Centre (2231 Lawrence Ave E.), 10 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.
- December 9, 2019 -- Toronto City Hall, Council Chamber (100 Queen St W.), 6:30 - 9 p.m. - This consultation will also be livestreamed at XXXXXXXXXXXX
- December 11, 2019 -- North York Central Library (5120 Yonge St), 1:30 - 4 p.m.

Background

The City is developing a Digital Technology Master Plan, and a work plan for implementation. During the public consultation, participants will provide input and learn more about digital technologies and their role in City services, including the benefits and challenges of these technologies, and how the City regulates them. Participants will also have the opportunity to provide input on principles that will inform the Master Plan.

We would like to hear from you.
